

General Government in Confidence

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber. The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion. Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion.

Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion.

Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion.

Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion.

Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

It would have overturned the government if it had been approved by the House. In the formal roll-call vote, 16 of the 71 NDP members and all of the 71 Conservative members in the chamber voted for the motion.

Opposed were 115 Liberal, 12 Creditistes, five Social Credit members and Frank Howard (NDP) who abstained.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's minority government won an easy 134 to 87 victory Friday in the first non-confidence vote of the new parliamentary session.

There was never much doubt about the outcome of the vote, watched by only about 100 spectators in the 400-seat gallery seats overlooking the chamber.

The issue was a motion moved Thursday by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas. Criticism of the government for not including a medical care measure in its current legislative program.

Drama At Sea Described

NEW YORK (AP)—British sailors from the freighter Ambassador struggled a x in a t mountainous sea and hurricane winds to reach an Italian liner before the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members. The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Passengers and the captain of the Italian liner flagship told of the hours they remained at the flooded freighter's side Tuesday, prevented by the storm from rescuing the Ambassador's 35 crew members.

The 7,900-ton freighter finally sank early today while being towed toward the Azores by a Dutch tug.

Witnesses described the ordeal Friday.

"We saw one who tried to climb, but he fell into the water," said Anthony Malmore, a Jewer from Milan, who arrived here aboard the Leonardo da Vinci.

"We never saw him again," Malmore said.

Aussies See Crazy Wedding

SYDNEY (Reuters)—This Australian city saw its craziest wedding Friday. The bride wore blue jeans, a man's belt, a striped cotton shirt and was barefooted. The groom wore an open-necked shirt and casual slacks.

They were married at the Sydney registry office and had summer lunches and beer at their reception in a city hotel which is a favorite beach haunt.

Today they planned to hitch-hike 600 miles to Brisbane for the honeymoon.

"This is the way we know each other, this is the way we were married," said the bride, Mary Mitchell, 19.

The groom was Philip DeLann, 21, a student at the University of New South Wales.

Best man was a Canadian, Laurence Reza, who claimed to be a big game hunter; "I shot anything from elephants down."

"I had been a seaman myself, and this was one of the biggest dramas of the sea I have ever seen," Gilpatrick said. This ship did the utmost she could do.

Capt. Oscar Ribari said he manoeuvred within a half-mile of the badly listing Ambassador, but could not close in on her.

His 35,000-ton ship is equipped with four stabilizers, was rolling to 35 degrees.

The Leonardo da Vinci swung ropes and nets over the side as Ambassador sailors abandoned ship. Ribari said three life rafts approached three men in the first, one man in the sea at the second, and the third empty. But in the heaving sea none could come aboard.

He now under construction in New Brunswick. Mr. Matheson said he didn't want an immediate decision on whether to proceed with the project.

Mr. Matheson also said that (Continued on Page 5 Col. 5)

Gunman Fires 3 Shots At Turkish Premier

ANKARA (AP)—A Turkish constable in Ankara, Turkey, Friday, after his arrest in connection with the attempted assassination of Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu, (AP Wirephoto via cable from Ankara)

HELED ATATURK

"I hope I'll kill him!" police said. Suna showed as the gunman fired three shots at the Turkish premier.

A veteran of Turkey's angry politics, a man who helped Kemal Ataturk found modern Turkey, Inonu pulled a broadcast that was aired over the state radio.

"Nothing happened to me," he said. "I was not hurt."

He held in the attempted assassination in Meut Suna, 38, described by police as a member of the Inonu's government. Suna is a foreman of a power station in the Kayseri district, 165 miles from Ankara. He was arrested Friday night after firing three revolver shots at him from about 100 feet away. He was overpowered by security guards, but could not close in on her.

His 35,000-ton ship is equipped with four stabilizers, was rolling to 35 degrees.

The Leonardo da Vinci swung ropes and nets over the side as Ambassador sailors abandoned ship. Ribari said three life rafts approached three men in the first, one man in the sea at the second, and the third empty. But in the heaving sea none could come aboard.

He now under construction in New Brunswick. Mr. Matheson said he didn't want an immediate decision on whether to proceed with the project.

Mr. Matheson also said that (Continued on Page 5 Col. 5)

Diamond D Winners Leave For Edmonton

PRINCE EDWARD Island's representatives in the Diamond D bobsled at Edmonton, Alta., boarded a plane at the Charlottetown airport yesterday. The lady carriers from Montserrat won the Silver D bobsled, which is staged annually for the provincial women's curling championship. Shown above from left to right are: Mary Nicholson, skip; Edith Gray, mate; Connie Ings, second; and Ed Cutmore, lead. Marton Dockendorff, right, is the delegate of the P.E.I. Women's Curling Association to the national association, which will meet in Edmonton at the time of the bobsled.

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Nicholson appeared to members of Parliament in the Commons Friday to refer to any complaints that they remain constituents about a racial discrimination propaganda mailed by the party.

Mr. Nicholson said the organization has been using the mails "in the last day or two" to promote abject racial prejudice, but the post office cannot censor all the mail.

He said MPs should send him the envelopes containing the literature so they can be checked.

Robert Muir (PC)—Cape Breton North and Victoria said he had lodged a complaint several weeks ago. Justice Minister

Guy Favreau said he is having his department files on the organization reviewed.

WINNPEG (CP)—R. Rev. J. B. Mutchmor, moderator of the United Church of Canada, said Friday current and anti-semitic attacks should be investigated by the RCMP.

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

Second Juror Is Selected

DALLAS (AP)—An industrial engineer was selected Friday as the second juror in Jack Ruby's murder trial, in a stormy session in which one defence lawyer was threatened with a contempt citation.

Allen W. McCoy, 39, father of the slain president, was called in the first jury for the shooting Nov. 24 of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

He now under construction in New Brunswick. Mr. Matheson said he didn't want an immediate decision on whether to proceed with the project.

Mr. Matheson also said that (Continued on Page 5 Col. 5)

BULLETIN

MONTREAL (CP)—The RCMP announced late Friday that, in cooperation with French and United States authorities, they have made the largest seizure of drugs ever in Canada.

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

Postmaster-General Will Probe Racial Discrimination Letters

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Nicholson appeared to members of Parliament in the Commons Friday to refer to any complaints that they remain constituents about a racial discrimination propaganda mailed by the party.

Mr. Nicholson said the organization has been using the mails "in the last day or two" to promote abject racial prejudice, but the post office cannot censor all the mail.

He said MPs should send him the envelopes containing the literature so they can be checked.

Robert Muir (PC)—Cape Breton North and Victoria said he had lodged a complaint several weeks ago. Justice Minister

Guy Favreau said he is having his department files on the organization reviewed.

WINNPEG (CP)—R. Rev. J. B. Mutchmor, moderator of the United Church of Canada, said Friday current and anti-semitic attacks should be investigated by the RCMP.

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."

He said he could sense "a feeling of anguish on the part of many of the people present. They did not give two hoots for brotherhood."