NEWFOUNDLAND.

It seems that Newfoundland may soon afford an illustration of the truth of the saying that "the darkest hour is just before the dawn." She has not yet emerged from the difficulty into which she has been plunged by her reckless and unprincipled politicians. Nor is there yet, in a political sense, any clear prospect of relief except in union with Canada or relapse into the state of a Crown Colony. But a decided improvement in respect to business and the development of her resources has set in. The discovery of a coal mine close to the line of railway and the beginning of practical coal-mining operations has, apparently, worked a revolution in the hopes and feelings of the people. It has, from the first, been known that Newfoundland contained valuable coal areas. But the opening up and utilization of these areas has been impossible owing to the want of means of communication and transport. These have at last been supplied by the railway. The contractor for the railway has taken in hand the establishment of coal mining and other industries. The coal mine that has just been opened is, we are told, only forty miles from a good shipping port on the west coast, and eighty miles from the sea on north. It is expected that it will supply the home market, which has heretofore been dependent upon Nova Scotia, and eventually enter into competition with other coal-producing countries. The production of pulp is also an enterprise in which it is hoped that money will be made. A ship-load of pulp wood was lately sent to Scotland with favorable results, and pulp mills are to be established forthwith. Of spruce and other suitable woods for pulp there is an inexhaustible store in Newfoundland, and there is also an abundance of cheap labor, together with coal. It is hoped that other latent industries will be revived or set on foot as a result of the success of the coal mining enterprise. The copper mines of Newfoundland are of first-rate excellence. Extensive deposits of iron have been tapped there, yielding sixty per cent. of pure metal of the highest economical value. Asbestos, we are told, exists in large quantities, and borings for petroleum are now being made with every prospect of a large flow of oil, while lead and other minerals are known to exist in paying quantities. So that Newfoundland will not long continue to be dependent only upon her large fisheries. She will, in all probability, soon have that diversity of industries which inures to national prosperity. Unfortunately she is weighed down by a heavy load of debt and needs an absolute reform in respect to her politics and government. Decidedly the best way to get rid of the one and ensure the other is, to unite with Canada. If negotiations to that end should be re-opened with the Dominion Cabinet we hope that the Government and Parliament will consider the proposition in a broad and liberal spirit. The position of Newfoundland in respect to Canada is of the highest importance, while her great material wealth, as yet undeveloped, assures her future.

PROFESSOR ROBERTSON'S VIEWS.

PROFESSOR ROBERTSON delivered a lecture in Montreal a few evenings ago on the subject of Agriculture. In it he pointed out that there are now cultivated in Canada no less than 25,000,000 acres of land. These he said ought to be so worked that they would sustain in affluence 25,000,000 of people. Canadians have now, he declared, a better prospect than the people of England had in Queen Elizabeth's time. In fact, if Canada were half true to her opportunities, even in agriculture, she would have so many people in the country of such robust character that her civilization would be the telling one in humanity in years to come, when it would be harder to live than it is now. It is because we have hardships to meet that we shall become a hardy people. The Canadian half of this continent, said the lecturer, peopled with well-fed men, would give her citizens an influence that would dominate peacefully the destinies of America. Prof. Robertson said that if the country people and the city people would pull together they could live well within themselves, exchange between themselves, make the most of the resources of our own country, and realize on them to the full. Speaking of the magnitude of agriculture in Canada, he said (we quote the Star's report) that in our central territory we had the great basin of Hudson's Bay, which gave us the largest area of agricultural land. Then there was the great basin of the St. Lawrence, the basin of the St. John River, and the Atlantic slope, whilst West the great basin of the Peace and Mackenzie Rivers, and the whole of the Pacific slope, which was admirably adapted for growing wheat and barley, as well as fruit, of rich flavor and excellent quality. Of the population of the Dominion, forty-five per cent. are engaged in agricultural pursuits, and their prosperity very materially affected the prosperity of the other fifty-five per cent., as well as that of the carrying companies of the country. The more that agriculture is developed, the larger the population that will be employed, and we would have a diversified style of production which would make us a self-sustaining nation. These are encouraging words.

AN OLD PARLIAMENTARIAN.

