Comments On Article Re U. S. Potato Program

American potato growers have annually overproduced their production of 350 million bushels by various amounts up to as high as 134 million bushels during the past eight years in spite of controls and that, it is agreed, is why the American Potato Support Program failed to work, commented Mr. E. D. Reid, manager of the P. E. I. Potato Growers Association, yesterday in an article entitled 'The Great Potato Scandal' appearing in the current issue of Collier's magazine.

The article, written by Mr. Gordon Schendel, charges that while the American Government operating under their potato support program buys up and dumps millions of bushels of potatoes, Canadian potatoes are flooding the U. S. market and adding $18,000,000 to the American tax bill.

Following up his first statement Mr. Reid said that during the past eight years Canada has continued supplying the usual seed requirements of the United States.

In fact from U. S. statistics, he added, it can be shown that the ratio of Canadian seed exports to that of American production was no greater during the past five years than it was prior to the institution of their support program in 1942.

Mr. Reid quoted figures from a United States Tariff Commission booklet entitled 'Summaries of Tariff Information' which listed the ratio of potato imports to production in percentages as follows: 1936, 7.1 percent; 1938, 11.6 percent; 1940, 4.0 percent; 1942, 5.1 percent; 1944, 6.6 percent; 1946, 5.7 percent.

Clies Production Figures Regarding charges in the article, wherein it is maintained that the American producer reduced acreage while the Canadian producer increased and caused a surplus in the United States, he quoted the following figures for Canadian potato production during the past seven years:

1943, 533,000 acres; 1944, 535,000 acres; 1945, 508,000 acres; 1946, 502,000 acres; 1947, 497,000 acres; 1948, 508,000 acres; 1949, 510,000 acres; 1950, estimated less than 500,000 acres.

Expect Review Of U. K. Exports To Soviet Union

LONDON, Aug. 28 (Reuters)—An early Cabinet review of British machine-tool exports to Russia was predicted today in political quarters, following Winston Churchill's broadcast statement Saturday night that British industrialists were disturbed over having to fill Soviet contracts.

It was reported that the subject was raised today when Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Arthur Bottomley, Overseas Trade Minister, met in London.

Bottomley said yesterday that Britain, in supplying goods to Russia, had been careful to withhold any "of strategic priority."

A study of official trade figures showed that in the first seven months of 1950, Britain exported about 475,000 pounds worth of machine tools to Russia.

In his broadcast, Churchill cited a manufacturer whose plant was making tools for Russia "of the class required for the manufacture and repair of tanks." Churchill urged that such exports be banned.

Today, the manufacturer mentioned by Churchill, Joseph Greenwood, chairman of Craven Brothers of Manchester, wrote a letter to the British Government expressing concern over the Soviet contracts. He said "it is a horrible thought" that the specialized production capacity of his firm was tied up with Russian contracts "when we want to help Britain's rearmament drive."

Greenwood, who has received many congratulatory messages on his action in approaching Churchill, said in his letter to the Government: "In any drive to rearm Britain, Craven Brothers must have a place of importance. With more than 1,000,000 pounds worth of work to be done under contract for Russia and her satellite countries, we cannot contribute so much as a split pin for three years."

He said his firm alone would have to supply more than 100,000 pounds worth of vital tools to the Soviet before the end of the year unless the Government called for a suspension of the existing contracts.

Speaking of the Russian inspectors, allowed under contract terms to see the work being carried out, he told a reporter: "There is much that a man with an expert eye can see in a works like ours."

"If we are making a secret cigarette machine we might hide ourselves away in a cellar. When you are handling something that is perhaps 100 feet in length and 100 tons in weight it is another matter."

The representative of an important engineering trade organization said he thought that supervision of Russian inspections at British factories could well be tightened.

At present they visited factories as guests, and often saw operations that had no bearing on their own contracts, he said.

Miss America Most Likely Village Girl

By JAMES P. HACKETT ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP)—There are more good-looking girls in small towns than in big cities.

