Hanlan in Training.

Edward Hanlan has informed an Australian newspaper man, that his system of training for his races on the Paramatta river is as follows: "I don't attach so much importance to diet as some people do. I am not a teetotaller, but I drink precious little, and I sometimes smoke a cigar, but not often. At the same time, I am pretty certain that a man is a great deal better, as a rule, without alcohol or stimulants of any kind. When I am in training, my ordinary system is this: I get up tolerably early in the morning, and go out for two hours' walk before breakfast. For breakfast I have a chop or a steak, underdone, and a cup of tea, and two or three slices of dry toast. Sometimes I have milk, and sometimes I don't, but when I am taking weight off, I use as little milk and sugar and butter as I can possibly do with, because they all help to make flesh. After breakfast I have an hour and a half's walk, and then into the boat about 10.30 o'clock, and row seven or eight miles up the river or lake, as the case may be. Then I have dinner about half past twelve, composed of roast lamb or roast beef, or something of that sort, but very little vegetables, or as little as I can get along with, because they are fattening, and of course it is no good putting flesh on to have to row it off again. Sometimes I have a glass of ale, sometimes tea, sometimes water, or anything I particularly care for. I do not confine myself to any one particular thing. After dinner I have a two hours' walk; another seven or eight miles spin in the boat, and then at 6 o'clock I have tea, composed of boiled chicken, or a light chop, or something like that. After each meal I generally take about an hour's rest, when I do my correspondence, read the newspapers or a book, or some light change of occupation like that, because I have found that it is not a good plan to go into hard work on a full stomach. I take another walk after tea for a couple of hours; come back about ten, go to bed, and after three or four weeks of this training, I generally feel fit to jump over a house. Sometimes I take a long run for ten or fifteen miles, running, perhaps three or four miles, then slacking into a walk, and then running again. I am a pretty good runner when in form, and have done mile in 4m. 50s. in my sweaters. My sweaters consist of heavy flannels, heavy pair of drawers, knee breeches, stout muffler around my neck, and good warm clothing all over. I take a little stick in each hand, and travel along at such a space in this extraordinary costume that people who see me training must sometimes wonder who on earth and what I am. The effect of this is to bring down flesh with a vengeance, and I can assure you that I have sometimes returned from an hour and a half's spin of that kind in the sweaters, weighing ten pounds less than when I started.

Extraordinary Achievement.

The steamer R. F. Matthews of London, Capt. Mill, from New Orleans for Hamburg with a general cargo, arrived at Halifax.

Sailed 15th ult., bound to Halifax for bunker coal. Had fine weather first four days, the next three experienced a heavy northerly gale. On the 23rd, the weather moderated. At 8 p. m. that day, when taking soundings on the north-east end of George's bank, the propellor got adrift and lay hard against the rudder post. Next day, being fine, we spent in an attempt to reship the propeller, by aid of ship's boats, but failed. The propeller was then secured with chains, and all sail was made, and the ship bore for Halifax with light S. E. wind. During the night, (24th) it became calm. Next day a strong breeze from the N. E., with heavy sea, was encountered. The ship was braced up on the starboard tack, standing to the northward, making no headway but drifting to the leeward. Her position was afterwards ascertained to be 30 miles west of Seal Island. On the night of the 26th, the wind was still in the same quarter with a thick fog. The course was altered to the southward until noon Sunday, when the wind increased from N. E. At that time the steamer Dorian was sighted, signalled, and asked to tow us to Halifax. She consented. After considerable difficulty from the sea, lines were run between the two ships, a line from each ship. But before the steamer got in tow, both howsers parted. Another attempt was made with four hawsers. After towing a quarter of a mile, two wire hawsers parted. But before leaving, she attempted to tow our bow around to westward, assisted by the head sails, when the two remaining hawsers, manilla, parted. She then proceeded. When they steered for Boston. On the 28th instant we were becalmed in a thick fog 30 miles N. N. E. of Cultivator's shoals. That was our opportunity. We lowered boats and examining propeler, and at once determined to make an effort to get the propeller on the shaft. This we succeeded in accomplishing at 10 a. m., after great difficulty. By cautiously working the engines ahead the propellor was worked on. We then steamed slowly for Halifax, with fine weather until within 50 miles S. W. of Sambro, when a heavy gale from northward was encountered."

The Matthews was docked at Roche's wharf yesterday with the assistance of two tugs. After discharging sufficient cargo aft, the coffedam will be used. This shipping of the propellor is considered an extraordinary achievement and unprecedent in the annals of steam navigation. Great credit is due Capt. Mill and crew.

BAIT OF THE AVERAGE FISHERMAN.

This is the bait the fishermen take, the fishermen take, when they start out the fish to wake so early in the morning. They take a nip before they go—a good one, oh! and long and slow, for fear the chills will lay them low, so early in the morning. Another when they're on the street, they repeat each time they meet for "luck"—for that's the way to greet a fisher in the morning. And when they're on the river's brink, again they drink without a wink—to fight malaria they think it proper in the morning. They tip a flask with true delight when there's a bite; if fishing's light they smile the more till jolly tight, all fishing they are scorning. Another as they depart; one at the mart and one to part, but none when to house they dart, expecting some in morning. This is the bait the fishermen try who fishes buy prices high, tell each a bigger lie of fishing in the morning.

THE FATAL GLASS.

There's danger in the glass. Beware lest it enslaves. They who have drained it find, alas! too often, early graves. It sparkles to allure, With its rich, ruby light; There is no antidote or cure. Only its course to fight. It changes men to brutes; Makes women bow their head; Fills homes with anguish, want, disputes. And takes from children bread. Then dash the glass away, And from the serpent flee? Drink pure cold water day by day And walk God's footstool free!

THE OLD ELM TREE.

As I sat beneath an old elm tree, the wind went whistling by. It bent its boughs and softly breathed the following with a sigh: "I have lived here for many-a-year and seen the summer come and go. The spring time with its flowers and rain, the autumn with its fruit and grain, the winter with its chilling blast, when with snow and ice the skies are overcast. In summer time beneath my shade have children often played, and, oh, how oft, beneath my boughs, have lovers renewed their plighted vows, and many a time the old and feeble have sought my shade to smoke their pipes, or ply the needle; and thus it's been; with smiles and tears I have watched them come and go for three score years, and many a tale I could tell of what in that time befell. But age is creeping o'er my head, and I fear my roots are getting dead: and soon I will wither and decay like those who sought my shade each day.

THE DONKEY'S DREAM

A donkey laid him down to sleep,
And as he slept and snored full deep,
He was observed (strange sight) to weep,
As if in anguish mood.

A gentle mule that lay near by
The donkey raised; and with a sigh
And kindly voice enquired why
Those tears did exude.

The donkey, while he trembled o'er,
And dropped cold sweat from every core,
Made answer in a fearful roar:
"I dreamed I was a dude!"

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

Bone Rheumatic Liniment

IT is a fact worth knowing that Mrs. Sophia Potter's Bone Rheumatic Liniment cannot be excelled for removing pain and soreness. It is no worthless trash, as some may suppose, simply because they have been imposed upon by others but is positively the "King of Pain." Sore throat cannot stand before its power.

All we ask is a trial that you may be convinced of the truth of our statement. Our experience is that one bottle tried also sells many more.