Sir,—An article entitled "A Mischief Making Adventurer" in the Herald of this week has been brought to my notice. I presume it is intended to give the editor's opinion of the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn and his lecture delivered on the 5th November before St. George's, L. O. Lodge. In the appointments the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn is being brought in as a test case in the lap of indifference. Thanks, Mr. editor, but not quite all of them. There is a good book that says, "we use you when all men shall speak well of you, for so did their fathers to the false prophets." Did you ever read that book, Mr. editor? He says: "Those who engage in this unenviable occupation are, as a rule, ecclesiastics, importations, adventurers, and the lecturer endeavored to create in the minds of his hearers a hatred of Catholics." It is a wonder the editor is not afraid of being hissed at in the streets of Charlottetown for making such a statement and for accusing the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn of speaking an untruth, a gentleman who stands second to none in our city. The Herald refers to Gavazzi as an apostate Italian priest whom Cardinal Newman said was a man who would sell his soul for the most revolting immorality. It goes on to say, he received the warmest commendations from the lecturer; then he in turn, by asking the question, "Is it be-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE PARK ROADWAY.

DEAR SIR,—The public has had another pronouncement from Mr. H. J. Cundall. He says: "The plan of itself is quite sufficient for the purposes of the grant and survey, while the description through precise in some particulars is defective and incomplete in others." Just so; this reminds me of the tailor fitting a coat, take a little off here and add a little more there, and it will fit. Then he adds: "In my opinion," which he would have the public accept in opposition to the unanimous opinion of the Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Vice-Chancellor and the Attorney-General, also the plan and description should not be disassociated if by any reasonable conclusion they can be reconciled together as they are in full accordance with each other and with the intention of the Legislature. Could anything be more absurd and ridiculous. The Attorney-General showed the Court that the plan was only a fancy sketch, or a landscape drawing, and Mr. Cundall now justifies that opinion. Mr. John Hall made his survey in 1873, over twenty years ago, and Mr. Cundall made the Survey and Plan attached to the Bill of 1887. It is fair presumption that Mr. Cundall knew of Mr. Hall's survey and would naturally look up the plan of his work. If he was as zealous then as he is interested now why did he not report the fact to the City Council that they were entitled to a correct plan of the bank rather than take forty feet as his survey shows?

Now for the intention of the Legislature. The Journals of 1876 show that on the 23rd day of April—(I think you were then reporter of the House):—"The order of the day for the second reading of the Bill intituled an act to vest a certain portion of Government House Farm in the City of Charlottetown for certain purposes therein mentioned being read, the Bill was accordingly read a second time. Ordered that the said Bill be now committed to a Committee of the whole House."

The House accordingly resolved itself into the said committee. Mr. Holland took the chair of the Committee and after some time spent therein Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair and the Chairman reported that the Committee made several amendments thereto and the Report was again read at the Clerk's table and agreed to by the House. Ordered that the said Bill be amended, be engrossed and the title be an Act to vest a certain portion of the Government House Farm in the City of Charlottetown for certain purposes therein mentioned."

Ordered that the said Bill be amended, be engrossed and the title be an Act to vest a certain portion of the Government House Farm in the City of Charlottetown for certain purposes therein mentioned."

Now let me recall a few mere facts. In April, 1876, when the bill passed the Legislature, the late Hon. T. H. Haviland was Colonial Secretary, and as the records show was present on that day. He was one of the most acute and astute members of the legislature, besides which he took a great interest in all and everything relating to his native city and was always ready to assist in any way. In September, 1886, he became Mayor of Charlottetown, and in May of next year the bill of 1887 was passed, of which Mr. Cundall made the plan and survey, which is still in the office of the Mayor. This plan calls for forty feet inside the bank, "commencing at a post built in the southern side of the Governor's bridge, at four feet six inches westerly from the western side of the opening in the culvert in the said bridge," &c. Can any man in this community, unless he be one of an interested few, believe that Mayor Haviland would have accepted forty feet of land where the city was clearly entitled to one hundred?

A CRITIC CRITICIZED.

