TAKE WARNING!

Neglect Not These Signals of Danger.

A Useful Lesson on Health Taught by The Indians' Example.

Let the Remedy be Simple and Safe—Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

If you are ailing, not exactly sick but not feeling "just right," have a drowsy, dull feeling, bad taste in the mouth, variable appetite, occasional pains in the joints and muscles, and other signs of impending sickness, why not do as the Indian does—drive such symptoms out of the system by the judicious use of their reliable vegetable remedy, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa?

"Thundering Horse," a Kickapoo chief, age 92 years. From his photograph.

Don't neglect such warnings.

That pain in your shoulder may develop into rheumatism, and a month's sickness deprive you of the income of your toil.

That white, furry tongue denotes your liver is out of order, and disease would easily take root in your system.

What could you do then!

Think of your business, your income and your family.

Seek safety as you would fly from cholera or small pox.

You are in danger if you neglect these warnings. They may pass off, but the chances are against you, and even then the poison is only latent in your system.

Do not, however, put your trust in the numerous mineral medicines with which the market is flooded. The action of many of these decoctions comes from mineral poisons they contain, such as mercury, arsenic, strychnine, bismuth, iodide of potassium, and the like and any druggist will tell you if he tells you truly, that this is so.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian medicines contain only the product of the field and forest, nature's own vegetable growth of roots, barks and herbs, and of necessity are free from all mineral poisons whatever, because the Indians have no knowledge of them, depending wholly upon nature's laboratory for their resources, and upon their skill, born of centuries of experience, in preparing them.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the Indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable of druggists and medicine dealers only. One dollar per bottle; six bottles for five dollars.

FREE Send three two-cent stamps to pay postage and we will mail you free a thrilling and interesting book of 128 pages, entitled "Life and Scenes Among the Kickapoo Indians." Tells all about the Indians. Address HEALY & BIGELOW, Distributing Agents, 521 Grand Ave New Haven, Conn.

HOW SHALL WE REACH THE RICH.

One of the latest watchwords of the W. C. T. U., is, "What Next?" One of the greatest problems of Christian philantropists has been "How shall we reach the poor?" Here is one still more difficult to solve. The problem of how to reach the rich. It is comparatively an easy matter to approach the more humble brothers and sisters of toil and want, to endeavor to point out to them the danger and the evils of strong drink, and to urge the importance of its banishment from the home. But it is a much more difficult matter to approach the other class of men and women, sometimes termed the better class. The refined and educated women who govern society and whose responsibilities are so far beyond those of that other class of women. Most ladies are ready to admit that drunkeness is a great evil, that it should be prevented, controlled in some way. These would be horrified and perhaps feel insulted if it was suggested that they were in any way responsible for the sins of intemperance and of impurity. Indignant at the suggestion that their table was made a snare".—Their evening entertainments to be avoided by those who would escape temptation. Alas that this should be the truth. As a rule there is not much wine at parties, not nearly so much as formerly. While we rejoice that the decanter is abolished, and the dainty treacherous wine-glass, we are pained that the "deceiver" finds its way in a more deceptive form. The young man or woman can decline the glass of wine when proffered openly, but when wine is concealed in the tempting fancy dishes, even in the ever popular ice cream, who is to warn them of the danger? "I can easily refuse to drink wine," said a young man," who had recently taken the pledge, but how can I refuse to eat it when I have no knowledge of its presence?" In some instances it is beyond the woman's power to banish the decanter from her table however much she may wish so to do, but who is responsible for the increasing custom of alcohol in food? Where the necessity of wine at all, when there are harmless flavourings equally palatable. It should be a responsibility as well as a privilege to purge from social life, anything that might injure or offend, anything that might unconsciously to the entertainer prove a temptation and a snare to those she wishes to make happy by her social entertainment. Who does not know of some young man, who is bringing anxiety to the hearts of those who love him most by the love of drink, which, going into society has helped to foster and develop, nor is it young men alone, who are in danger by this mistaken custom of society. Is there not danger for the other sex? The fair young girl who sips with such relish her "claret" and partakes so freely of wine flavored ices. Drinking among women has increased so alarmingly in England that there is loud demand for reform, and for the repeal of the "Grocer's license bill." In Canada, thank God, there is no such bill, but there are other causes of alarm, other temptations where least suspected. So-called fashionable society is responsible for a great deal of the evil that is in the world. The evil that is wrought through want of thought. The social entertainment given, with the best intention on the part of the host and hostess, is not always a safe place for the sons and daughters of Canada. The social atmosphere needs cleansing, leaders of society need awakening. "Who is sufficient for these things?" It is the privilege of rich and refined women, says one, to make an atmosphere in which evil passions can find nothing to feed upon, which shall lift all men who breathe in it to a higher level of life. "The malarial places in social life would disappear before the redeeming influence of purified manhood and womanhood, and all the earth would indeed become a garden of the Lord." This blissful state can only be reached through the rich and the influential members of society. With this idea before us can we, White-Ribbon women, not make greater efforts? Shall we not more earnestly seek to banish wine from parlor and from kitchen? Seek to uphold the law of purity as equally binding upon men and women. To be modest in language, behavior, conversation and dress, thus aiding others to keep the command, to be "unspotted from the world." In order to do this we must study carefully and prayerfully, how we shall reach the rich.

JULIA C. TURNBULL,
Supt. Dept. of Purity.

THE CIGAR.

