Home Guard No. 2 held its shoot last evening. The attendance was a record one and though many new shots were present the average was better than the last shoot. This looks well for the acquirement of skill in handling a rifle. This is the skill that every Canadian capable of bearing arms should possess. Below is the result:

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK FEVERISH CHILD

If little stomach is sour, liver torpid or bowels clogged.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disorders.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give the delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one. If full of cold, or sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrup. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

SPLENDID SEND-OFF

one would look to them to show that the old enthusiasm in the militia here, especially in regard to the Artillery, had not waned, and that it was as deep and strong as ever it was in the past. He would remind them of the words of Tennyson: "Live pure, speak true, right wrong," and he would say to the citizens who remained behind, not to believe too readily every tale that would tend to malign any of the men of this province who were going to Halifax and who were doing as much for the British Empire and the British Crown in filling the garrison there as if they were fighting in the trenches in France. On behalf of the boys he would say that they appreciated highly what the ladies had done for them that evening, and also to thank Professor Watkins and the other entertainers. He also thanked Col. Peake for the use of the Armouries.

Colonel Peake in a few remarks, in which he referred to the fact that Dr Fullerton was always the man behind the gun in matters like that evening's entertainment, and also spoke of the fitness of Capt. McKinnon and Lieut. Bayer for their position, urged in conclusion as the watchword of the men, "Discipline."

Capt. McKinnon then thanked the speakers for the remarks of appreciation which they made in reference to himself and his fellow officer, and moved a vote of thanks to the ladies and those who had helped to make the programme interesting.

Lieut. Bayer seconded the motion, adding that one speaker had suggested that the soldiers had been chosen because of their good looks, but that he would inform them that they would not find as good looking girls in Halifax as those who honoured them that evening. (Laughter.)

The vote was unanimously carried. At this stage Mayor Sterns entered the room and was requested by the chairman to address the men. His Worship, after referring to the fine physique of the soldiers and their excellent drill, stated that they could justly proud of the fact that this province had sent more men, proportionately, to the war than any other province in the Dominion. He wished the men there that evening good luck and God-speed.

Capt. F. E. McNutt here announced that he had received two letters from England, one from Major McKay stating that the soldiers from Souris and Montague had arrived safely and would go as a reinforcement to the contingent already at the front.

With the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King, the gathering then dispersed, and the officers for the King and also for the officers.

MOUNTED RIFLES DEPART.

The Prince Edward Island members of the Canadian Mounted Rifles who have volunteered for overseas service left Charlottetown at 10 o'clock yesterday for Amherst, where mobilisation takes place. They crossed to the mainland by the Minto, which left Georgetown at noon on arrival of the special train from here.

Although the public had short notice of the departure of the contingent, there was a very large crowd at the station, and the boys were given a rousing cheer as the train moved out. They were escorted from the Armouries to the station by the Artillery under command of Capt. McKinnon and 55th Battalion of Infantry under command of Capt. G. H. Campbell. There was a great turnout of the band, but the men marched to the roll of the drums. The complete list of the men appeared in Monday's Guardian.

LIBERAL RETRENCHMENT EXPLAINED

buying cars liberally and he had a method of his own of getting it done, a method he said he had employed very successfully under the late Government, and he recommended to the good Tories in the county of Pictou to try their own hand with this Government and see if they could not get an order in order to satisfy the growing demand for work of the people of the county of Pictou.

"The coal companies are slack just now, but they say another difficulty is that when they do have orders they cannot get sufficient cars to carry these orders. Here, again, is this Government with its characteristic stupidity."

Mr. MACDONALD: "Hear, hear."

Mr. MEIGHEN: "Now I will give an example of the stupidity:

"They gave a 180-car order. Why did they not make 500 or 1,000 cars for the Intercolonial."

"Economy and retrenchment."

"Here is the method by which he got the Government to fly in the face of the opinion of the Minister of Railways that 180 cars additional were sufficient for the purpose. Here is his method of suggesting to the people of Pictou, a well-tried method of forcing the Government to do as he wished."

"The good Tories should have got down after this Government and made them give an order. I would have done that and would have got the order or have known the reason why."

"That was the apostle and the great prophet of retrenchment and reform, preaching the gospel to the county of Pictou."

Macdonald and the C. N. R.

Mr. Macdonald in his charge of reckless extravagance, has included among his complaints the alleged expenditure of $45,000,000 on the Canadian Northern Railway. As Mr. Meighen pointed out, there was no expenditure on the Canadian Northern. It was Mr. Macdonald's somewhat free and easy way of referring to the bond guarantee given by Parliament last year. But on this subject too he had something to say at Trenton, "where," as pointed out again by the Solicitor-General, "he expected the extension of the Canadian Northern Railway would be of service to his constituency."

