Long-Standing

Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence St., Lowell, Mass.

"Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Eymon, (of Fernandina, Fla.) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. B. Wiley, 116 Chambers St., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

A Good Year for Malpeques.

POINTERS ABOUT OYSTER FISHING.
(Montreal Witness.)

The oyster industry has in the past few years developed into one of the largest industries of Prince Edward Island. A new departure has been made in the way of bringing the celebrated Malpeques to Montreal by way of the St. Lawrence. Thomas Williston, of Miramichi, has arrived at Jacques Cartier wharf with a barge containing 900 barrels, and in a day or two has sold 400. He says this is the first time this kind has been brought up by river. At present, dealers are paying $3.75 a barrel for Malpeques delivered by rail through the States. They can now buy the same oyster for $2 and slightly upwards. The restaurant keepers, who retail the oysters at twenty-five cents a dozen, are the largest buyers. To-day a Witness reporter dropped into the "saloon" of the barge and there had an interesting chat with Mr. Williston on this juicy subject.

"Yes," said the barge owner, "I have been in the business a good many years and I can tell you that this has been the best season for oysters within my recollection."

"How do you account for that?"

"Well, it is attributed to the mild winter of last year and this, and also to the warm season."

"Where do you pick your oysters?" said the unsophisticated newspaper man.

"Malpeque Bay, of course! Yes, it is on Prince Edward Island, and is about thirty miles long."

"Busy down there now, I suppose?"

"Well, I guess so. Why, there are about 700 men picking oysters the whole season."

"Hard work getting them?"

"I should say so. It is the hardest work on earth. Why, they have to be fished out of twenty feet of water. But they are very thick this year, and can be more readily picked. We have winged rakes, you know, with which we bring them up."

"Ready demand, I suppose?"

"Yes, there are dealers around all the time from every part of the States, who buy them up as soon as they are fished."

"Have you to pay for the right of fishing?"

"No, my dear fellow, you have the same right that I have. The bed is free to all."

"Do you export any to England?"

"I used to, but I lost money on the experiment. They have the finest oysters in the world there—the 'natives.'"

"How many barrels can a man fish in a day?"

"Five. But I've seen them so scarce that it took a whole day to fish a single barrel. That was after a windy season. I have often wondered they keep so thick—they are so carefully picked. I am taking down some new species to plant in the bay."

Mr. Williston stated that since he had come up he found the demand for clams very great. "And," said he, "I threw barrels overboard before I came up simply because I thought there was no market for them."

Telegraphic Odds and Ends.

A BUDGET OF GENERAL NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 1.—Members of the Parramatta party, who have been travelling through Australia, have finished their tour and collected £20,000 to advance the Irish cause. They will now go to New Zealand.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—A new scheme is now mooted in connection with the C. P. R. line from this city to St. John. It is said that they will extend a line from Mattawamkeag to the Grand Southern crossing, and enter St. John over the last named road. It is claimed that over the new route two hours can be saved between Montreal and St. John.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Rev. Dr. O'Reilly, treasurer of the Irish national league of America, has handed to the national league authorities in Ireland $8,000 collected in America.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.—The Anglican Synod of Rupert's Land, now in session here, has adopted a resolution appointing a committee to gather information with regard to the encroachment of the Roman hierarchy, and to recommend suitable and practicable methods for preventing said encroachments.

CAIRO, Nov. 1.—The Prince of Wales and his son Prince George dined with the Khedive to-day.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—A number of Montenegro convicts who recently escaped from the prison at Albania, had an encounter with the Malisori tribe. The loss on both sides was heavy.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 1.—Rev. Mr. Hunter, of this place, is not a believer in Christian burial being given a man who, while alive, cursed the ministers of God or God himself, or who dies in delirium tremens. To say over him, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord" is pure mockery. If a man lives like a dog bury him like a dog, and never say blessed where God says cursed.

Personal.

The new Lord Mayor of London is Sir Henry A. Isaacs, whose fruit-shops are all over the metropolis. He succeeds the Lord Mayor Whitehead, who has done more to cheer and help the poor and those who are working for them in the East end, than any Lord Mayor of modern times. It seems now to have come to be a chief duty of the Lord Mayor to bring together, if he can, conflicting parties in the interest of all concerned.

Tschernischevski, the Russian novelist, has been sentenced to 25 years at hard labor in the mines of Siberia. The guards will have to watch him closely or he will lean his name up against the side of the mine and climb out.

There is a venerable Indian named Gabriel, in Southern California, who is over 150 years of age. If he avoids using any of this Brown-Sequard elixir stuff, he may live to be quite an old man.

