My Baby

was a living skeleton; the doctor said he was dying of Marasmus and Indigestion. At 13 months he weighed only seven pounds. Nothing strengthened or fattened him. I began using Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, feeding it to him and rubbing it into his body. He began to fatten and is now a beautiful dimpled boy. The Emulsion seemed to supply the one thing needful.

BOOKS OF LIFE.

They Contain the Essence of Truth and Are Full of Power and Beauty.

The man who would get the ripest culture from books ought to read many, but there are a few books which he must read; among them, first and foremost, are the Bible, and the works of Homer, Dante, Shakespeare and Goethe. These are the supreme books of life as distinguished from the books of knowledge and skill. They hold their places because they combine in the highest degree vitality, truth, power and beauty. They are the central reservoirs into which the rivulets of individual experience over a vast surface have been gathered; they are the most complete revelations of what life has brought and has been to the leading races; they bring us into contact with the heart and soul of humanity. They not only convey information and, rightly used, impart discipline, but they transmit life. There is a vitality in them which passes on into the nature which is open to receive it. They have again and again inspired intellectual monuments on a wide scale, as they are constantly recreating individual ideals and aims. Whatever view may be held of the authority of the Bible, it is agreed that its power as literature has been incalculable by reason of the depth of life which it sounds and the range of life which it compasses. There is power enough in it to revive a decaying age or give a new data and a fresh impulse to a race which has parted with its creative energy. The reappearance of the New Testament in Greek, after the long reign of the Vulgate, contributed mightily to that renewal and revival of life which we call the Reformation; while its translation into the modern languages liberated a moral and intellectual force of which no adequate measurement can be made. In like manner, though in a lesser degree, the 'Iliad' and 'Odyssey,' the 'Divine Comedy,' the Plays of Shakespeare and 'Faust' have set new movements in motion and have enriched and enlarged the lives of races.—Hamilton W. Mable in the Literary Bulletin.

RUSSIA'S RELIGION CARS.

Up-to-Date Greek Churches on Wheels for Siberian Settlements.

The Greek Church is becoming strictly up-to-date. It has had five church cars constructed. These have penetrated Siberia as far as the roadbed of the new Siberian railroad which is to connect the eastern seas with the Czar's dominions when completed. Each car has two priests and is fitted out with all of the paraphernalia of the regulation orthodox Greek Church that is to be seen in every Russian village of any size. The settlements in Siberia are so small and so widely scattered that it is impracticable to maintain a church for each settlement. Altogether the five churches on wheels visit seventy settlements a week.

Each settlement knows when the church car is to arrive, and all the people are expected to come down to meet it promptly for the services held in the car immediately after its arrival. Each church can comfortably seat thirty or forty people, and two settlements are visited daily by each one. Several settlements have more people than the church can accomodate, and in such cases the cars make longer stops to hold two and sometimes three services before departing.

The entire length of the road from St. Petersburg to Vladivostock will be 5,000 miles, of which 3,700 miles are yet to be constructed. It is in charge of the most competent engineers in the world, and no expense is being spared to make it of an enduring nature.

Before the Railway Era.

In Chaucer's day travel was universally accomplished on foot or on horseback, and the story of the famous ride to Canterbury by Chaucer himself is still extant in undefiled English. Ladies at that period sat in pillions fixed to the horses, and generally behind some relation or servitor. Elizabeth is said to have gone to open her fifth Parliament in a sort of cart without springs, the body resting solidly on the axle; which must have been a most uncomfortable journey, in view of the then wretched state of the streets and highways. It was not until the end of the Sixteenth Century and even then very rarely that wagons were used as public conveyances. But by the middle of the Seventeenth Century strings of "stage-wagons" traveled regularly between London and Liverpool, and between London and the north. The occasional stagecoach appeared a few years earlier, and added greatly to the public comfort and convenience. It ran only on the better roads, and only in summer time when the roads were passable. In winter it was laid up, like the canalboat of cold countries. One of the earliest announcements of this mode of transportation is preserved by Robert Chambers, and thus it reads: "Whoever is desirous of going between London and York, or York and London, let them (sic) repair to the Black Swan in Holborn, or the Black Swan in Coney street, York, where they will be conveyed in a stage coach which starts (if God permits), every Thursday at five in the morning."—Harper's Weekly.

