The Treatment of Fish Thieves.

Some American fishermen mean mischief—that is if our telegraphic advices are correct. They seem to think that they may steal our fish with impunity, because they have fifty millions and the almighty eagle at their back.

The Patriot of last evening says: "As the treaty will probably remain a dead letter, it should be the aim of the statesmen of both countries to arrive at a broad and permanent solution of the fisheries question.

Horse Raising and Training.

The controversy now going on indicates the interest taken in horse breeding in this Province. While pleased with this popular demonstration, we regret that so much personal feeling and acrimony have been imported into the discussion.

The public are interested in a discussion on this question, as it naturally affects them. This Island is proud of the position it has attained in the excellence of its horses, as compared with the neighboring Maritime Provinces.

In the means of developing trotting horses, this Island is lagging away behind the sister Provinces, and this want is now handicapping our breeders. What advantage do we possess in having and producing young stock, well-bred and capable of becoming successful turf performers, unless we possess the means of developing them?

Horses can be raised in this Province cheaper than in any part of Canada or the United States, excepting, perhaps, in Kentucky and California.

The Hebrew element of the population in the City of New York is very charitable. There are estimated to be about 140,000 Jews in that city, and fourteen active charitable and benefit associations look after the wants of any needy members of the race.

Bishop Courtney.

AT SPRINGFIELD, CRAPAUD AND LONG CREEK.—CONFIRMATION SERVICES AND ADDRESSES.

On Monday morning, Bishop Courtney visited Springfield. He held a confirmation service and attended the funeral of the late William Haslam, Esquire. Thirteen persons were confirmed, after which the Bishop delivered a very able and explicit address.

The Court of Chancery.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

The first suit under the Waterworks Act came before the Master of the Rolls to-day. A week ago an injunction was issued at the instance of Thomas Smith against the Water Commissioners, to restrain them from entering on his land until the land damages had been paid.

Our Book Table.

Publisher William Bryce, of Toronto, has issued a sort of companion volume to "Mr. Barnes of New York" entitled, "Mr. Potter of Texas," and by the same author and those who liked the former, may very likely relish the latter one, but it is written in a style that seems to need sensational language to cover up its meagre framework.

Supreme Court.

SUMMERSIDE, June 12.

The Supreme Court met here this morning, Mr. Justice Hensley presiding. The following gentlemen compose the Grand Jury:—David Rogers, Lot 26, foreman; James Moran, Lot 11; William Sheu, Summerside; Honore V. DesRoches, Miscouche; David Bryant, Lot 10; John A. Gardiner, Lot 26; William Hayes, Lot 12; Robert McLaren, Lot 16; John L. McLellan, Indian River; Archibald Hayward, Tignish; Henry Gordon, Lot 26; John A. In the larceny case against John Arsenault, the Grand Jury returned "No Bill." In the cases against Lemuel Coughlin, Henry Macdonald, and John Forsyth, for the larceny of liquors from the freight shed at Alberton, the Grand Jury returned "No Bill."

The case of John McKenzie vs. George Ballem, was postponed, on motion of Mr. Morson for the respondent.

The case of Dr. Jarvis vs. the Town of Summerside, was also postponed. Court adjourned.

A PURCHASE SCHEME.—The Winnipeg Free Press gives currency to the statement that O'Connor Power is really on a mission from the Imperial Government, which contemplates making a purchase scheme for Ireland. In order to minimize the cost, it will offer Irish tenants the option of 30 acres in Ireland, or 100 in the Northwest, making the terms for repayment of advances easier with the latter than the former proposition.

"Ink is the stuff that makes men's thoughts visible," says somebody. This is particularly true when men upset the bottle on a desk piled up with papers.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Things Said and Done on the Streets and Elsewhere.

It is too much the custom for the press of the Maritime Provinces and of Maine to set down any "tough" who figures in the police courts or any one who gets full of the ardent and makes an ass of himself, as being a native of Prince Edward Island. Time and again their action in this respect has been condemned, but they have not shown any disposition to mend their ways.

This incident recalls to mind an experience I myself had while on a visit to some friends in the country last summer. My difficulty was, however, not with ants but mosquitoes, and I was wide awake and sober at the time. In company with several friends I was crossing the fields going in the direction of the shore, when we suddenly found ourselves in a large field of mosquitoes. They were flying about overhead, in front, behind and on both sides of us.

There are doubtless many other persons in the community who have had similar experience with mosquitoes, but few know how the festive insect manages to get in his fine work. The following scientific information on the subject is furnished by a New York Microscopical Society who have carefully enquired into the matter: "The mosquito bite, though occupying but little time, is a performance of considerable interest. It involves a selection by the creature of the proper place of attack; the firm fastening of the outer ends of its labella on the surface near this place; the sudden flexing backward of the middle of the labium (under lip) and the resultant forward movement of the firmly grouped, unbending, lancetlike setae till they are buried in the skin; and, finally, the use of a complicated pumping apparatus at the base of the mouth parts, by means of which the creature supplies itself with blood. The irritation caused by the bite is supposed by some to be the effect of a poisonous saliva, although no poison gland has yet been detected."

So much for the mosquito nuisance; now a few words about that other and more expensive one—the barbed wire fence—or at least the apology for one which was placed on the Richmond street side of Market Square some time ago. When the wire was erected I predicted that some person would be injured thereby and the city would have to foot the bill. My surmise has turned out too true. A little boy named Somers had his face seriously injured by coming in contact with the wire a few days after it was put up, and on Monday evening a letter from a leading legal firm was read at the Council meeting, claiming $60 damages as a result. Of course this little bill will have to be paid at once or the city will have another law suit on its hands. By the way, this last letter reminds me that several other letters claiming damages have been received by the Council during the past few months, and a much interested public would like to know how they have been disposed of.

The Presidential campaign in the United States has begun and the usual number of slanders are in circulation. There a candidate's private affairs are talked about when nothing bad enough can be said concerning his public record. President Cleveland's alleged relations with Maria Halpin were worked for all they were worth in the campaign of four years ago, but Cleveland was elected by a large majority. In the present canvass one of the arguments used against Cleveland's candidature is that he ill-treats and abuses his wife. The President and his wife were both interrogated by the ubiquitous reporter as to the truth or falsity of the story, and both denied its truth, stipulating at the time that nothing be said of their denial in the press as they preferred treating the slander with silent contempt. Mrs. Folsom, Mrs. Cleveland's mother, was, however, not so reticent. In an interview, she branded the story as a foolish campaign slander without even a shadow of foundation, and added that "she only wished all American girls were half as happy as her daughter was in the love and care of her worthy husband." These slanderous stories, no matter by whom started or for what purpose, only recoil upon those who originate them. I have no doubt but that President Cleveland will be re-elected by even a larger majority than in the election four years ago.