Sir,—An article entitled "A Mischief Making Adventurer" in the Herald of this week has been brought to my notice. I presume it is intended to give the editor's opinion of the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn and his lecture delivered on the 5th November before St. George's, L. O. Lodge. In the appointments the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn is being brought in as a test case in the lap of indifference. Thanks, Mr. editor, but not quite all of them. There is a good book that says, "we use you when all men shall speak well of you, for so did their fathers to the false prophets." Did you ever read that book, Mr. editor? He says: "Those who engage in this unenviable occupation are, as a rule, ecclesiastics, importations, adventurers, and the lecturer endeavored to create in the minds of his hearers a hatred of Catholics." It is a wonder the editor is not afraid of being hissed at in the streets of Charlottetown for making such a statement and for accusing the Rev. Mr. Hamlyn of speaking an untruth, a gentleman who stands second to none in our city. The Herald refers to Gavazzi as an apostate Italian priest whom Cardinal Newman said was a man who would sell his soul for the most revolting immorality. It goes on to say, he received the warmest commendations from the lecturer; then he in turn, by asking the question, "Is it because he was a man after his own heart, a congenial spirit, that this apostate is so warmly commended?" With respect to the Herald's allusion to Gavazzi—granting it to be true, and it is not—one is inclined to ask where did this priest learn and practice all this immorality? But apart from this, the Herald displayed but little prudence when alluding to Cardinal Newman's accusations, for the editor is probably aware that the Cardinal was once convicted by the English law courts as being the base defamer of Achery, a former priest of Rome, and condemned to pay damages and costs to the amount of $46,000, and Newman had to appeal to Roman Catholics throughout the world for subscriptions to pay the amount. Sir, the Herald tells its readers—few in number—that the rev. lecturer's name is not worth mentioning. When the editor of that weekly undertakes to defame or belittle the character of Mr. Hamlyn it reminds me of the silly attempt of a dirty street urchin to throw down a stone building by pelting mud against it. Mr. McLeas was asked to speak at the lecture. He sat there and took notes. An ample opportunity was given every day for a word out of him. Of course, his conduct as he spoke as if his conscience was touched by the honest appeal made to him by the lecturer as a man being of age to be trusted and act for himself, and not from behind the shelter of his office attempts to quote history. Says the editor, "Like all conspirators, they bound themselves to secrecy by an oath." Why did not the editor tell his readers the whole truth that that oath and the Eucharist of the Church of Rome was administered by a priest. Then he attempts to throw his vile dirt at Father Gavazzi, because he cited the Bible to his countrymen and would have them to think and read for themselves. Here is what the Converted Catholic of New York, says of Gavazzi: "The celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the occupation of Rome by the troops of Garibaldi was marked by the unveiling of a monument to the memory of the great Italian soldier, on the Janiculum Hill, and also the dedication of a monument to Father Gavazzi, which is erected over his grave in the Protestant cemetery, where the poets, Keats and Shelley, are buried. Father Gavazzi was chaplain in chief of the Italian troops, and fought by the side of Garibaldi; but when Rome became the capital of Italy he turned to the Bible and opened it to his countrymen as the source of light and foundation of liberty. He established the Free Evangelical Church of Italy and lived to see it progress. He visited the United States several times, the last time in 1881, when he delivered his final discourse in this country at our services in Masonic Temple. It was the last day of July and the great feast was intense, but the great Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. The Rev. lecturer never said a word to hurt the feelings of any Roman Catholic more than to quote a history which the Herald has attempted to repeat. He spoke very feelingly of his Catholic neighbors, and in a good Christian manner hoped that no one would take offence as he did not wish to give any. The Herald would like the Rev. lecturer to repeat, 'I presume he is a Romanist.' I presume he would like to expunge all denominational names Presbyterians, Methodists, &c., and all become Roman Catholics, they are trying to do in England and the wings out the window. Put the two Bibles there. I am glad his Holiness the Pope has ordered the Study of the Bible, and now let it be done. Then the Irish priest, Rev. John O'Connor, converted Catholic, let us have both sides in a good Christian spirit. For, one I would join the Roman Catholic Church to-morrow, not for a good husband or wife, but for the sake of the Holy Bible. I would not be held by minister or priest in my determination to do what was right. In conclusion I would like to ask the editor of the Herald why it is that the Rev. lecturer is not invited to the Roman Catholic Church are not invited like Roman Catholics who see fit to become Protestant? Another instance we had of late is that of Father Lambert, a reformed priest who became a Wesleyan Methodist Minister, and many others I might quote who cannot walk the streets without being insulted. Will he point out any lady or gentleman who has been elsewhere who ever had a finger pointed at them because they joined the Roman Catholic Church. Then why so much talk about our people being intolerant? Who is intolerant? I am sure that every one should worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

Matters Going From Bad to Worse. FALL OF THE SULTAN IMMINENT. CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19. Nobody in Constantinople doubts either that the Sultan, or the palace clique under his ascend, ordered the massacres, or that the regular troops are plundering and killing in accordance with the orders of their superior officers. Things have gone so far in this direction that the Sultan finds he has no power to control the storm that he raised. He cannot even command order among the troops attached to his own palace. The people no longer hesitate to speak against the Sultan in the streets and in the cafes and other public places, believing his fall to be imminent.
