Mother Hears Son On Radio From USAF

TIGNISH — Mrs. William MacLeod, Tignish, heard her son, Technical Sergeant Chester MacLeod of the U.S. Air Force, in an interview over radio recently.

Sergeant MacLeod was interviewed at Hunter Air Force Base where he was one of a specially selected air crew participating in the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) aerial delivery competition at Hunter Air Force Base, Georgia, from Nov. 9-15.

The Air Force and Navy crews there, all part of MATS world-wide mission, are the best of the air wings they represent. They matched their ability against each other during the test, called operation CARP (Computed Aerial Release Point).

The Air Force says it is extremely proud of these men of exceptional ability and proficiency and feels that the home town shares their pride. The taped interview was sent by the radio station to his mother.

Technical Sergeant MacLeod joined the U.S. Air Force 14 years ago and since that time he has spent time in every country of the world except Australia returning recently from Viet-Nam and India where he spent 18 months. Eight years ago he, along with his crew, rescued four navy fliers who bailed out in Indonesia.

Prior to joining the Air Force he spent four years on active duty with the Canadian Navy.

$10,000 Project Set For Lot 18

Henry Wedge, minister of welfare and labor, has announced that approval for a $10,000 winter works project in the Lot 18 area, which will employ 40 men and provide 1,000 man-days of work, has been given by the department.

Decision to go ahead with the project, which involves community improvement, including trimming of trees along the highways and dismantling of old, unused buildings, was made at a meeting Thursday night at Malpeque Road.

The possibility of setting up a community pasture similar to the 2,400-acre pasture at Lot 16 was discussed at the meeting. The pasture would be set up by local people in co-operation with federal and provincial governments.

A committee was appointed to see what land was available for such a pasture.

THIS WEEK AT SDU

College Hockey Underway; March To Rome Has Begun

By CHARLEY McMILLAN

The St. Dunstan's Hockey team started its Maritime Intercollegiate League season last night against Acadia Axemen. Although the results of the contest weren't known when this was being written, it is sufficient to say that the game was the center of attention all week at SDU.

It is difficult to describe how the hockey team generates such interest among the students; but no matter where you go, to classes, to the Spain, or wherever, hockey is on the lips of every student. I suppose there is a certain amount of curiosity involved; after all, they have played only two games so far. Then there is a food memory of the glorious moments of last year, when the Saints reached unprecedented heights of success, until, of course, the end of the season when the bubble burst.

Perhaps it is just a case of school spirit, or a sense of duty to cheer the team on. And then it could be a matter of sensing the first Maritime Intercollegiate Hockey Championship in 18 years.

COMPLETE PANDEMONIUM

When the Saints play any team, the campus reacts in some strange manner which can almost be called a phobia. As the season progresses and the games become even more crucial, the campus rocks with excitement. Before the game the tension is in the air a foot thick; after the game complete pandemonium breaks out. For this is hockey at SDU.

Judging on last year's performance and personnel, compared with this year's additions and competition, the experts are predicting a three way race for first place: UNB, last year's champions; St. Francis Xavier, a perennial contender, and St. Dunstan's.

At first glance, one would think St. Dunstan's has a much better chance at first place this year then last. You'll recall that the Saints had to play UNB and St. Thomas before Christmas, in back to back games. After dropping a 3-2 lead in the last minute, they lost in overtime to the Red Devils, and the next afternoon in Chatham, they got slaughtered 9-2 against the Tommies. Both of these teams, incidently, ended the season at the top of the league with St. Dunstan's. Thus it would seem that playing Acadia and Mount "A" before Christmas is a decided advantage, considering their low standings last year. Time, I suppose, will be the judge.

BETTER BALANCE

It is generally felt that the team in general is much stronger in personnel. There is more experience on the team, since most of last year's team players were first year men; there is more depth, with three balanced lines; there is more weight, especially on defense; and there is a better balance of scoring punch. In the two games with Sandy's Parkdale Royals, all three lines were in on the scoring, with no one player dominating the scoresheet.

Although St. Dunstan's has a stronger team this year, it would be folly to think that the other teams have not improved also. Indeed, press reports indicate that most of the clubs throughout the league, but especially St. FX and UNB, are all improved. Because of the high stakes involved, it is really worth going after the league championship and the trip to Saskatoon for the Canadian finals.

MARCH TO ROME

The only problem with being the team to beat is that everybody is out to beat you, and this year is no exception. SDU has a good team, a very good team, in fact. If everybody turns in a maximum effort, the road ahead is paved with a lot of "ifs and buts." Just as Caesar crossed the Rubicon to reach the Eternal City, the Saints have taken the first step against Acadia. The March to Rome has started.

Impaired Driving Case Dismissed After Appeal

The case of the Queen vs. Daniel B. Birt of Charlottetown, charged with impaired driving, came before Mr. Justice R.R. Bell in the Queen's County Assizes of the Supreme Court of Prince Edward Island yesterday morning. The appeal was allowed and the case dismissed. Counsel for accused was Gerald R. Foster, QC.

Birt had been convicted by the Stipendiary Magistrate of the City of Charlottetown on May 20, 1964 for impaired driving under section 223 (a) of the Criminal Code. An appeal was taken and the case was heard by Mr. Justice Bell on Oct. 2, 1964.

At the appeal session two city police officers had testified that they smelled liquor off the breath of the accused, that he staggered a little but could walk under his own power and that his eyes were glassy and bloodshot. They also testified that his driving did not appear to be affected, there was no liquor in the car and he gave them no trouble. They had stopped the car only because one headlight was not working and discovered his condition afterwards.

The accused testified that he had one small bottle of beer and part of another one and had been driving an intoxicated friend home when he was stopped by the police because one headlight was out. He denied staggering and said the beer had no effect on him.

LITTLE TIME

In handing down his verdict Mr. Justice Bell said, "The arresting officers had very little time to judge the condition of the accused. No tests were made. The circumstances don't seem to set up a situation calling for an arrest on such a charge.

"It is possible that the police officers could have been influenced by smelling liquor off the accused and by seeing a drunk in the other front seat, but the smell of liquor and slight variation from normal is not sufficient to be impaired.

"Further evidence must be induced by the Crown to show that the ability to drive of the accused was impaired.

"There is no doubt that the accused operated a motor vehicle properly at the time but it is not a test in itself to free him. I can find no facts that his ability mentally or physically was impaired. He was mentally alert in his actions. The meagre evidence of staggering is not sufficient and might very well happen to any law-abiding person.

TRUTHFUL

"I am satisfied that he was a truthful witness. In a way he was a victim of circumstance.

"I do fail to understand why the accused was charged under section 222 (drunken driving) in view of the evidence.

"If there is a policy of indiscriminately charging under section 222, whether the accused is intoxicated or merely impaired, I feel it should not be pursued.

"The appeal is allowed and the charge against the accused is dismissed."

Costs of $50 were to be paid by the accused to his counsel.
