

Little Points on Introduction.

The custom of withdrawing the glove in handshaking is now a thing of the past. It had its origin in the knight of the olden time taking off his iron gauntlet so as not to hurt his lady's hand and has gradually become an obsolete fashion, though one yet sees a gentleman who considers it only due a lady that he should give her his bare hand.

A young lady told me that she incurred the displeasure of a provincial acquaintance because she merely bowed instead of shaking hands with a group of girls with some of whom she had but slight acquaintance, when entering a parlor at a country afternoon tea.

They called it "putting on airs," when in fact it was their own ignorance of the social necessities of the occasion that was at fault. But the provincial young ladies evidently believed in hand-shaking as part of the code of manners.

Yet at this same gathering, my friend said the young people did not seem to see any impoliteness in whispering or giggling in the room, or rudely staring at any dress that differed from their own style.

What a very trying ordeal, too, is the loud-voiced greeting, where your hand is held and inquiry made after your welfare and that of your family, so as to be heard all over the room.

A mistake often made in social greetings is that of introducing a lady to a gentleman, which is the reverse of correct.

When the sex is the same, introduce the one you consider inferior in social position or by reason of youth, to the superior or older.

When introduced, it is etiquette to bow, but not to shake hands, and it is optional with a lady to recognize the gentleman at the next meeting.

I think I could easily tell a flirt if I saw her shake hands, from the method of that character to linger over every hand as if that particular one came nearest her affections.

In fact, there is much to be learned of human nature in the methods of social gatherings.—Christian at Work.

Well to Remember.

That cheerfulness is the weather of the heart.

That sleep is the best stimulant, a nerve safe for all to take.

That it is better to be able to say no, than to be able to read latin.

That cold air is not necessarily pure nor warm air necessarily impure.

That a cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather.

That advice is like "castor-oil, easy enough to give, but hard enough to take.

That there are men whose friends are more to be pitied than their enemies.

That wealth may bring luxuries, but that luxuries do not always bring happiness.

That grand temples are built of small stones, and great lives made up of small events.

That nature is a rag merchant who works up every shred and art and end into new creations.

That an open mind, an open hand and an open heart, would everywhere find an open door.

That it is not enough to keep the poor in mind, give them something to make them keep you in mind.

That men often preach from house-tops while the devil is crawling into the basement window.

That life's real heroes and heroines are those who bear their own burdens bravely and give a helping hand to those around them.

That hasty words often rankle in the wound which injury gives, and that soft words assuage it: forgiving cures, and forgetting takes away the scar.

Love and Law.

He: "It was natural, you know, that I should be attracted to you."

She (shyly): "Indeed. Why?"

He: "Well, you know, your brother studied law in the same office with me and we were admitted to the bar together."

She: "But what has that to do with me?"

He: "Why, don't you see, I looked upon him as a brother-in-law?"

She (blushing): "Oh! I see."

He: "Yes, a brother-in-law de jure, as it were. Now I propose that he shall be a brother-in-law de facto as well."

Then he slipped the engagement ring on her finger and their heads came close together and the parian Cupid on the mantel looked as if he was about to clap his wings and crow.—Boston Courier.

A Desperate Man.

Uncle Mose, looking like the picture of despair, called at the office of Dr. Perkins Sooner.

"You are not looking well to-day, Uncle Mose."

"I ain't feeling well. I've de mos' miserable niggah in de hull State ob Texas."

"What seems to be the matter?"

"Fosh de last eight days I've had sich pains all ober my body dat I've soured on dis world. I wants to get out ob it, so I tole my ole ooman dis mornin' dat I was gwinter come to you, no matter what happened. I've less desperate, I is."—Texas Siftings.
