KILLED AT FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The battered body of a woman, believed to have gone over Niagara Falls, was found Thursday afloat in the Niagara River. Niagara parks police recovered the body near the Canadian side. They said she appeared to have been in the water only a short time. She was about 45 years of age and weighed about 135 pounds. A watch, wedding ring and diamond ring were on the body.

William Booth Pays A Tribute To His Mother

"Home Was Not Home Without Her" is the heading for an article by William Booth in the War Cry. It is a tribute to Mr. Booth's mother.

"I had a good mother," the Army Founder, William Booth wrote. "So good she has ever appeared to me that all I know of her life seemed a striking contradiction of the doctrine of humankind's depravity. In my youth I fully accepted that doctrine, and I do not deny it now; but my patient, self-sacrificing mother always appeared to be an exception to the rule. I loved my mother. From infancy to manhood I

MARY HAWORTH Both Are At Fault

Dear Mary Haworth: I would like your opinion on the following: I work as a secretary to a man of moderate success and comfortable income. My job has some importance in its field, and carries responsibilities. So much for background.

I find myself quietly annoyed when my boss, in speaking of his wife to me, invariably refers to her as Mrs. Brown. I have met her on numerous occasions, have been entertained in their home several times, and she always uses her first name when speaking to me on the telephone.

I can't help feeling that this puts me in the servant class, that he is talking down to me. (I don't speak this way to the charwoman who cleans my apartment.) What do you think? Is it a foolish notion on my part? A. B.

JUST A BIG STUFFY

Dear A.B.: The boss is being a bit stuffy, perhaps; but he is still more right than wrong, in my opinion, in customarily designating his wife as Mrs. Brown, when he mentions her to the office help.

Undeniably you are being stuffy, too, and showing a twinge of inferiority complex, in feeling snubbed by his habitually formal reference to Mrs. Brown—even granting that it is a Victorianism on his part that indicates you have attained to the status of family friend (in his book).

COMPLETE ROLL

The town hall at Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon, records all town officials since 1553.

WIFE PRESERVERS

In fairness to Mr. Brown, I think you must concede that you aren't in fact a member of the Browns' inner circle, but rather a business acquaintance of his; the girl who does his office work.

Therefore, I feel you ought to let him be the judge of just how close he feels to you; and that you shouldn't be hurt simply because his manner implies that his wife is, to him, a person to be wrapped in reserve, in a world

Candy Calories Lower Than Usually Realized

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN
Recently I was one of a five-member panel invited to discuss candy and its place among foods at the yearly convention of the Retail Candy Store Institute. You will be interested in some of the questions that were asked.

Question: Is a candy to be classed as a food?
Answer: Candy definitely is a food in the carbohydrate group. When it is eaten as part of the day's calorie ration, it becomes part of the diet, but when it is eaten as an extra, it becomes an accessory.

Question: How many calories does a piece of candy contain?
Answer: This depends on the kind of candy and the size of the piece.

Chocolate-covered candies contain a higher percentage of calories, because of the fat content of chocolate, than candies containing no chocolate.

Question: Is it a good plan for reducers to eat a piece of candy before meals to "dull" appetite?
Answer: Candy will "dull" the appetite and less food will be eaten. But the sugar of candy is so quickly absorbed into the body, that hunger soon reappears and a snack invariably follows, so, in all, more calories are

TO A BELOVED MOTHER

A tribute to Mother's Day in memory of Mrs. Daniel J. McCormack, Georgetown (a D. Boughton Island) from her children submitted by daughter (Gen) Mrs. James D. Lanigan, Cambridge, P.E.I.

O, precious Mother! from us you have gone
Your dear, loved voice is stilled
The days are dark and cheerless,
now,
The nights with loneliness filled.

Your dear familiar sunny smile
No more on our face we'll see,
For God has called you home
again,
His Holy Will must be.

We hold you close in silent prayer
In night's stillness, breathe your name,
Was ever a Mother's love like yours,
For each of us the same.

God made you wondrous fair,
dear one,
With heart as pure as gold,
And we who knew and loved you best
That treasure saw unfold,

Your outstretched hand at open door
Blessed all who came your way,
Your spirit brave and courage rare
Turned darkest night today.

You made of life a wondrous thing,
God's plan you carried through,
Our home was blessed with warmth and love
Because God gave us you.

You believed not in looking back,
The past was over and done,
Its memories cherished, you gazed
Into each Rising Sun.

The erring ones you censured not,
The worthy, lauded ever,
You taught us this great precept here
"The needy turn from never."

You were so thoughtful, kind and good,
You were one among the few,
Remembering, always, "the little

CALLING ALL MOTHERS
by E. M. MacEwen
Mother's Day, what poignant memories it stirs in our hearts, especially those of us who have long since said goodbye to our Mothers. How privileged are they who still have the great pleasure of honoring their mothers on Mother's Day. Mothers are not only the world's greatest diplomats, they are also the world's biggest investors, perhaps not in terms of money but the investments by mothers in devotion, sacrifice and time can never be measured in dollars and cents, and mothers never collect revenues, even when a bit of appreciation is lacking, a mother's devotion never changes, she hides her disappointment behind a smile. There is a beautiful old legend two mothers met at the foot of the Saviour's cross, they looked into each other's eyes, saw the light of divine love and forgiveness. They embraced, one was the mother of our Blessed Lord. The other the mother of Iscariot. Mothers understand.