Effect of Happy Marriages.

Some curious investigations have recently been undertaken by a photographic society in Geneva. The purpose was to show that the longer a married couple lived together—harmoniously—the more and more marked became the resemblance which the two persons bore to each other. Photograms of 78 couples were taken, as well as an equal number of adult brothers and sisters. On careful inspection it was found that the married couples were more like each other than the brothers and sisters of the same blood. Apparently, therefore, there seems to be a stronger force available for the production of "family likenesses" even than that of hereditary transmission. In accepting the statement of the society in question as true as to the fact, it is not difficult, in a certain measure, to account for the phenomenon referred to. Human beings, for example, have quite a faculty for copying each other in their ways, movements and temperaments.

A NEW CLUB.

Name Suggested for a New Social Organization in London.

LONDON (Special) Oct. 28.—It has been facetiously suggested that a new social club in process of organization in this city should be entitled "The Dodd's Kidney Pill Club" as the present members are all enthusiastic advocates of that remedy and in common with many other citizens declare that in all cases of kidney trouble no other agent has been found so completely effective. Most Londoners have at their fingers' ends the particulars of the many marvellous cures through the use of this specific. In every drug-store in the city the medicine is kept in large quantities and warmly recommended.

Colonial Representatives Meet in London.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Representatives in London of British self government colonies held a meeting to-day in the office of the Canadian high commissioner, Sir Charles Tupper, who presided. The meeting was held for the purpose of discussing the question of a Pacific cable in accordance with instructions received by the representatives from their governments. The colonial representatives will have an interview with Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, within a few days.

Bad Blood Between Them.

The ever slaving farmer's wife, her delicate sister in the city, suffer more than they care to tell. The dark rings round the eyes, headaches, dizziness, palpitation or rheumatic twinges, betoken a run-down system. The blood is poor, and is a bar to enjoyment of life. Scott's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, strengthens and vitalizes the system, and speedily restores the bloom of health to the cheeks. It cures when all others fail.

The Dukes of Wellington and Marlborough both present, on the anniversaries of Waterloo and Blenheim, small flags to the sovereign as a tribute by which they hold the different estates of Strathfieldsaye and Blenheim. These tropies are hung up in the amoury at Windsor castle, where they may be seen

Rubbing It In.

Never use a liniment for rheumatism, says a high medical authority. Don't rub it in—drive it out. Take something that removes the acid poison from the blood—take something that will improve your digestion, and build up the body to the perfection of robust health. That "something" is Scott's Sarsaparilla, a remedy that obtains the best results in the shortest time. $1, of all druggists.

Cows were milked by machinery at the recent London dairy show. A pulsating vacuum, imitating the sucking of calves was created by an air pump in a series of pipes connected by rubber caps to the cow's teats. Ten cows were milked at once, the milking lasting from three to five minutes, and only two pints and a half of strippings being left.

Tore His Flesh In Agony.

"I was troubled with blind itching piles for 20 years; was unable to work and tore my flesh in agony. United States and Canadian doctors failed to relieve. Chase's Ointment was a God-send. Desperate Itchings of the Skin Allayed by Chase's Ointment—The Recognized Skin Specific.

It is only a few months since Dr. Chase's Ointment was brought prominently before the public, principally by its cures of stubborn and long standing cases of Itching Piles that had defied all other treatments. To day it is recognized from ocean to ocean as an infallible cure for Itching Piles, Eczematic Eruptions and all Itching of the Skin. Its cures have rendered its sales larger than those of all other preparations for such ailments combined. People use Dr. Chase's Ointment with confidence, because in every community someone has been benefitted like Mr. Simpson, Berlin, Ont., who, under date of Feb. 8, '95, writes that for a number of years he was troubled with Itching Piles; they caused intense suffering, and although dozens of advertised remedies were used, none of them did any good although some of them had long and thorough trials. Here are his own words quoted from his letter. "Last fall I got a box of Chase's Ointment from Mr Landreth's drug store, Berlin. I applied according to directions and soon found it was what I wanted. Only used part of one box when I was well as ever in my life. Once in a while since I have felt slight symptoms of its return, but one application of the Ointment and all is right again."

