Temperance Legislation in 1773

We have been furnished with some extracts from the first temperance legislation ever passed in this Province. At the session of 1773, the first session, we believe, of our legislature, an act was passed intitled "An Act Prohibiting the Sale of Distilled Spirituous Liquors, without License."

The preamble of the bill read as follows:— "Whereas, the practice of drinking rum or other distilled spirituous liquors has become very prevalent and common, especially among artificers, servants, laborers, soldiers and sailors, a turning in and belonging to the Island; and the constant and excessive use whereof leads greatly to the prejudice of their health, renders them incapable of discharging the duties of their respective occupations, debauches their morals and incites them to the practice of various other vices. For remedy whereof,

The first section says that "No person shall retail rum in less quantities than 20 gallons without license from Governor. Penalty, first offence, 40 shillings; 2nd do., £3, to be recovered on the oath of one witness. Half to go to the informant. Failing to pay the fine, goods and chattels to be seized; if no goods, etc., then to be imprisoned for the first offence one month and not more than six months for all subsequent offences."

Section two provides that "Any person agreeing with any artisan, journeyman, servant or laborer shall be deemed unlicensed retailer, and shall be subject to similar penalties. All such persons shall be entitled to such wages, notwithstanding such agreement. Parties hiring fishermen may supply liquors to such."

The third section states that "no licensed retailer can recover more than £5 by law for liquors sold."

"No person shall receive any pawn or pledge for liquors, and if they do shall pay full value to the owner," so reads clause four.

Section five states that: "No person licensed shall supply any person or persons or knowingly suffer them to be supplied with liquors of any kind if such quantity as to effect intoxication, shall not sell on Sunday, except to lodgers or travelers."

It is somewhat singular that certain provisions of this act of 1773, are identical with clauses of the Act just passed. Prince Edward Island can thus trace its endeavors to promote temperance legislation back 117 years.

Our Views Exactly.

The Canadian Voice says: In another column we publish the bill relating to temperance instruction in the public schools as enacted by the Nova Scotia Legislature. The government of P. E. Island is also moving in this direction, and, we are informed, will submit a bill at the present session making it compulsory that all candidates for teachers' licenses must undergo an examination on the subject of scientific temperance before they can be licensed to teach. In the public schools on the Island it is proposed that temperance instruction be given only to such pupils whose parents may desire it. To our mind this feature of the bill is bad and will to a very large extent nullify any good the measure may accomplish.

When the subject of temperance is left optional, and no text book or regular course prescribed, the teaching of it will be of the most superficial character even if it be not in the majority of cases ignored altogether. The teacher once having secured a license to teach will feel no obligation resting upon him to give the instruction in his school. The very pupils that require this instruction most will not desire their children to be instructed in temperance. The Nova Scotia law is much more effective, as no teacher can draw his government grant who has not taught the prescribed course of lessons in his school. When it comes to a loss of salary or the proper teaching of temperance, not many teachers will allow their pocket books on this matter to deplete their pockets.

United Society of Believers, or Shakers.

At the request of "Correspondent" we continue a summary of some religious beliefs from the "Handbook to all Religions," which will be of interest at the present time.

A sect of English origin chiefly found at present in the United States. In the time of Charles I. a body of enthusiasts appeared, who from the convulsions into which they threw themselves obtained the name of Shakers. We know very little of this sect, which was small and so disappeared: all the writers of that age speak of them reproachfully, and when the Quakers under John Fox appeared they protested against the injustice they suffered in being confounded with the Shakers. The sect which we are now noticing traces itself through the French prophets of the last century to the Shakers of the Commonwealth. About 1747 James Wardley, originally a Quaker, imagining that he had supernatural dreams and revelations, headed a party which, from the bodily agitations practiced in some parts of their religious services, were called Shakers. Ann Lee, the daughter of a blacksmith in Manchester, adopted Wardley's views and the bodily exercises of his followers. From the accounts of her conduct she appears to have become an adept in imposture during nine years which she spent in convulsions, fastings, and similar contrivances. She is said to have clenched her fists in the course of her fits, so as to make the blood pass through the pores of her skin, and to have wasted away so that at last she was fed like an infant. She now became the head of a new society who adopted the name of Shakers. "The work," she said, "which God promised to accomplish in the latter day was eminently marked out by the prophets to be a work of shaking." About 1770 Ann Lee discovered the wickedness of marriage, and began to "testify against it." She called herself "Ann the World," meaning that the world dwelt in her. And her followers say that "the man who was called Jesus, and the woman who was called Ann, are verily the first two pillars of the church, the two anointed ones."

