

Happy Thoughts.

Woman's dough-main: The kitchen. High praise—The applause from the gallery. Kind words are like blade heads; they can never dye. The cork is the article that often gets in a tight place. Incompetency, Fortunes derived from hotel-keeping. An organ grinder is not the architect of his own four-tunes. If you should happen to want your ears pierced just pinch the baby. A promising young man—The fellow who always says, "I'll see you later."

At this season of the year the submissive spouse is simply a tacks gatherer. Funny, isn't it, that you always see night-fall before any stars begin to shoot. A carpenter calls his jack-plane "Poor rule," because it won't work both ways. We frequently hear the expression, "bee in a bonnet." Whoever saw bonnet without a B in it?

"One swallow does not make a summer," but one tramp makes a spring watch-dog seeks to interview him. "Every dog has his day," according to the old saying; but now Fashion decrees that every dude must have his dog.

The Boston Post has ascertained that almost everything is overdrawn when it is made bigger, except a bank account. "I will write a poem to kill time," said the amateur doggerelist to the editor. "And I," muttered the editor as he gnashed his teeth. "I will kill the poem at the right time."

"There are no birds in last year's nests," says a poet. No, and there are no pigeons in last year's pigeon holes, the only thing in them that even suggests pigeons is a lot of bills. "Is your mistress in?" said a caller to the domestic. "She is, sir." "Is she engaged?" asked the caller. "Faith she is more than that," was Bridget's prompt response; "she's married."

Current Notes.

Horse-flesh is sold in some parts of London as beef. It has the peculiarly rosy appearance which the people like, and in order legally to prevent its sale it must be shown that it is "unfit for the food of man."

A Paris newspaper credits the widowed Baroness Rothschild with the intention of establishing in Versailles a home for aged and destitute authors, and journalists. She is said to have set apart 500,000 francs for the purpose.

Nothing seems too costly for a railroad president. The estimated cost of Mr. Sidney Dillon's new car is said to be over 15,000. It is to be 60 feet long and 10 high, and of course replete with every luxury. Railroad chairmen and directors in England have to be content with ordinary, or little more than ordinary, cars. There would be howls at the next meeting of shareholders were £3,000 to appear as an item for "the chairman's carriage."

John Brown has left a diary which, if published, will require considerable editing. It is not probable it will ever appear. Greville and Wilberforce have proved enough for one generation. It is a fact that many attempts were made by one of the London society journals to prevail on J. B. to become a contributor of gossip, after the fashion of the Countess of Stradbroke, but the sturdy Scotchman refused to listen to the voice of the golden tempter.

A very ancient and amusing ceremony was observed the other day at the Mansion House, London. The blue-coat boys from Christ's hospital, went in a procession to the Mansion House, and were there presented by the Lord Mayor with a new coin each, fresh from the mint. Thirteen Grecians received a guinea, forty-two monitors half a crown, and six hundred and seventy-five of the rank and file a shilling. They had also a plum bun and a glass of wine or lemonade.

Among some of the disadvantages of royalty is the lack of privacy accorded to it; and royal personages are frequently in the habit of securing this privacy, when on a journey, by travelling incognito. The King and Queen of the Netherlands are now passing through England in this way, and are said to be enjoying themselves like two children let out of school. Though it is perfectly well known who they are by a convenient fiction this knowledge is not utilized; and even Queen Victoria has given no official recognition of their visit to her dominions.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate is very valuable for professional men. It supplies the phosphates which are always lost by severe mental labor.

An Ottawa gentleman found a ball on the street, which his lively imagination immediately conjured into dynamite, and the still more imaginative public built a plot to blow up the Privy Council chamber. An examination of the mysterious missile revealed it to be a wooden ball.

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after a sick head
