DEIGHAN-CAMERON WEDDING

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Summerside, was the scene of a pretty wedding on July 26, when Gladys Ellen Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cameron of Ellis River, Lot 16, became the bride of James Wallace Deighan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deighan, formerly of Harmony, but now of Summerside. Rev. W. Eric Ingraham of Kensington officiated.

The bride was charming in her floor length wedding gown of white net over satin with a long sleeve jacket of Chantilly lace with a tiny Peter Pan collar, and a full skirt. Her waist length veil was held in place with a matching head band and she carried a nosegay of mauve chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Elwin Adams as bridesmaid was gowned in pink crystal with matching headband and she carried a nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Elwin Adams was groomsmen.

A reception for the immediate friends of the family was held at the home of the bride's parents. Photo by Heckbert Studio.

The sleeves were short with manchettes tapering over the hands. Her chapel length veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a pearl and diamond coronet. She carried a cascade of white and pink sweetheart roses, from which fell rose decorated white satin streamers.

The bride was attended by Mrs. James Arkwright, R.N. of Dartmouth, N.S. as matron of honor. Twin sisters Ellen Woolridge, R.N. and Marion Woolridge, R.N., Hamilton, Ont., were bridesmaids. All were former classmates of the bride.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in blue and white flowered nylon ballerina length dresses with blue organza cummerbunds looped into bows in the back. Their hats were heart shaped and of blue nylon with bows in the back. They carried nosegays of blue and white carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Joe Hoyt of Fredericton, N.B. The ushers were Harry Norton of Charlottetown and Wendell MacKinnon, brother of the bride from Ottawa, Ont.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a chemise styled sheath with a trap-eze at back of the bodice in an all over floral design in shades of green. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother was attired in an afternoon dress of navy blue lace in sheath style. She wore a matching picture hat in the same shade of blue. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the Charlottetown Hotel. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Alex Scott and responded to by the groom. The groom proposed a toast to the bridesmaids which was responded to on behalf of the bridesmaids by the best man, Joe Hoyt, who also read numerous telegrams of best wishes.

The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake encircled with sweetheart roses. Tall lighted white tapers in silver candelabra were used.

Miss Cheryl Paquette of Summerside, was in charge of the guest book.

Amid flowers of confetti and well wishes of friends the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Smith's Cove, Digby, N.S. The bride chose for travelling a sheath dress in gray and flame with matching duster with white accessories. She wore a corsage of white roses.

Lovely Summer Wedding Held At Trinity Church

Trinity United Church was the scene of a beautiful summer wedding on Saturday, July 26th, when at 2:00 p.m. Joan Katherine MacKinnon, R.N. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Allison MacKinnon, became the bride of Norman Hearty Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Wilson, both of Charlottetown.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Frank MacLean. Miss Audrey Horne, R.N. sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony and "O, Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Royston F. Mifflord, A.R.C.O. presided at the organ.

The church was attractively decorated for the occasion with baskets of summer flowers.

Given in marriage, by her father the bride looked lovely in a gown of bridal tulle. The bell shaped skirt drifted to a cypress. Garden length handkerchief rosepoint Chantilly lace decorated with pearls enhanced the Princess Empire bodice which closed in the back with tiny covered buttons.

The sleeves were short with manchettes tapering over the hands. Her chapel length veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a pearl and diamond coronet. She carried a cascade of white and pink sweetheart roses, from which fell rose decorated white satin streamers.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Peyton Place Is More Sorrowful Than Sordid

Nine summer days these are warm and pleasant, but already in the fields companies of birds foregather, to plan for their south ern trek, and in the border, last flowers of the year now bud or bloom. Before long in this location "down by the old millstream" our delicate blossoms will droop at the blight of first frost. But how pretty they were today: the warm-hued velvety nasturtiums, the dahlias and sweet peas, the hollyhocks and marigolds and all those familiar flowers that make the lawn so colorful now.

With thoughts that wandered on ahead through the seasons to picture the joys of another springtime, we set out in a shady nook in the border today, several roots of new iris, among them a pink one we hope to see blossom.

