'YOUNG STRANGER' ABSORBING MOVIE

RKO's "The Young Stranger," at the Summerside Capitol Theatre, is a fine movie about an important subject — the teenager's struggle to be understood by adults, especially by his parents. It's a serious story, one that could have happened to anyone. But it has many moments of lively humor, too.

James MacArthur makes an auspicious movie debut in the title role. Kim Hunter and TV's James Daly, co-starred with MacArthur, are excellent as his parents — busy for family problems. Miss Hunter as a devoted wife who finds her husband and son drifting away from her.

The story has MacArthur innocently involved in a fight with a hot-tempered theatre manager, only to find that nobody believes his story that he hit the man in self-defense. His attempts to prove his honesty and thereby save his honor are shown with sympathy and in a way that holds the audience's interest. Honor can be a very important thing at seventeen — as, indeed, it should be at any age. It's hard to keep from getting very angry at the smug adults in this movie, who automatically assume that, because he's a teenager, MacArthur is the one who's lying.

"The Young Stranger" may leave you wondering "Could this happen to me?" or, worse, "Could I ever cause this to happen to someone else — perhaps my own son?"

5 LB., 10 OZ. BEAUTY

Fifteen-year-old Leonard Blanchard of Tignish received the thrill of his life Monday morning when he caught the magnificent trout shown above on his first cast into stream near his home. Not having a landing net, Leonard was obliged to play the fish for almost half an hour before getting it ashore. On receiving word of the large catch, Prince County Game Officer W. H. Benger called for the young angler and the trout was taken to Perry's Store in Tignish where it weighed out at five pounds ten ounces and was twenty-three inches long. This is the largest trout reported in Prince County in recent years if not the largest on the island, exclusive of rainbows. About eight years ago a six pound two ounce trout was caught near the same location. Leonard was using a glass rod and worms for bait.

Potato Producers Seem Cool On Central Grading

One of the producer members present at the meeting of the Prince County Potato Producers Association at Summerside, Monday also expressed disappointment with the small attendance and said that for a meeting of potato growers in Prince County the attendance should be so large that there would be difficulty in finding a building in Summerside big enough to accommodate the crowd at a meeting of this nature.

Frank Jardine said he believed that the farmers are interested in the organization and in the potato industry but that they are pretty well satisfied with the grading regulations they now have, and are not looking for anything new.

Considerable discussion revolved around the suggestion made at the second annual Potato Field Day in Charlottetown on August 6th by Paul Clement, Supervisor of Consolidated Retail Services, Ottawa, to the effect that compulsory inspection of table stock potatoes be discontinued in favor of central packaging by experienced graders.

The chairman, Mr. Mulligan said that as an inspector for five years he had found it was difficult to watch all the stock being loaded, especially in busy seasons, and that a few indifferent graders could result in a dropping of the average grade. He said he had read recently the statement that "Growing is one business, and packaging is another business." He said that Prince Edward Island growers have been selling potatoes on quality, which is better than other places, but he pointed out that appearance is also important.

John Dawson, of Albany, told of visiting several large cities where he was told in supermarkets that consumers "Like to buy P.E.I. potatoes because they are all good." He urged the farmers to keep a cool grade, and to try to improve the poorer producers. He said that many producers who so not know how to grow potatoes most effectively, and stressed the importance of cultivation and spraying.

Mr. MacLennan said that there are points both in favor and against central marketing and central packaging, but he pointed out that there is not enough pack-

Rededicate Lot 16 Pioneer Church Vessels

An impressive service was held in Lot 16 Church on Sunday morning when the Rev. Alexander MacKay re-dedicated the first silver communion service used in the original Presbyterian Church which was built by Robert Milligan who presented this communion service to the church in 1826. Mr. Milligan was ordained as an elder in 1821.

Rev. Mr. MacKay based his eloquent sermon on 1st cor 15: 8 verses and was a challenge to all to be firm in their belief and to their church. The scripture lesson was read from the large Bible belonging to Robert Milligan and which was presented to his father, John Milligan by his son in Scotland in 1818 who emigrated to this Island, the former in 1819 and John Milligan in 1825 and whose graves are at the rear of the church. This Bible was printed in 1812 from the London edition by Bemsley 1791.

The organist was Mrs. Carr. Two solos were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Erland and Miss Ruth Ramsay, which added much to this interesting and inspirational service.

A guest book presented by Mrs. Fred Inman and presided over by Mrs. Roger MacLean a descendant of Mr. Milligan was signed by many visitors and relatives of the above who attended the service from Brae, Freeland, Northam, Sherbrooke and Summerside.

Others from distant parts included Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith, Arlington, Mass. Mrs. Clara Milligan Hardy, Holden, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Milligan, Moose Jaw, Sask. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Souther, Hamilton, Ontario, Margaret D. Murray and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Anderson of Moncton N.B.

The church was decorated with beautiful flowers and wonderful spirit of rich fellowship and appreciation was felt by all present to the congregation of Lot 16 for their interest in placing this communion service in the church as a memorial of those who pioneered.