"What," asked Mr. Meighen, "were his remarks about this Canadian Northern? Did he criticise us for our prodigality, for our waste of the public resources? No, he did let out a method; and I am going to give the House his method and ask the House to consider whether a more beautiful method of pursuing the policy of retrenchment and reform could possibly have been devised than that recommended to the people of Pictou county by the hon. member for that constituency. Speaking of the Canadian Northern railway he said:

"One hundred million dollars more will be needed to complete the road. This is the situation. They will need 52 millions more to pay their debts and complete the road."

"This is what the Government said. We will not loan you a dollar, but we will guarantee your bonds and you get out and sell them. If the bonds sell at the same rate as the last did they will net the company about 41 millions of dollars, and out of this Mackenzie, Mann & Company are expected to go out and pay debts of 152 millions and spend 100 millions more to complete the road. Now is it any wonder that no man who has looked into this proposition can see anything but folly in it. The Liberal members then dispersed, and the officers for the King and also for the officers."

A Hundred Millions.

The policy of retrenchment and reform in the field of railway enterprise recommended to this country is a duplication of that hideous nightmare, the Transcontinental. He goes on: "This enterprise must go on. We need the railway. My hon. friend said that we should have control of the road, not own it, and let us be able to say that we are the masters and not the servants. The reason I loved the six months' hold in the House was that the scheme was worthless. It was providing 40 millions of dollars where 152 millions were needed. What was the use talking about questions in that way."

"That is not the way statesmen deal with a question, a six months' hold means a direct negative to the proposition, and holding that that was not the right way to handle it, and that was the way I moved the six months' hold."

"It was not open for us—"

"This Was His Policy."

"He had to offer some apology for not suggesting this largesse policy to Parliament. Here is his policy:

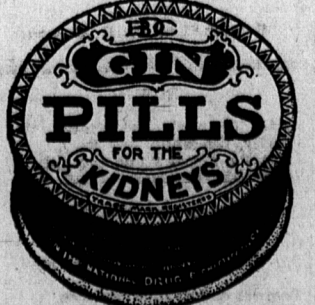

"It was not open for us to move that a hundred million dollars be given. That cannot come from the Opposition. It must come from the Government."

"Will the right hon. leader of the Opposition be good enough to join in the solemn assurance of the hon. member for Pictou that if the people of Canada will in the illumination of their intellect only reinstate into office the Liberal party, that party will put into force a policy of retrenchment and reform that will mean something like the duplication of their work on the Transcontinental railway? They found fault with the Minister of Finance for drawing attention to the Transcontinental. Is there an gentleman opposite who, seeing what he sees to-day, would load the Transcontinental on the back of Canada?"

The Wavering White Plume.

The Macdonald exposure was one of those to which politicians of a certain class in Canada lay themselves open, more especially in their acrobatic efforts to support the ever-varying policies of the Liberal party. But it is only a new chapter in an old story. Inconsistency, opportunism, these have always been the characteristics of the Liberal course since 1839. Liberal members who follow the white plume, must necessarily come back over their tracks from time to time as the plume is blown hither and thither by every little wind that seems to blow in the direction of a momentary partisan advantage. Macdonald of Pictou is as great a sinner as his colleagues on the Opposition benches, but no greater than the others, Laurier, Pugsley, and their kind. Liberal policies are all as ephemeral as was the short-lived free food policy declared by Laurier at Hamilton, "the policy I give you at this moment."

"Still, Macdonald ought to be just a little more careful, even though he cannot see himself as others see him."

Operation Decided On As Only Means of Relief

But the Writer of This Letter Resolved to Try Dr. Chase's Ointment First and Was Cured.

This is not an isolated case, for we frequently hear from people who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

After physicians had told them nothing short of an operation could bring relief and cure.

If you could read these letters, coming as they do, day after day and year after year, you would realize what a wonderful curative agent Dr. Chase's Ointment really is. Few ailments are more annoying or more persistently torturing than piles, and when this suffering is promptly relieved by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment there can be no doubt as to where credit is due.

Friends and neighbors are told of the results and so the good word spreads, and Dr. Chase's Ointment is becoming known far and wide as the only actual cure for piles or hemorrhoids. Mr. Charles Beauvais, a respected citizen of St. John's, Que., writes: "For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles or hemorrhoids and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a well-known physician who could not help me, and my doctor decided on an operation as the only means of relief. However, I resolved to try Dr. Chase's Ointment first. The first box brought me great relief, and by the time I had used three boxes I was completely cured. This is why I give me such great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to everybody suffering from hemorrhoids as a preparation of the greatest value."
