STRICT ATTENTION

to Business, Honesty and Square Dealing, and paying

Cash every time, is what has placed to the front of all competitors, in CLOTHING, HATS, &c.

He does not advertise to sell goods at cost, but he guarantees to sell from 10 to 25 per cent less than those who do advertize to sell at cost.

He does not try to deceive the people by making a big blow and offering paltry rewards, but tries to do things right and has the goods to back him up in what he advertizes.

He has now about 6,500 HATS and $4,000 worth of CLOTHING, which he guarantees to sell from 10 to 25 per cent less than any house in the trade. A lot of this Clothing was bought less than half price, and will be sold less than half price.

He does not ask the people to believe his advertisement until they see his prices; he knows then they will believe, and knows that the goods and prices back him up every time.

All goods freely shown, or sent to any part of the town.

Please don't forget to call.

The Canadian Fisheries.

Some people are apt at times, and upon partial data, to doubt Canada's agricultural pre-eminence, but very few will question the richness and value of her fisheries.

For many years, when the countries which now go to make up the Dominion, were scattered, weak and little appreciated portions of the Empire, the fisheries of the British Atlantic coast were regarded as of peculiar commercial and general worth.

Sixteen years ago, just after Confederation came into being, the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries spoke of his charge as a "national possession of inestimable value," and an "inexhaustible field for industry and enterprise." At the time their value was but 7½ million dollars.

After a decade had passed it amounted to 14½ million dollars; and now, according to the 1885 Fisheries Report, they represent no less than 17½ million dollars. And it must be remembered that while these figures include the important deep-sea fishing-grounds of the coasts of Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, New Brunswick, and

Prince Edward Island, the extensive fisheries in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, as well as the valuable fresh-water fisheries of the Maritime Provinces, the Great Lakes,

Manitoba, and British Columbia, they must naturally leave untouched nearly all the 3,000 miles of sea-coast in British Columbia which are as yet practically undeveloped, though on high authority believed to be teeming with a great variety of commercial fishes. But instructive and remarkable as these figures are, we have just now even greater practical evidence of the worth of this industry. It is not for nothing—not indeed for little—that foreign nations have so tenaciously clung to whatever right they may have believed themselves to hold in these fisheries. The United States would not at this moment be displaying so eager a desire and straining every nerve to retain the use of their profitable privileges, were the possession one of ordinary value;

and for the same practical reason Canada does well to insist that her neighbours have a proper regard for the obligations into which they have previously entered.

A New Enterprise.

In connection with the fisheries of Canada some interesting developments are now in progress. It will not, it is hoped, be long before a large amount of the freshwater fish of Canada is brought to English markets in "freezers," instead of in a canned and pickled state as at present. In this direction the salmon alone opens up a great field for enterprise, especially now that the Canadian Pacific Railway makes
