

Druidic Prayer.

The following ancient Druidic prayer is taken from the Iolo MSS. and might very profitably be used by Christians:—

Grant, O God, Thy help: And in Thy help, strength: And in Thy strength, understanding: And in understanding, knowledge: And in knowledge, a sense of right: And in the sense of right, the love of right: And in the love of right, the love of every creature: And in the love of every creature, the love of God.—Amen."

Character in Handwriting.

There are people who claim to read men's character from their writing. As the writing of every nation is distinguished by certain strong national peculiarities, it is easy for an expert to decide to what nation a writer belongs. Having settled that, certain large characteristics which are common among men, but in different degrees, can be seen in every handwriting. A certain number of men are calm, even-tempered, sensible and practical. Men of that class are almost certain to write plain, round hands in which every letter is distinctly legible; neither very much slanted forward, nor tilted backward; no letter very much bigger than its neighbor, nor with heads much above or tails much below the letters not so distinguished; the letters all having about the same general uprightness, and the lines to the edge of the paper, neither tending upward nor downward. Exact business like people will have an exact handwriting. Fantastic minds reveal in quirks and steamers, particularly for the capital letters, and this quality is not infrequent in certain business hands, as if the writers found a relief from the prosaic nature of their work in giving flourishes to certain letters. Firm, decided, downright men are apt to bear on the pen while writing, and to make their strokes hard and thick. On the contrary, people who are not sure of themselves and lacking in self-control press unevenly and with scratchy hands. Ambitious people are apt to be overworked; they are always in haste, and either forget to cross their t's or dot their i's. They are always apt to run the last few letters of every word into an illegible scrawl. Flurried, troubled and conscience-tormented persons have a crabbed and uneven handwriting.
