To Change Status Of Crown In Damage Suits

OTTAWA, Dec. 5.—(CP)—Justice Minister Garson today gave the commonsense notice of legislation to place the crown on about the same position as private persons in damage suits.

The measure, forecast in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of parliament, would enable actions to be brought against the government as a property owner—for instance, in the case of crown property creating a nuisance. It also would widen the range of other suits.

At present, the area of actions by private persons against the government is limited. At its last session, however, parliament removed a provision calling for the crown's consent before it can be sued.

One of the clauses in the new bill, Mr. Garson's notice said, would permit "certain actions" to be taken against the government in provincial courts. The Exchequer Court of Canada now is the forum for these.

Talk With Mr. Fournier

Mayor Stewart also talked with Public Works Minister Fournier this afternoon on federal works in the Charlottetown and vicinity. After a pleasant talk for some minutes, Mr. Fournier reminded the Mayor that he had not asked about the proposed federal building in Charlottetown. Mayor Stewart explained that he had hesitated to do so because he had been told that Mr. Fournier "had emptied the treasury to erect huge federal buildings in Ottawa and the minister's riding of Hull."

Cost Of Living

Continued from page 1 than a year wholesale industrial prices strengthened and climbed during November. The wholesale index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, rose to 241.6 on Nov. 28 from 238.1 on Oct. 31.

While the new consumer price index climbed during October, the old cost-of-living index continued a four-month slide, dropping one-fifth of a point during October to 184.8 from 185. This index, which will be discarded next March, is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

The peak of both indexes was reached last December when the new prices barometer stood at 118.2 and the old one at 191.5. Reason for the contrast is a difference in gauging the seasonal influence of various food prices on the cost-of-living yardsticks.

In the new index a higher consumption of certain foods, as well as price increase, can force the index up.

Price Increases

During October prices were higher for butter, lard, eggs, oranges and most fresh vegetables. Prices declined for grapefruit, beef and lamb.

During October, prices were ranged higher for men's oxfords, women's overshoes and a few miscellaneous items. Drops were recorded for men's overcoats and parkas, fuel oil, carpets, household textiles and home-ownership costs.

In the new index, the food subgroup climbed to 115.7 from 115.1; shelter declined to 121.4 from 121.5; clothing dropped to 109.8 from 109.9; household operations slipped to 115.9 from 116.2; and other commodities and services increased to 116.6 from 116.4.

Georgetown Legion Auxiliary Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Hall on Monday, November 24th, with the president, Mrs. J. W. Lavers in the chair. Following the usual opening ceremony, roll call was responded to by nineteen members.

The secretary, Mrs. J. A. B. MacConnell read the minutes, which were moved and adopted. Mrs. Mary Yonston, treasurer, presented a very satisfactory financial report, which was adopted and a number of bills, which were presented, were voted paid. Christmas parcels were sent by the Auxiliary to three Georgetown men serving with the Canadian forces in Germany and Korea. The sick committee reported no members of the auxiliary sick.

It was decided not to hold a December meeting, due to the numerous activities during Christmas month. Mrs. J. F. DeLory, Mrs. W. A. Paterson and Mrs. J. B. Scully were appointed a nominating committee to present a slate of officers to the annual meeting in January.

It was decided that instead of making a cash donation to Christmas treats, sponsored by other organizations, that individual members, if they so desired, could make donations to the school Christmas party and such donations could be left at the home of Mrs. J. B. Scully.

The following volunteered as a lunch committee for the January meeting: Mrs. Michael Burke, Mrs. J. B. Scully and Mrs. F. J. DeLory. It was decided to send Christmas cards to veterans and any auxiliary members sick in hospital during the Christmas season. Regular monthly meeting notices will continue to be sent to members. Members will answer the roll call of the next meeting by paying one cent.

The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Lunch was then enjoyed.

But Sees

The General's Constellation carried a double crew of 20 so a rested hand would always be at every control. Eisenhower did not leave the plane until it reached Iwo Jima.