And that's not because there are more small towns than there are big cities, either.

Proof of this beauty pudding is in the looking. It's getting on to Miss America time again and this year most of the entrants are from small towns.

Oh yes, there are some big city girls in the contest. As usual, 54 girls will compete in the Miss America pageant from Sept. 4 to Sept. 9. They'll represent 46 states (Rhode Island and West Virginia are missing); four cities, Washington, D. C., New York, Philadelphia and Chicago; and Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

They will vie for the Miss America title won last year by Jacqueline Mercer of Phoenixville, Ariz. The winner will be dubbed "Miss America, 1951" instead of "1950."

The change was made so the title would be up to date during the reign of the winner.

To get back to the small town beauty, here's a preview on some of the girls.

Did a girl from Cleveland or Cincinnati win the "Miss Ohio" title? No, sir, it was 19-year-old Irene Farrer of Grand River, How about Louisiana? New Orleans, you say. None. It's Rowena Telfer of Winsboro who represents the state.

Canada's entrant is 19-year-old Margaret Eleanor Bradford of Windsor, Ont. (pop. 105,000).

From Alaska One girl went a long way to get into the Miss America contest. She's Maxine Cothran, born in Portales, New Mexico, 23 years ago. She attended Graceland College at Lamoni, Iowa, and will come to the pageant from Fairbanks, Alaska, as that territory's first competitor.

Of the first 45 girls selected to compete there are 24 brunettes, 16 blondes, four black-haired and one red-haired.

To get the judges' nod as Miss America, the winner must not only please with figure and face, but she must show poise, personality and talent. All the girls are judged on that basis, the public viewing the figure, poise and talent. Figures are revealed in bathing suits, poise in evening gowns and talent on the stage of huge Convention Hall.

Face has taken on less importance in recent years, much to the dismay of spectators. Many voice their disappointment in the selection of Miss America, arguing any number of other girls are "prettier." The judges mark score cards on personality after breakfasting three mornings with the contestants. During the public showing, the scorecards are marked for figure, poise and talent.

The 15 girls with the highest number of points become finalists. They are scored all over again until five are chosen. From the five, Miss America is selected.

BANK FAILURES There have been 26 bank failures in Canada since confederation, the last in 1923.

Calif. Woman Wins Canadian Open Golf Title

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28 (CP)—Dot Kieley of Los Angeles won the Canadian women's open golf championship here Saturday, her second major golf title in three weeks.

Miss Kieley defeated the defending champion, Grace De Moss of Corvallis, Ore., 5 and 4 in a scheduled 36-hole final over the St. Charles Golf Club course. The Los Angeles star three weeks ago won the women's division title at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter — billed as the world championship amateur tournament.

Her victim was Frank Stranahan, millionaire son of a millionaire father, who pushed his tee shot out of bounds on the 337-yard 36th hole and then gamely played out the hole in hopes of staying even. They finished the hole with Urzetta getting a par five and Stranahan a six.

For the long day, Urzetta was even with the par of 71 while Stranahan was one over.

The golf of the two combatants differed as greatly as their financial backgrounds. Urzetta, who paid for a part of his schooling by caddying, was quick but straight from tee to pin. Stranahan, born with a golden putter in his mouth, was deliberate but erratic.

The defeat was bitter to Stranahan, who has toured the world since the war hunting golf victories. Winner of the 1953 British amateur title, he wanted the amateur links crown of his own country to go with it. It always has eluded him.

Sammy Urzetta Wins U. S. Amateur Golf Championship

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 28 (AP)—Sammy Urzetta, son of a Rochester, N. Y. janitor, won the United States amateur golf championship Saturday on the 39th hole of the longest match ever played to decide the title.

His victim was Frank Stranahan, millionaire son of a millionaire father, who pushed his tee shot out of bounds on the 337-yard 36th hole and then gamely played out the hole in hopes of staying even. They finished the hole with Urzetta getting a par five and Stranahan a six.
