

Eskimo May Vanish, Says Expert On Arctic Affairs

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 100 Eskimos may vanish as an ethnic group within the next 50 years, an Arctic authority suggested Monday.

Douglas Wilkinson, one of the six northern service officers appointed in 1954 and probably the best known, said the Eskimo would be sucked down and absorbed by the tide of northern development like countless other minorities in history.

"Romantically, I would like to see the Eskimo continue the life he has lived for centuries," said Mr. Wilkinson, who leaves the northern affairs department Wednesday to return to film work.

"But realistically, I am aware that he has become an interested Canadian."

Eskimo for? What is the objective or purpose behind the education program? That is what must be decided now in my opinion.

"And it is very important in decisions affecting the Eskimo's future that authorities have a solid awareness of what makes the Eskimo tick—why he does the things he does."

Mr. Wilkinson, 30, worked for eight years with the national film board. He was the first airborne northern service officer, acquiring his own plane last year.

He plans to pursue his northern interest through films, radio, television and writing. He has become a director and northern specialist of the Robert Anderson Associates film company.

LIFE GOES ON

Mr. Wilkinson said the Eskimo has much to contribute to the North, if only because of his philosophy that life must continue through cold, hazard and difficulty.

"We train soldiers how to keep warm in the Arctic. What we should do is teach them to expect to be cold. There is no clothing that will keep people warm there."

"The clothing that keeps you warm standing is too warm for moving around and this expectation of being cold is what makes the Eskimo such a good man as a bulldozer in the Arctic."

"The southerner comes out, full of ham and eggs and bundled up, but he knows he'll be back in the kitchen for coffee in half an hour. The Eskimo comes out knowing it will be cold and that he will keep at it."

Ch'town Man Gets 15-Month Jail Sentence

A Charlottetown man was sentenced to 15 months in the Queen's County Jail when he appeared for sentencing Monday morning in magistrate's court on three separate charges.

John Francis MacDonald, 40, was sentenced to serve six months on each of two separate counts of break entry and theft and three months on an attempted theft charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

MacDonald had previously pleaded guilty to all three charges that arose out of the theft of a quantity of potatoes from the Gulf Potato Company's warehouse at New Wiltshire and an attempted theft of a quantity of potatoes owned by Jerome O'Brien of Charlottetown.

Only other case on the docket that faced Magistrate Gilbert A. Gaudet, Q.C., was that of a city woman charged with allowing her motor vehicle to be driven on the highway without proper registration. She was fined $10 and costs or 10 days.