And going back in mind to the past spring, we recalled how pretty the hyacinths had been, quaint and colorful among the tulips and daffodils, and remembering, we resolved to plant more of these in the autumn planting that we hope to make.

Now with the approaching week end comes the close of the children's holidays. The shadow of school days-a not unpleasant one, fell for a moment across the sun of today when Mack remarked, "I should by rights go to town in the morning to pick up the new school books I'll need in the new Grade" He is to step into grade four this term. Tomorrow morning "at one minute after ten, to be exact" he will set foot into something else, to him, also satisfying and new.

"About another month of summer" someone commented today "and then the shades of autumn!" "Meanwhile some farmers in the district are at the harvest and the harvest-colors continue to brighten in ours.

This afternoon, when chance shaped the way for us, we attended the current showing of the picture "Peyton Place" in the city. True, it was a certain curiosity took us, a wonder as to whether or not our old-time rearing, and somewhat old-fashioned outlook on life could meet with any equanimity the suspected more and less scandalous story portrayed. In our reflections now, we think that advertising has certainly become a fine art! Nothing is ever quite so good-or so bad as it leads us to expect.

We remember now of the picture of the exceedingly beautiful locale against which it was filmed, and "Peyton Place" itself, an attractive town set down in a pretty countryside. The seasons-all four were faultlessly pictured and through them the chosen characters moved in an interesting procession as the story more sorrowful, unfolded on the screen.

Sad, yes, and not altogether fictional, but too often true to life in a world of humans with its various sinings and sorrows. More than one moral it taught.

Peyton Place? The book we know nothing about. The picture however, was to our mind, one it would be good for anyone come to "the years of understanding" to see.

VISITORS AND NATIVE BORN ALL PRAISE P.E.I.

The Island, a mostly modest lady we would say is being the recipient of many nice compliments these days. We hear them on every hand and are pleased as all Islanders must be to know that others besides her own children can and do appreciate her charms.

"I've been 'all over'" a visitor said today "and truthfully I can say I have never yet seen a n y other place that can draw me back to it as the Island does. Is-land born? Oh no. A stranger, though not entirely one, now that I spend every summer here, and I've never seen the countryside look better, than it does this year, the fields and trees-all so green and pretty."

Her charms...and her health-giving properties. "No, I'm not an Islander" one from another Province replied to our query this morning. "But" she added with a chuckle "I'm next best! I married one. And more than once my visits here with him have saved my life.

Yes, actually, I've been the despair of my doctors, 'ailing and miserable. But after a spell down here on the farm, I'm a new woman. I don't know what virtue, the Island has-possibly 't's the clean fresh air and the sunshine. Or maybe it's the quiet, that's so healing. Whatever it is, 'she smiled happily' it works like magic on me."

"Yes indeed, we like it here-it's nice!" one of three bright and much-travelled English boys, who have spent recent years in India told us today, obviously pleased with their Island holidaying in the Park area by the shore. With this their first visit "we are able to say now that we've been to every province in Canada."

"It is my hope" a visitor from eastern U.S. commented when with her and others one day we talked of some angles of our tourist industry, "that the Island doesn't try to ape other summer centres we know. We don't want it to be noisy Coney Island sort-of-place. We can if we choose, holiday in one or another of thousand of those."

We like it here because of the leisurely pace of the living. There is its charm for us and I'm confident for everyone who comes here to rest body and soul in its way!"

"Or else" another warned with a smile "we'll just have to search for it elsewhere!"

"You don't know how much I'm enjoying this" one from a distant bustling city offered one day of the having. Shoulders bare and tanned by his visit he was helping make hay on a farm of his kin. "When I'm here" he explained "time seems to stand still. I've not a care in the world. The only worry is to get the hay made and under cover and what does that amount to in good weather like this! There's no big deal depend-and on it" he grinned boyishly. "It's only to make fodder for the cows."

So the Island calls over distances to her own and stranger to come and be her guest through the holiday season. May they find that relaxation here that will return them home the better in mind and body to take up again the duties that are theirs! And "Au Revoir!" the Island says at parting. "Until next summer!" she smiles.
