SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

Execution of Kemmler.

AUBURN, Aug. 6.

Kemmler was executed by electricity at 6.48 this morning. Kemmler's nerve was something wonderful. He never faltered. He directed the adjustment of himself in the chair and counselled not to hurry, and to be sure everything was all right.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 6.

In the autopsy on Kemmler's body, the physicians found evidence to the effect of the current on the formation of the skull, the blood and brain tissue, which satisfied them that paralysis of the brain was immediate, and all sensation was instantly destroyed.

The Popes' Health.

ROME, July 5.

In order to officially contradict the rumors of his ill health, the Pope to-day celebrated high Mass in the Pauline chapel. It was made the occasion of a great state ceremony. His Holiness has expressed himself as extremely grieved at the anti-christian policy of the Italian government, which is suppressing all religious guilds and seizing their property.

An Island Bark Lost.

QUEBEC, Aug. 6.

This morning the steamer Nepigon, of the Beaver line, arrived in port when a strong flood tide was running. She was put about to allow the inspection of the cattle on board. When the inspection was over Pilot Arcand tried to steer the Nepigon around and in this attempt ran straight into the stern of the bark Isabel of P. E. Island, moored at Atkinson Wharf.

Mackerel Scarce.

A Gloucester despatch of the 5th says: A letter received here to-day by Roderick McDonald, the shipping agent, from one of the crew of the schooner David Sherman, of this port, dated Souris, P. E. I., July 31, states that a cruise had been made all the way from Canso to Margaree, thence across to the Magdalen Islands, and from there to Bradley Bank, across to Point Miscou, down the New Brunswick shore to Shediac, thence across to West Cape, down the Island to East Point, and across without seeing one school or catching a single mackerel on the hook, although they tried with hook and line all the way along.

The schooner Fredonia, Capt. Solomon Jacobs, was spoken July 29 and told a similar story. The boat fishermen were catching a few fish on the hook inshore around the Island, and the netters were doing fairly well. The mackerel are the largest caught for a number of years.

Railway Improvements.

SIR,—Now that we are honored with the presence of the Premier of Canada, the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, who also holds the portfolio of Minister of Railways and Canals, would it not be well to call his attention to the evident need of a new Railway Depot more in harmony with the character of the capital city of this Province of the Dominion. The present patched up building is altogether behind the age. By the way, what is the Charlottetown Board of Trade doing in the matter of railway extension along the wharves? OBSERVER.

K D. C. for the Stomach.

Thoughts.

I fain would live the Christ-life and be taught, Of Him alone who lived the perfect life, But was He not reviled and spat upon, And as the Friend of sinners rudely scorned; So we who fain would follow in His steps, Must look for scorn, reproaches and neglect, Must carry with our Lord the cross of pain. E. L. F.