Eisenhower arrived in Korea at 7:57 Tuesday after 47 hours and 15 minutes in the air. He visited combat units and talked for many hours with Generals Mark W. Clark, U. S. and United Nations Far East commander, and James A. Van Fleet, chief of the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea.

His trips to combat units did not carry him into the front lines. The military and secret service were careful to see that he did not go beyond division headquarters—usually three or four miles from the actual "battleline"—for security reasons. The greatest risks appeared to be in the many flights in small planes over Korea's jagged mountains.

Security Blackout

A security blackout was clamped on news of his visit. It was lifted one hour after his Constellation headed toward the U. S.

Eisenhower visited troops from every Allied nation involved in the Korean conflict, with special emphasis on the South Korean soldiers.

Eisenhower indicated he would set in motion plans to make the Republic of Korea (ROK) army bigger and stronger.

South Korean Lt. Gen. Chung Il Kwon, deputy commander of the U. S. Ninth Corps, spotlighted a problem Eisenhower will have to wrestle with after his inauguration the Korean told reporters he would like to see a United Nations drive to the Yalu River boundary of North Korea "with the ROK army leading the way." Some U. S. military commanders believe the same thing, and undoubtedly told Eisenhower so. These commanders have argued privately that a push to the Yalu was the best and surest way to force peace in the Far East.

Wednesday afternoon at First Corps headquarters Eisenhower reviewed units of fighting men from all the Allied nations. The men had been assembled more than eight hours before. Later Eisenhower apologized because they had to wait so long.

They passed in review—Australians, British, Belgians, Canadians, Colombians, Ethiopians, Greeks, Koreans, Dutchmen, New Zealanders, Filipinos, Thailanders, Turks and Americans.

Troops of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and Royal 22nd Regiment made up the Canadian component of the Commonwealth honor guard reviewed by Eisenhower.

IN MEMORIAM

JOSEPH MACLELLAN

The death occurred in the Kings County Memorial Hospital on November 4th of Joseph MacLellan of Cardigan in his 58th year.

The deceased, who had been ill for some time due to a heart condition, spent two months in the Charlottetown Hospital, after which he returned to his home. His condition, however, became serious and he was immediately taken to the Montague Memorial Hospital. While in the hospital, he was frequently visited by Rev. Fr. McCordie who administered to him the last rites of the Catholic Church.

The late Joseph MacLellan was the son of Daniel MacLellan and Margaret Gillis of Indian River. About forty years ago he moved with his family to Cardigan. As a young man he learned the trade of stone cutter. When the first World War broke out he enlisted in the forces for service, where he served in the 105th Battalion overseas. After returning from overseas he resumed his work as stone cutter which he carried on until illness forced him to discontinue. He was of a quiet and cheerful disposition. His favourite hobby was fishing along the winding streams and always knew where to catch the speckled trout.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Ida Murray of Summerside; one brother Anthony of Cardigan, and one sister, Mrs. John Mulligan, also of Cardigan.

The funeral, which was held from his late residence to All Saints Church, was largely attended. Requiem Mass was celebrated by his pastor, Rev. Harold Croken Present in the Sanctuary were Rev. Urban Gillis and Rev. Wilfred McCordie, and Rev. Father Arsenault, who assisted in the choir. The services at the grave was conducted by Rev. Father Croken. A military service was conducted at the grave by the members of the Legion under the direction of Comrade Alban Brothers.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Herman Smith, Andrew MacDonald, Alban Brothers, Francis Sheppard, William Brothers, Danie MacAulay.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. Joseph MacLellan wishes to express her most sincere thanks to Rev. Fr. Mnsigneur MacDonald, the Sisters, doctors and nurses of the Charlottetown Hospital, also Rev. Wilfred McCordie, doctors and nurses of the Montague Memorial Hospital, those who sent Mass cards, letters and cards of sympathy, and to friends and neighbours for their many acts of kindness during my recent sad bereavement.