Such expressions as this from those who use Chase's account for its popularity,

"I AM AS WELL AS I WISH TO BE."

Miss Blake, of Hamilton, Ont., after using Paine's Celery Compound, is a Picture of Womanly Vigor and Beauty.

A Stoty for all who Stand in Need of Perfect Health.

Miss Isabella Blake, of 303 Hughson Street, Hamilton, Ont., is one of the fairest and best known young women in the ambitious city. To-day she is a picture of womanly health, vigor and beauty, and joyfully declares, "I am now a new woman, can enjoy life, and am as well as I wish to be."

When Miss Blake makes the declaration that she is a "new woman," she does not wish it to be understood that she has entered the ranks and adopted the fads of those light-brained women who would usurp the legitimate positions of men, and go through life clad in half masculine attire, with the fixed idea of altering the plans of an all-wise Providence, and turning the world upside down. Ah! no; this is far from what Miss Blake wishes to imply when she makes the statement that she is a "new woman."

The "new woman" that the world values is not the modern creature that dons the open vest, exposed shirt front, four-in-hand tie, straight and high collar, stiff Derby hat, who walks out on our streets with cane in hand, giving evidence of empty brain and unsatisfied vanity. The true "new woman" is perfectly represented by Miss Blake, made healthy, vigorous, strong and active by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. This is the "woman" that sensible and rational beings honor and appreciate—the type of "woman" that blesses home, friends and the world at large.

Miss Blake, though a young woman, can relate a tale of sad experiences. In the past, lions have stood in her way threatening destruction; she knows what sore afflictions are, owing to the rough grasp of disease; and at times the cold touch of the destroyer, death, has made her shiver, and caused her to think of the dark gloom of the silent tomb.

When Miss Blake's heart was faint, sick and void of hope; when all the doctors and medicines failed to do good, and when threatened with that relentless foe consumption, an angel of mercy suggested the use of a remedy that has brought new life to thousands of poor sufferers in the past. Yes, it is Paine's Celery Compound that is recommended; it is used, and in a short time makes a "new woman" from the material that the grave had battled for.

Those facts, dear reader, are not overdrawn or colored in the least. Miss Blake and her friends will gladly vouch for the truth of the statement that Paine's Celery Compound, and it alone, under God's blessing, was the agent that saved life at a critical juncture. The following letter from Miss Blake is surely of sufficient weight to convince the most hardened unbeliever:—

"For years I suffered greatly, and was under the care of doctors, who finally told me I was going into consumption. I was becoming worse through the use of medicines, and I gave up my doctors. While in a very critical condition, not able to sleep or rest, always faint and weak, appetite and digestion bad, and my system run down and little life left in me, I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound. After taking one bottle I felt much relieved. I have used in all seven or eight bottles, and am now a new woman, can enjoy life, and am as well as I wish to be. Many thanks for your great medicine."

MERRY MOMENTS.

"I began life without a cent in my pocket," said the purse-proud man to an acquaintance. "I didn't even have a pocket," replied the latter meekly.

Bellefield—The Fayes corset is said to be very faint. Bloomfield—You would be faint, too, if you had traveled as far.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Yeast—Did you ever hug a delusion Crimsonbeak—Yes; before I married I thought the woman I loved was worth a fortune.—Yonkers Statesman

"I will take some of this material—but will it wear well?" "Oh! it is indestructible—untearable — everlasting—it will wear till you pay for it!"—Unsere Gesellschaft.

Blobbs—That young Harduppe keeps late hours, doesn't he? Slobbs—I shouldn't be surprised. He keeps about everything he can get.—Philadelphia Record.

"How are you succeeding in keeping house in the country, Mr. Hill?" "First rate at that. But the neighbors have borrowed almost everything else."—Harlem Life.

