NORTHLAND PROBLEM

Mobile Cooker Seen Answer To Dog Food

AKLAVIK, N.W.T. (CP)—The industrial division of the northern affairs department is steamed up about a mobile pressure cooker which, project officer Tim Nicholl says, will provide Eskimo hunters with instant dog food.

In the face of a seven-dog team appetite of 50 fish a day, the nomadic northern hunter has a problem as serious as a space - race nation without a solid fuel for its rockets. The dogs can't stand up under the heavy load of food they should carry for a long trip.

Storage is another problem, Mr. Nicholl said in an interview in the heart of this hunting and trapping country. Although fish are plentiful and easy to catch in summer, "a great deal of money is spent every year on imported dog foods."

"Where and how do you store that much fish — at least 500 tons—and keep it from rotting before winter in a settlement such as Aklavik?"

To solve the problems, the northern affairs department has produced a fish deduction plant to dehydrate the fish and turn it to meal.

SIMPLE TO RUN

The idea for a floating, mobile plant sprang full - blown from a joint brainstorming session by the northern affairs and fisheries departments. The plant is simple to run, says Mr. Nicholl, is light — about 10½ tons—equipped with steam and electricity and can be moved easily from site to site along the Arctic coastline.

The plant went into operation this year and has involved only a handful of Eskimos so far. Backed by government money, it is expected to attract so many dog - owners that eventually the supermarkets' grind-your-own coffee principle will be invoked and Eskimos will cook their own fish meal.

Somehow, Mr. Nicholl says, it will be the nucleus of a native-owned co - operative, profitable and self-sufficient.

Nor has the Eskimo housewife been forgotten. The floating cauldron also is to produce fish flour, an important additive in modern baking products, an edible oil, and if necessary, whole food for human consumption.

Nehru Says Situation Confused

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said here Communist Chinese frontline troops in the Himalayas may have thinned out, but they have not pulled back. He told the Indian parliament the situation is rather confused.

"There are signs of withdrawal in the rear—in the front positions they might have thinned out, but they have not withdrawn," Nehru said.

Chinese and Indian sources have reported Chinese troops were returning north in the Himalayas on the eastern sector. An authoritative Indian source in Tezpur at the Himalayan foothills said Sunday they had moved back 20 miles at some points in partial fulfilment of the Peking-called cease-fire and withdrawal proclamation of Nov. 21.

Nehru did not go into that. Standard tactics might call for some combat units to cover the abandonment of occupied territories and form a rear guard for the march back.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♥
Pass	1NT	Pass	3♥
Pass	4♥

Opening lead—king of clubs.

The declarer sometimes finds he has all the tricks he needs to make the contract and yet can't cash them because he has insufficient communication between his own hand and dummy's. This problem of entries may be impossible to solve in a particular hand, but there are some deals where a little ingenuity provides the answer.

South was in four hearts and West led two top clubs, East discarding a diamond on the second one. West then made the best defensive play of a low club, which East ruffed and South overruffed.

At this point the declarer had good reason to believe he would make the contract without difficulty, since he had ten tricks consisting of five hearts, four spades and a diamond, but when he led the ace of hearts and East showed out, the problem of cashing them all assumed serious proportions.

Declarer realized that if he drew trumps first, he would be unable to return to his hand to cash the jack of spades, while if he attempted to cash the A-K-Q of spades first, it was practically certain that West would trump one of them.

Faced with this dilemma, South came forth with an unusual play that succeeded in making the contract. He decided to play East for the king of diamonds because it was improbable that West would have passed originally with the A-K-Q-10-3 of clubs and the diamond king as well.

Accordingly, South drew three more rounds of trumps, discarding the ace of diamonds from dummy on the last one! He then cashed the A-K-Q of spades, reducing his hand to the jack of spades and the Q-3 of diamonds.

When he now led the ten of diamonds from dummy, East had had it. East could not prevent declarer from winning two of the last three tricks. In the actual case, East took the ten of diamonds with the king, but he then had to concede the last two tricks to the jack of spades and queen of diamonds.

Bridge is an easy game.

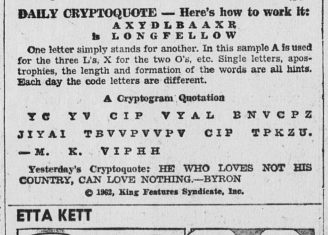
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
