PROPOSED ADDITIONAL WATER PIPE.

MR. CHARLES HEARTZ calls attention, in his own plain and straightforward way, to a matter of some interest and importance. The Legislature has enabled the Water Commissioners to issue debentures for an additional sum of $20,000, to be expended, in part or in whole, in the extension of a second main pipe from the waterworks station along the Malpeque Road to the city; and the question is, whether or not it is expedient or right, under our present circumstances, to spend the money and have the extension? It seems to us the decision of the question depends wholly upon the necessity of the case. At present we are dependent upon one main pipe. If it be possible, or probable, that this pipe should burst and the city be deprived of water for any considerable length of time, then the work ought not to be delayed from any monetary consideration; for our taxpayers might lose more in the course of one fire, should there be no water to quench it, than would pay for the extension ten times over. The outlay of $20,000, to which the Commissioners are limited, will involve additional taxation to the extent of about $800—about forty cents per head per year of all the ratepayers, or nearly a dollar per head of those who pay taxes upon real estate. We ought to try to keep down taxation to the lowest possible point that is consistent with safety. This is not the time to expend, unnecessarily, $20,000, involving a tax of $800 a year. Every honest man has to economise in view of the present quiet times, the extreme competition in business, and the taxes which are now being heaped upon us by the Provincial Government; and our civic authorities outght not to "launch out" unless it be prudent and necessary to do so. The point is as to the necessity of this water pipe extension at this time. We should like to have the opinion of an authority upon this point.

FARMERS AND FREE TRADE.

FREE trade seems not to agree with the farmers of Great Britain. The Mark Lane Express, the leading agricultural paper of England, remarks:

"There can be no more terrible and at the same time convincing object lesson as to the present state of agriculture, than a glance through the bankruptcy report of the year which has just come to an end. The subject is a painful one, but it is necessary to face it boldly, and to appreciate its meaning. To put the matter broadly, we may say that ever since 1889, there has been an increase in the number of bankrupts who have been described as farmers. In 1890 there were 240, in 1891 there were 260, in 1892 the figures had increased to 320, and in 1893 it had grown to no less a number than 373. Last year (1894) it is true that there was a slight decrease, for the figures stood at 347—a decrease of twenty-six. This, however, is not anything upon which we can congratulate ourselves, for the total is still serious enough to make any thinking man pause and consider what it portends. What does it mean? It means that in 347 days out of 365 which makes one year there is a farmer who is adjudged a bankrupt. There is only eighteen bankruptcies less then there are days in the year. If we leave out the Sundays, it means that here is more than one a day.

"In the bankruptcy report the farmers appear in a class to themselves, but there is another heading which also needs mention. "Corn, Cattle, and Seed," is a phrase which, covering as it does factors, dealers, and tradesmen, who exist only because of the existence of the farmers, must also be taken into account. In this class there were nearly as many bankruptcies (211) during the past year. This is only another confirmation of the desperate state of affairs. Then, further, we must note that 242 farmers entered into deeds of arrangements during the year, which strange to say, is exactly the same number as last year. This, of course, is practically bankruptcy, although there may be technical differences. Further than this, 469 farmers have found it necessary to give bills of sale over their belongings during the twelve months—a fact which shows how serious their position must have been.

"It surely is a matter of the very greatest and gravest concern to a nation when its greatest and most important national industry is threatened with extinction. It is more so when we remember that it is the industry upon which we rely for our food supply. The fact that we import so many food stuffs does not lessen the difficulty, but rather makes the situation the more serious, for it means that in the case of a serious war we may be absolutely dependent upon our home produce."

If the farmers of Great Britain are in the condition here described, how would it be with the farmers of Canada if they were subject to the fiscal system which Mr. Laurier declares it his intention to introduce. The farmers of Great Britain are protected against the competition of the United States by three thousand miles of ocean: the farmers of Canada live right alongside their competitors, and but for the duties imposed under the National Policy, the pork, oats, horses, etc, produced on the prairies would come right into Ontario and Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to the confusion and ruin of Canadian farmers. Farmers whose heads are level will vote for the N. P. every time.