The Cronin Trial.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—In the Cronin case this morning Patrick McGarry, who occupied the chair at the time of adjournment was still on the witness stand. Donohue, of counsel for defence, moved to strike out that part of McGarry's evidence given yesterday in which McGarry described his visit to the house of O'Sullivan after Dr. Cronin's murder and at which time he questioned O'Sullivan closely about his contact with Cronin. After a long argument it was decided to postpone a decision on the point until this afternoon in order to allow the counsel time to present authorities. The cross examination of McGarry was also postponed, and George Reilly, the saloon keeper, was called to the witness chair. He testified that in the latter part of March Coughlin, O'Sullivan and others were in his saloon and were talking politics when Coughlin said that a certain north side Catholic was talking too much and that if he did not keep his mouth shut he would get the worst of it.

W. P. Hatfield, a salesman for Russell & Co., was called and told of selling to a man calling himself J. B. Simonds, a bill of furniture taken to 117 Clark Street and subsequently conveyed to the Carlson cottage. Simonds said the furniture was for temporary use. After Hatfield identified the furniture, the trunk in which Cronin's body was found was taken into court. Hatfield testified that it was identical with one sold to Simonds. On cross examination he said he could not swear it was the identical trunk because the firm kept such on hand always and perhaps other dealers did also. He could not be sworn positively that the furniture in the Carlson cottage was the same sold to Simonds, but it was precisely like it.

When court resumed session the jury excluded the matter of striking out the witness McGarry's evidence as to what was said during his visit to O'Sullivan's house on the Sunday following the murder, was taken up. The court finally decided to exclude all talk in regard to the former attack on Cronin, not satisfactory to the defence. Finally, the cross-examination of McGarry was resumed. John W. Sampson, generally known as "Major" Sampson, was next called. He testified that two years ago Coughlin tried to hire him to "lug" Cronin.

On cross-examination, he admitted that Conklin arrested him three or four times for robbery. He had been convicted of passing counterfeit money, and was a gambler by profession. C. G. Keefe, Cronin's tailor, said he attended the meeting of camp 20, in Sept. 1888. After conversation with the defendant Beggs about Cronin and Alexander Sullivan, the witness said: "John F. Beggs said not to have much confidence in the new executive, and said Cronin was not a proper man to be put in the trial committee to try Alexander Sullivan. He said Cronin was not a fit man to belong to Irish societies."

On cross-examination it was brought out that Beggs objected to Cronin being on the committee to try the triangle because he was an enemy of Alex. Sullivan.

Cornelius Flynn corroborated O'Keefe's testimony.

Edward G. Throckmorton, clerk in a real estate office, testified to renting the rooms at 117 Clark Street to J. D. Simonds.

Aaron Goldman, collector for the same firm, testified that the rooms at 117 Clark Street, were occupied on the 19th March last. On the 21st he found them vacant.

James M. Marshall, of the firm which controlled the rooms at 117 Clark Street, testified to that fact.

The court adjourned till to-morrow.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—To-day Assistant District Attorney Baker, of Chicago, and Lawyer Howell elicited entirely new, and if true, important information from Gillette, the fellow-prisoner of the Cronin suspect, Martin Burke, while the latter was in jail. Gillette said Burke told him the plot had been to decoy Cronin from the house by Coughlin and a woman. Burke admitted afterward that Coughlin changed the plan and decoyed Cronin by means of Sullivan's business card.

As well as Gillette could remember Burke mentioned as associates with himself in the affair Coughlin, Cooney and O'Sullivan. The intention was to sink the body in the lake, but a confederate who was to meet them with a boat failed to keep the appointment. Burke went twice to the lawyer's office on Dearborn Street, Chicago, and got money for doing the job, so Gillette says. The clothes of Cronin was brought to Winnipeg by Burke and hidden in a house on Valentine Street.

How to Make a Cup of Tea.

It seems a simple thing enough; yet of the millions who use this refreshing and agreeable beverage a very small proportion thoroughly understand how to prepare it. But if not properly made, tea is deprived of a great deal of its value, and sometimes rendered absolutely injurious. The water to be used should be boiled, and it should be poured on the tea immediately; it boils; if allowed to overboil the peculiar property of boiling water which acts upon tea evaporates and eventually disappears. Tea should not be a decoction, but an infusion. If allowed to stew it becomes little better than a decoction of tonic acid. Tea that is over-drawn is hurtful to the nerves and to the digestion. As to the precise number of minutes which should be devoted to process of drawing, some people will say five minutes, some seven, some will pooh-pooh as far as ten, but our experience is in favor of six; this suffices to bring out the flavor, quality and strength. Just as much tea as is wanted should be made—no more. Make fresh tea as often as it is required. The replenishing of the teapot with fresh hot water is very objectionable. As the thorough heating of the receptacle is of the first importance, the teapot should be made thoroughly hot before the tea is put in it. The earthenware teapot is preferred to all others by many connoisseurs, and it is superfluous to say that whatever utensil is used for this purpose should be immaculately clean.—London Illustrated.
