Graduates Of St. Mary's Academy Entertained

Mrs. Thomas Linkletter, president of the league presided and after the graduates, their parents and invited guests had enjoyed a delicious lobster supper, Mrs. Linkletter, on behalf of the league, extended congratulations to the graduates and pointed out to them that their graduation was just a stepping stone to something greater in life. She said she was glad to know that all intended to carry on and continue their studies further.

Mr. Joseph MacLeod said it was always a delightful experience to be present at the grade 10 graduation. The pupils, he said, deserved great credit for their success thus far and he wished the same success in their entrance examinations. He congratulated the parents of the graduates who he pointed out had made such success possible by the encouragement they had given their children. He said that the training they had received at the convent would serve as a good solid character foundation for them in the years to come.

Rev. Joseph LeClair also added his congratulations and words of encouragement and said that "while we are very proud of these graduates, we hope at the same time that we will always have good reason to continue to be proud of them at all times."

Mayor Henry W. Wedge had some very excellent advice for the graduates and pointed out to them the great advantages of higher education. After the banquet the students adjourned to St. Pauls Church for the graduating exercises and to receive their diplomas.

Fast Moving Show Enjoyed At Summerside

—A fast moving performance that delighted a large audience from start to finish highlighted the uncanny Barardo show held last evening at the Summerside High School auditorium under the auspices of the Summerside Amateur Athletic Association.

Volunteers from the audience filled the stage and kept the crowd in great hilarity with their reactions to Barardo's power of suggestion.

Two imaginary bicycle race and deep sea fishing trip were two of the evening's highlights in which the hypnotized cast went through very realistic motions at the command of the master hypnotist and which culminated in a terrific dash to the wire in the first act, and the catching of a large imaginary shark in the latter, and in which the antics of the performers kept the audience roaring.

During the so-called intermission the hypnotized volunteers went through the motions of playing various instruments under the direction of a large imaginary band which was conducted by a real "pop boy", who through hypnotic suggestion led the band through a performance that would have done credit to any live artist.

An excellent demonstration of post-hypnosis was also witnessed as Barardo put his performers to sleep without the help of signal or sound after leaving the main auditorium momentarily.

Barardo will display his uncanny talents again tonight for the last time at the Summerside High School.—S

The High Court of Ontario, chairman of the Royal Commission, asked what was the difference between mental disease and mental illness. Dr. Murchison replied that the former might imply an infection.

MENTAL ILLNESS

The witness felt that any criminal should be examined by a psychiatrist. He felt that if a man were mentally ill when he performed a criminal act, he should not be treated the same as one who was mentally well. He also noted that there was a difference between mentally deficient and mentally ill. Replying to a question he said that a schizophrenic was not able to appreciate the nature and quality of an act. He did not think that new phrasing of the definition of insanity would include the term "irresistible impulse" as a person who acted on such might not fully appreciate the nature of his act.

Regarding those accused of crimes he thought they should have individual psychiatric examination before the case went to trial and facilities were available here. He was called on some 10 or 12 such examinations each year. Most were conducted at the jail but he did not feel this was adequate place.

The doctor expressed the belief that a psychiatrist should be able to determine the mental condition of an accused without hearing the evidence in a case and that if there was a difference of psychiatric opinion and a conviction followed the judge should have the power to order a re-examination and a review should be compulsory in capital cases.

Other members sitting on the Royal Commission were Dr. Gustave Desrochers, vice president. Dr. R. O. Jones, Judge Helen Kinnear and Joseph Harris.

Graduating Exercises Held Last Night At St. Mary's Academy, Summerside —Graduating exercises for grades five to ten of St. Mary's convent were held last evening in St. Paul's Church when eight graduates from grade 10 received their diplomas from Rt. Rev. G. J. MacLellan, V.O.

They were: Catherine Marie Praught, Teresa May Arsenault, Elizabeth Ann Doucette, Mary Elizabeth Steel, Sandra Ann Arsenault, Pauline Ann Wedge, Janet Catherine McInnis, Myra Ann Kelly.

In his congratulatory address to the graduates and to all the pupils present, Monsignor MacLellan pointed out the great advantages of a good education in the world of today and admonished them never to forget the splendid training they had received while attending St. Mary's Academy.

In wishing them a pleasant holiday he expressed the hope that while they should enjoy themselves on vacation, enjoy all the God given advantages of this great land of ours, they must at the same time conduct themselves, not only on vacation but all through life in a manner that would reflect credit on the convent school which had given them such spiritual guidance, scholastic achievement and unselfish care by the Sisters, whose only reward, he said, was the welfare and success of those under their care.

Congratulations were extended also by Rev. Joseph MacLeod and Rev. Joseph LeClair.

The exercises were concluded with the Rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.