—The death of Lord Randolph Churchill has been the occasion of much comment. In the opinion of the Pall Mall Gazette, "the Conservatives owe far more to Lord Randolph Churchill than he owed to them. His rare political insight, his unflinching courage and his restless enterprise roused the party to a commanding position when its fortunes were at the lowest ebb." The London Globe says that he possessed in the fullest measure a magnetic character which cannot be acquired. He was a born leader of men and was destined for the highest position until his health, which was never strong, broke down under the strain of ceaseless toil and excitement." The early breakdown and death of the promising young statesman is regretted by the press and public in all parts of the United Kingdom.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—An Islander residing at Dickinson, North Dakota says:

"We are having the finest sort of weather,—scarcely any snow yet. Cattle and sheep on the ranges are doing finely. We are wintering 3,180 head of sheep; have not fed any hay yet, and sincerely hope we will not have to feed any this winter. We fed but very little last winter. Wilson and his Free Trade Bill have been more disastrous to the sheep industry in Dakota and Montana than the hard winters, and we hope for a brighter day before long."

—The Empire remarks that though it is expedient that Newfoundland should not be brought into confederation until the present troubled condition of the Island has been settled, and definite plans made for future action, her destiny points towards her becoming part of the Dominion. The New England press is, however, taking advantage of the opportunity to advocate the annexation of Newfoundland to the United States. The desire of the New Englanders to obtain possession of Newfoundland can be well understood, and the Boston Herald's kindness in offering the United States market for Newfoundland products is another way of saying that Yankee capital and fishermen would greatly enjoy the full possession of the cod and seal industries, which now employ such a large portion of the island's inhabitants. The boast, however, that the Washington Government could arrange the French coast possession in short order, while it is impossible for England to procure relief, is an instance of American assurance.

NEWS NOTES.

Police Magistrate Planta, of Nanaimo, B. C., has skipped the country. An investigation shows that for years he has been converting public money to his own use. Planta is said to have started for Hawaii—a very good place for people of his stamp.

A gigantic project is on foot to build by private capital a canal from Lake Erie to the sea, via New York. The distance from Lake Erie to New York is 720 miles. The Welland Canal, Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River, Lake Francis, Lake Champlain and the Hudson River are to be utilized as intervening waters.

The London Times states that the Dominion Government is urging the Imperial authorities to institute a long service decoration for the Colonial militia. The War Office authorities state that the matter is under consideration, but that until a committee of army officers examine the Colonial volunteers' military regulations nothing will be done.

Physical deterioration has been increasing steadily in the British army in the last 20 years. In 1875 there were only 65 soldiers in a thousand under five foot five; last year there were 127. The 608 in a thousand measuring less than 37 inches round the chest has grown to 685. The proportion of enlisted men under 20 years of age has increased from 97 in a thousand to 170, while that of men over 30 has decreased from 340 to 88 in a thousand.

LITERARY NOTES.

Dr. Parkhurst starts out as a writer for women in the February Ladies' Home Journal in a way which promises to be most interesting. His vigorous style is in his work, and his direct way of putting truths leaves no room for misinterpreting his ideas about women. For his first article he coins a new word, "Andromaniacs," by which he designates the type of woman who wants to be mannish and apes the ways of men. That he is not in sympathy with them is evident, and his promise of discussing the women who want to vote, who want to preach and who desire to be in business in his future Journal article gives further evidence of his deep interest in humanity. While Dr. Parkhurst is the feature of this number, Reginald de Koven, the composer of "Robin Hood," is prominent with his new song, "Roses of Love," of which the full music is given. Arthur Warren is likewise excellent in an interesting and beautifully-illustrated article on Queen Marguerite, of Italy, which shows this favorite Queen at close range in her home life. John Kendrick Bangs is very funny in his "Paradise Club," while another humorist, Robert J. Burdette, departs from the humorous and tells the tender love story of his wife and himself in "The Woman Who Most Influenced Me." Mr. Howells takes up Zola and the French school in his literary autibiography, and Thomas a'Becket is exceedingly practical and helpful in his article on 'The Correct Way to Play a Piano." The famous and funny "Brownies" are on a lark on a raft this time. A beautiful page of Empire embroidery is given, and will be timely in this wave of Napoleonic interest. The cover of the Journal this month is also Empire, showing a striking "girl of the Directoire," by Alice Barber Stephens, and altogether it is a number which does credit even to The Ladies' Home Journal, and is certainly worth its nominal price of ten cents.

LINES ON SIR JOHN THOMPSON.