In May, 1774, Ann Lee, otherwise Mrs Standley, together with three elders, and others of the sect, emigrated to this country, and two years after formed a settlement at Niackayona, a few miles from Albany, New York. From that a centre, they put forth shoots, until now there are several Shaker settlements or villages in various parts of the United States. Their doctrines are a strange mixture of the crudest errors with some few gospel truths; but it would be a misnomer to call them Christians. They now term themselves the millennial church; and hold that the millennium has begun, and that they are the only true church, and have all the apostolic gifts. They insist that baptism and the Lord's Supper ceased with the apostolic age; that the wicked will be punished for a definite period only, except such as apostatize from them and those who be punished forever; that Christ will not appear again in the world, except in the persons of his followers, that is, the Shakers; that marriage is sinful, and that "they that have wives should be as though they had none" even now, and that thus alone purity and holiness, and the consequent beatitude of the heavenly state can be attained; that sin committed against God is committed against them, and can be pardoned only for Christ's sake through them. Such are some of their tenets. The discipline of their churches rests for the most part with "their elders" who follow the instructions left by "Mother Ann Lee." In their religious worship they range themselves at intervals in rows, and then spring upwards a few inches, sometimes they become so excited in this exercise as to throw off their upper garments, and jump as if they would reach the ceiling, all, as they say, to express their joy in the Lord. After this they sit down and listen while to their preachers, and then, when tired of hearing, resume their dancing.

Not permitting marriage, much less concubinage, their body cannot be expected to increase. It appears they have a great accession of members from the class of the "unfortunate, and from widows and orphans, to whom their institutions furnish an asylum. Their property is all in common; and individual wants are supplied from a general magazine or storehouse, and ultimately the elders invest the gains in land or other property for the good of the society.

They profess to have the "power of working miracles, and to be guided not so much by the Scriptures as immediately by the Holy Spirit. They maintain that it is unlawful to take oaths, to use compliments, or to play at games of chance. They hold general fasts, and have no order of persons regularly educated for the ministry. In their chapter upon public worship they vindicate their music and dancing as leading parts of worship, especially alluding to the return of the prodigal; while the elder son, disliking music and dancing, represents the natural man condemning their soul-reviving practices.

Their political principles are strictly republican, viewing all hereditary rank, in civil or religious government, as repugnant to the spirit of Christianity; nevertheless, with the Quakers, they wish their law enabling individuals who desire to be admitted to become divorced; but permitting the party who does not join them to retain the children and the property. The Shakers never meddle in public affairs, not accepting any office under government, or even voting at an election, considering it to be highly inconsistent in those who from principle are averse to war, to vote into office those who are not, and who may involve the state in bloodshed.

LETTERS TO EDITOR.

Complaint from the West.

To The Editor of the Guardian.

SIR,—The time has come when some one must speak. In fact the whole Western public should speak, and speak loud for better Railway accommodation. I wish to call the attention of the Superintendent of the P. E. Island Railway to the fact that we (the people west of Summerside) are not used according to our merits.

It is not necessary for me to mention that the western end of the P. E. Island Railway is the best paying part of the road, and what accommodation do we get? We have what is called an accommodation train that leaves Tignish at 6 a. m., standard, and is due at Tignish at 5 25 p. m., standard, but does not actually arrive until 6 25 p. m., and often later. This is very little more convenient than the old stage coach of twenty-five years ago. Why not keep pace with modern improvements and give us all the benefit? Why not run the express train now through to Tignish, instead of having her stay in Summerside from 9 a. m. till the arrival of the boat from P. du Chene.

Here we find 3 trains running between Charlottetown and Summerside, and only one between Summerside and Tignish. I would ask Mr. Unsworth, is this fair to the western public? It is because we live one hundred and seventeen miles from Charlottetown that we are treated in this manner. I say it's an outrage, and the people of this end demands better accommodations. It is to be hoped that Mr. Unsworth will see to this matter and give us an express train at once.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for your valuable space. Yours, WESTERN TERMINUS, Tignish, April 21st 1892.