Young Swimly—Is there anything in the report that a young lady of this hotel is engaged to old Coiner, the banker? Sweet Girl (tantalizingly)—Yes; I'm in it.—Boston Courier.

Mrs. Ayebee—Men are such funny things! When Ayebee asked me to be his he was the most disconsolate man imaginable. Mrs. Cedee—I can well believe that.—Boston Transcript.

"What do you think will be the outcome of the war in Cuba?" "That," replied the man who answers every question, "depends a good deal on the income of the Spanish treasury."—Washington Star.

"I wonder what makes those buttons burst off so?" Dora petulantly exclaimed. David looked at her tight-fitting dress. "Force of habit, probably," he said, after a thoughtful pause.—Rockland Tribune.

"I hardly know whether to marry her or not," said the Count. "Her father is in the clothing trade," "There is money in clothes," said the Duke. "There isn't any in mine," said the Count.—Indianapolis Journal.

"Ah," said the burglar who had once seen better days, "this reminds me of the day I attained my majority." "How's that?" asked his partner, emptying the cash box into his pocket. "I have come in for some money."—Truth.

Gadzooks—I tell you, Younghusband dresses up his pretty wife in great style. Zounds—That's all right, but her women friends make up for it by giving her a dressing down whenever they talk about her.—New York Tribune.

"I called to ascertain, Colonel Lexington, if you would make a few speeches for gold." "For gold? Well, I should say so! For gold, silver, greenbacks, notes, garden sass or cordwood. Times are hard, Colonel."—New York Recorder.

"You don't object to a contribution dropping into poetry once in a while, I presume?" said the caller with an affable smile. "Certainly not, sir. Sit down," replied the editor, pushing the waste basket toward him.—Chicago Tribune.

Radbourn—I suppose that when the emancipated woman has ultimately conquered, our girls will be going for soldiers. Chesley—I should not be surprised. They went for them long before the E. W. was ever thought of.—Harlem Life.

Waggs—I tell you, it makes me feel proud to think that no genuine American has ever been known to accept a European title of nobility. Gaggs—I guess that's because there are only enough of them for American girls.—New York Tribune.

Mrs. Prattle (to her visitor)—Have you heard of the splendid catch Miss Wildly has made? She is engaged to a nobleman, the baron of—of (to her husband)—What is the baron of, my dear? Mr. Prattle (who has met him)—Ideas.—Brooklyn Life.

Bass—You see that boy over there? Well, he's a little cub, that's what he is. Cass—Perhaps you know the family? Bass—No, never heard of them even; but I just heard the boy's mother tell him he was just like his father.—Boston Transcript.

Numerous are the people who have "builded better than they knew." A small boy in one of the public schools was asked to define a demagogue. "A demagogue," he said, "is a vessel that holds wine, gin, whisky or any other liquor."—Bangor News.

Mrs. Slimson (severely)—Willie, this lady complains that you have been fighting with her little boy, and wants you to promise never to do so again. Willie (to lady)—You needn't be afraid, ma'am. Your boy will keep out of my way after this.—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Mann—That was a very pretty bonnet that Miss Kapote had on. Mrs. Mann—And pray, how long have you been a judge of millinery? Mr. Mann—Never claimed to be. All I know is the other women declared that it was ridiculous.—Boston Transcript.

Gus—Did you make an impression on that pretty girl you were so still about? George—I'm afraid not. When I called she summoned her chaperon, and then the two spent the evening arguing the points of a new costume, with me as umpire.—New York Weekly.

In the electric: First Standee—Do you believe that a man has a right to kick, under sufficient provocation? Second standee—Most certainly. First standee—I am glad you think as I do; but how in time am I to kick unless you get off my foot?—Boston Transcript.

Don't Die Before Your Time.

"Why will you die?" That is the question the scientists now asks the miserable sufferer from consumption or lung trouble. The answer naturally is "because I can't help it." But the consumptive can help it. Miller's Emulsion, made from Norwegian Cod-Liver, and combined with the hypophosphites of lime and soda will cure nine cases out of ten of consumption, and the tenth case can get a reprieve for a year or two. New blood is what the consumptive requires, and Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, when taken, produces it. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthner and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In Big Bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.