The honors to which men proudly aim
Are transient, passing quick away;
Nought substantial's found in earthly fame.
The greatest soul is but encased in clay,
And this is soon
A mould'ring ruin,
And rests for ever hid from human eyes,
While a crude stone marks where genius lies.

The empty titles that a king bestows,
How frail they be before the reaper grim!
They serve alone their weakness to expose,
And teach proud man to have trust in Him
Who knows us all,
Both great and small.
Through Whom alone we can be truly great,
Whether high in birth or low in poor estate.

The applause of senates and the vulgar throng
Avails but little in the pass of death;
But a life well lived will make a hero strong,
And teach how to yield this temporary breath.
And lay life down
And take his crown;
With his deeds fore'er on earth enshrined,
An inspiring hope for human kind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

LETTER FROM MR. CHARLES HEARTZ

SIR,—The time has come that one of our City Water Commissioners has to retire and come before the people again, and there to be justified or condemned for his actions. I called to see Mr. Halloran the other day and asked him if he was going to come out again, and he said he was. I then asked him of his views on the second water pipe, as I wanted to sound him on this point. He said that the people wanted it, and that there was quite a number along the line that would take water, and there would be quite a revenue from it. He named the different families that he said would take the water. I counted five along the line. I think that is a small affair to spend twenty or say thirty thousand dollars on. It will cost them a great deal or it will not amount to much. There is one thing that I wish our City Councillors to take notice of, and that is those persons living on that line they would have their water by paying the water fees or taxes," and leave the freeholders in Charlottetown to pay the smart—that is to pay the debentures. I would ask any reasonable person if that is fair? Think of this citizens? Think of this City Councillors? You sent one man home last year for his rash action. You can send another if you think fit. Be afraid of no man. Look after your own interests before you are ruined. I called on four of the City Councillors. I wanted to have their views on this second pipe, and I found their views very different. One of them said that he would not sign their debentures unless they guaranteed in writing that they would get the interest from it. Another one said that he would not go for the second pipe because he did not think that the engine would be fit to stand the strain of forcing the water through a twelve-inch pipe from the pumping station to the city and that he would go for a second pipe from the pumping station to the reservoir. Another one said that he thought they could not go on without bringing it before the City Council. I said to him that I was of a different opinion. I thought all they wanted, of the Council was to sign their debentures so I cantioned him and went to another, and he told me that he would not sign one of them. I would remark that when that pipe was first spoken of it was only to cost twelve thousand and now they have got it up to twenty thousand and if it goes on it will not stop at that. There was nothing about a second engine, now there is, and if so you will want double the amount of coal and will you want the second engineer? If not he will want a larger salary, so that the expenses of running the affair will be greatly increased. The small amount that would be taken from those persons outside the city would not amount to a great deal to tempt any person to go into such a wild speculation. I was a little surprised at the change that has come over our late water commissioner since he entered that office When he first came in to that office he said to me that he was not in favour of the second pipe. Now he advocates it. The only way I can account for the change is this: There was a bait and trap set to catch him. You may set a trap for mice or anything else, and unless you bait it the mouse will not notice it. Fix the bait and you may be sure of him. The bait in this case is the increase in the salary. I will admit that there is a temptation in it, and it has caught others as well as him. This might not be the case with him. It may be that some other reason might have been the cause of the change of his views. I always found him a clever man. I turn my attention to the city councillors in general. Gentlemen, may I ask your favour for a little as you are the only safeguard we have. Will you be kind enough to see that there is no unnecessary burden or tax laid on us, for it would be as well to die by hunger as die by over-taxing. Gentlemen, do try to keep together as one man and not allow those divisions of fours as have so often taken place, and the Mayor has to give the casting vote. We may as well have no councillors as to allow the Mayor to have to settle it. Please, gentlemen, do the thing well. Your interest is mine and every freeholder in the city. I hope that you will have the wisdom of Solomon to guide you. Yours,

CHARLES HEARTZ.

SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION AT KELLY'S CROSS.

On Monday, the 21st inst, Mr. McLeod, the genial Superintendent of Education, paid his annual visit to our school. Rev. P. A. McElmeel, who takes a deep and active interest in the schools in his missions, was present as were the trustees of the school and a goodly number of the parents of the pupils. The junior department taught by Miss Maggie McKenna was first examined. In this room there were 36 young children present. The Superintendent after carefully examining the classes, expressed his satisfaction with the work which was being done by Miss McKenna, and complemented the children on the creditable manner in which they had acquitted themselves. Miss McKenna is evidently giving her careful attention to her little pupils.

