ions To Sponsor Glaucoma Clinics

Special glaucoma clinics with the object of testing every person over 40 for this dreaded disease of the eyes are to be sponsored in Prince Edward Island by the Lions Clubs. This was unanimously approved at a special meeting held in Charlottetown Wednesday and attended by representatives of every Lions club in the province. Deputy District Governor Joseph Molloy presided.

The most speaker, Dr. William Moreside, Charlottetown, was introduced by the deputy governor in his report. He explained that more than 50 per cent of the causes of blindness in people over 40 years of age were caused by glaucoma and the percentage of people over who, unbeknownst to themselves, to be affected, is very high. Dr. Moreside explained that the disease could not be cured, but could be arrested and given the proper treatment. He stressed the quick and painless way to determine if glaucoma is present. He applied drops in the eyes and then using a tonometer,

Lt.-Governor's Appointment Must Wait

The announcement of the April 8 federal election has disrupted, for the present at least, the thinking of those who were suggesting Premier Walter R. Shaw would go to Government House when the term of the present Lieutenant Governor, F. Walter Flynn, ends on March 4.

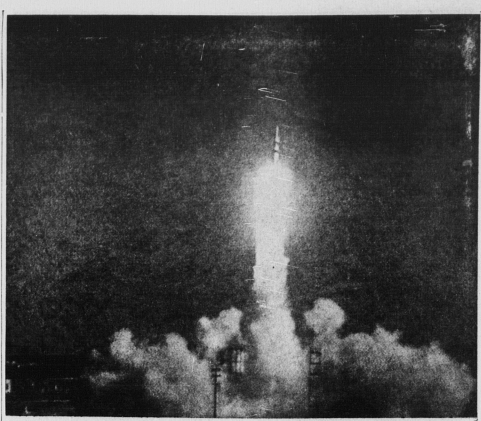

The appointment, most people believe, will now have to be delayed until after the election, which would mean that the party that wins the election, or one that forms the next government, will appoint the next occupant of Government House; and that would not necessarily be the Progressive Conservatives.

There is another school of thought that technically the government can make appointments to election day, though this is not usually done. The appointment of Dr. Orville Phillips to the Senate on Monday, just before the government was defeated on a confidence motion, is an indication that the Diefenbaker government was getting the appointments made up before election call might be necessary.

Trade has also been working for this improvement. Mr. Fraser, who is secretary of the Atlantic regional committee, and head of the national employment service operations in the region, discussed the many features of committees and the employment service. He pointed out that although there have been many recent advances and opportunities for training, there is still a strong demand for skilled tradesmen. He felt that industry should accept a good deal of responsibility for further upgrading of workers, but that people should take the initiative to improve themselves, as well.

Ecumenical Council Told To End At Next Session

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John has told Roman Catholic bishops they must conclude the Vatican ecumenical council at its next session and must deliberate with all mankind—not just Roman Catholics—in mind.

In a papal letter published Thursday, the 81-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church vigorously underlined his belief that the council must serve the cause of ultimate Christian unity. His letter, written Jan. 6, the feast of Epiphany, told the bishops the next session will be the last, with the prelates expected to remain in Rome until their work has been completed. The council opened Oct. 11 and recessed Dec. 8 until Sept. 8.

When it recessed, the Pope said he hoped its work would be finished by Christmas of 1963. But many here felt this impossible and that a third session would be required after a Christmas recess. Pope John ended such speculation in his letter. The next session, he said, will be the "conclusive phase" and "will last until finished."

Pope John's letter frequently quoted the Bible to emphasize his view that the council must produce results important for all Christians, not just Catholics. He cited the first apostle of St. John: "... He (Jesus) is a population for our sins, not for ours only but also for those of the whole world." From Matthew, chapter 23: "Go... and make disciples of all nations." It was a powerful argument, apparently in support of Augustin Cardinal Bea, head of the Vatican secretariat for Christian unity, and other progressive prelates. They had argued at the council's first session that theological issues advocated by some conservative prelates did not take sufficiently into account current relations between Catholics and other Christians. The Pope said the council directly reflected the Roman Catholic Church. "But if we concern ourselves only with Catholics and our action is limited to the Catholic Church... it would not seem to respond sufficiently to the words of the Divine Redeemer. To be faithful and to remain faithful to the integrity of Catholic doctrine... is certainly a great grace and a title of merit and honor. But this is not enough to fulfill the precept of the Lord."

Potato Disease Control Efforts To Be Increased

Premier Walter R. Shaw said yesterday that during the coming year the department of agriculture will step up its program of disease control in potatoes.

The government learned Wednesday that the United Kingdom potato market will not take potatoes from North America unless the potatoes are certified to come from a disease-free area.

"The disease control program will be stepped up," the premier said, "until we can declare that our potatoes are free from the defects now curtailing market entry in some areas."

With the rigid controls in existence under the departments of agriculture, there has been tremendous improvement in the lessening of potato disease incidence in the past year. A record is of such an encouraging nature that it leaves no doubt in the minds of officials and producers that these diseases can be completely eliminated under the program.

The premier continued, "all that is necessary to make the program a success is the support of government agencies and the sincere co-operation of producers who may be in any way affected with outbreaks."

"The reports coming to us from England where authorities have built up rigid controls against importation of potatoes from affected areas would nevertheless indicate that any obstruction to entering the British market may vary well beyond what we are now doing.