In the afternoon, the Principal's (Mr. James H. Devereaux) department was examined. Here there were 33 advanced pupils present, who were subjected by Mr. McLeod to a searching examination in algebra, geometry, Latin, and all the higher branches taught in a first class school. The readiness and accuracy with which they answered and solved the different questions put to them showed their intelligent understanding and complete mastery of the subjects studied, and bore abundant evidence of Mr. Devereaux being a thorough, painstaking and zealous teacher. At the close of the examination, Mr. McLeod took occasion to compliment the pupils on the general proficiency exhibited by them, remarking that to one of the most difficult problems which he was in the habit of putting to the pupils of the different schools visited by him, he received the best answer from the fifth class of Kelly's Cross school. Good for Kelly's Cross! He also remarked that Kelly's Cross was one of the best, if not the best, first-class country school he had the pleasure of visiting and ended by paying a graceful tribute to Mr. Devereaux's ability and success as a teacher. Father McElmeel then, in his own happy way, addressed the pupils contrasting the difference between the schools and teachers to-day and those of thirty years ago and pointing out the many and great advantages which the children of to-day enjoy which were unknown to the poor school boys of the "The Good Old Times." He also referred to the great opportunities and possibilities that lay before the school boys and school girls of to-day if they were only attentive to their studies and conducted themselves in after life as christian young men and women. With good conduct and a good education it was possible for them to gain the highest honors and attain the most distinguished place and positions in this "Canada of ours." The learned gentlemen brought his remarks to a close by congratulating the pupils on the proficiency manifested by them in their studies, referring in flattering terms to the assistant's (Miss McKenna) praiseworthy work among her little pupils and highly complimenting Principal Devereaux in the high standing of excellence to which he has brought his department. Visitors, trustees and parents present all expressed themselves as highly pleased with the progress of the school, and thus ended one of the best, most satisfactory and enjoyable examinations ever held at Kelly's Cross. Just here it may not be out of place to remark that Superintendent McLeod, by his affability and quiet, unassuming manners has made many warm friends at Kelly's Cross, and each visit adds largely to the number. By his kindness and gentleness in the schoolroom and his cheerful, encouraging words, he has gained the love and confidence of the children, who have come to look forward to the Superintendent's visit as a kind of pleasant holiday rather than a hard day's work solving knotty problems.

That Kelly's Cross school may continue to maintain the high standing of excellence to which it has attained is the wish of Manitoba School Question.

LONDON, Jan. 30.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has allowed the appeal of the Roman Catholics of Manitoba in the case of Brophy vs. the Attorney-General of Manitoba, but they refused to give costs to appellant. This judgment is to the effect that the Dominion Government are possessed of power to grant the Roman Catholics of Manitoba remedial legislation for the support of their separate schools, abolished in 1890 when the Manitoba School Act was passed, doing away with all but state schools.

GENERAL TELEGRPAIC NEWS.

LONDON, January 28.—The Morning Post says of the federation conference about to open in Hobarttown, Tasmania: "Hitherto the political leaders have favored federation, but the electorate has hesitated. We hope the debates at the Ottawa inter-colonial conference will cause the Australians to speak from one mind, so that the resolutions passed in Hobarttown will not share the fate of those passed in Sydney and Melbourne. The conference seems to offer also a fitting opportunity to discuss the question of Australia bearing her share of the cost of the navy, or at any rate the expense of coaling stations especially if Australia has decided to partake of the privileges of the Anglo-Japanese treaty."

MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—The Mechanics hall building, containing a library of 12,000 volumes, was set fire to this evening by a discharged caretaker named John Robertson, and the premises badly damaged by fire and water. There was $75,000 insurance on the building and $10,000 on the library, both risks being in the Phœnix Company. Robertson has been arrested and locked up.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—A special from the city of Mexico says: "Nothing is heard now but rumors of war? which seems inevitable. All opposition papers are siding with the Diaz government. Some extravagant offers of aid are made by foreign residents. Great activity is evident at the Government arms factory here, fifty thousand cartridges for the use of the Mexican army being turned out every week. These are rushed to the Guatemalan border with other supplies. There is marked silence about the government offices in connection with the Guatemalan episode."