Chauncey M. Depew, the well known orator and railway president, relates the following incident of his victory over the cigar :—"I used to smoke twenty cigars a day and continued it until I became worn out. I had no appetite and was a dyspeptic. I was in the habit of smoking at my desk and thought I derived material assistance in my work from it. After a time I found that I couldn't do any work without tobacco. I couldn't prepare a brief or an argument without it, but still I was harassed by feeling that something was amiss, and the result was not up to the mark. I also found I was incapable of doing any great amount of work. My power of concentration was greatly weakened and I could not think well without a lighted cigar in my mouth. Now it is perfectly clear that without this power of concentration a man is incapable of doing many things. One day I bought a cigar and was puffing it with a feeling of pleasure which is only possible to the devotee. I smoked only a few minutes and then I took it out of my mouth and looked at it. I said to it, "My friend and bosom companion you have always been dearer to me than gold. To you I have ever been devoted, yet you are the cause of all my ills. You have played me false. The time has come when we must part." I gazed sadly and longingly at the cigar and then threw it out of the window. I had been convinced that tobacco was ruining me. For three months after that I underwent the most awful agony, but I did not break my vow. After those three months my longing for it abated and my health improved rapidly. I have never smoked from that day to this; and while no one knows better than I the pleasures to be derived from tobacco, I am still well content to forego them, knowing their effect.

SEASONABLE RECEIPTS.

THE FRAGRANT PINEAPPLE AND THE TOOTHSOME CHERRY.

The Pineapple is Fine for Canning, Preserving or for Making a Cordial—Cherry Jelly and Cherry Ice Are Delicious.

The Fourth of July is considered to be the height of the pineapple season, and the sugar-loaf pineapple, which is altogether the best for preserving, will usually be found in that week to be at its prime and at its cheapest. Good sugar-loaf pineapples can often be bought at this season at $1 a dozen, and the average price should not be over $1.50 a dozen.

The pineapple makes a very fair canned fruit. It is canned in exactly the same way as cherries and requires to be cooked about the same length of time. Its full flavor is brought out best, however, when it is preserved in slices or made into a thick marmalade. A delicious cordial is also made from the sugar-loaf pine.

To preserve pineapples, weigh out three-quarters of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit. Peel, slice and core the pineapple and sprinkle with sugar as you slice. Cover the slices closely and set them away overnight. In the morning they will be nearly covered with a thick syrup. Turn the pineapple and syrup into a preserving kettle and bring it to the boiling point. Let it boil for about five minutes, then put it in cans, which should be standing in boiling water to receive it.

For marmalade, use a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit, and chop the pineapple into as fine bits as possible after peeling and coring it. Mix the sugar with it and in the morning cook it for about half an hour. At the end of this time it should be soft enough to put through a puree sieve. Strain it in this way and return it to the preserving kettle. Continue cooking it, stirring it constantly, until it is a clear amber-colored paste, which becomes firm when it is cold. It will take about a half or three-quarters of an hour longer. Cool in earthen jars.

For a cordial, peel and cut up the pineapples, using the cores which have been rejected in preserving. Put the chopped pineapple in a preserving kettle, covering it barely with water. Let the water boil until the flavor has been thoroughly extracted from the pineapple. Strain and then add a quarter of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit if the pineapples are sugar-loaf; or half a pound of sugar to the same amount if they are the acid strawberry pine. Boil the syrup for ten minutes. Then measure it and add a quart of the best cooking brandy to a quart of the syrup. Bottle it and keep it for about six months before making use of it, or longer if you wish, as it improves with age.

CHERRY JELLY.

Dissolve a box of best gelatine in a pint of cold water for an hour, then add a pint of boiling cherry juice, and sugar to taste. Strain through a flannel jelly bag and pour into moulds that have been dipped in cold water. Place on ice and let them stand over night. When ready to serve, loosen the edges and turn on white china plates or glass dishes. Garnish with curled parsley or sprays of asparagus.

CHERRY ICE.

To one quart of cherry juice add two pounds of sugar; heat until dissolved, and then add one quart of water. When cool, place in a cold spot, or, better still, in a refrigerator, then add the whites of six well-beaten eggs.

A GOOD HOUSEKEEPER OUGHT TO KNOW

That the easiest way to keep cheese moist in hot weather is to wrap it in a cloth saturated with vinegar.

That cucumber peelings will expel cockroaches if strewn around in their haunts.

That iced tea is much improved in flavor by the addition of a few slices of lemon.

That you can easily keep bread, cake and apple tins free from an ill flavor by always washing them in hot water after using.

PANSIES FOR WINTER AND SPRING BLOOMING.

Seed Should Be Sown Now and Tended Very Carefully.

In planting the pansies for early winter blooming, reserve a quantity of the seed to plant outside for spring flowers. The seed may be planted at any time from the middle of July to the middle of August, or successive sowings may be made if desired. As this is usually the dryest time of the whole summer, it is necessary to be very careful to keep the ground moist until the seeds germinate. Sow in the ground where some of the plants are to remain, cover lightly with sand, give a good watering and cover the beds with boards so that the moisture will be retained.

The boards may be removed at night, giving the seed the benefit of the dew, but keep the bed covered during the sunny days until the seeds begin to push up their little blades of green, which will be in about 12 days.

Prepare the permanent bed near the seed bed if convenient; have it raised a few inches above the surrounding soil so that the drainage will be good, and the water cannot settle about the plants during the winter. As the plants are taken from the seed bed set them in rows about six inches apart, and five inches apart in the row. Keep them shaded for a few days until they are well rooted give them a slight loose covering of leaves during the winter, and they will begin to bloom very early in spring; earlier than would be possible if grown in any other way.

Begonias Do Not Like Hot Sunshine.

The begonias should have a cool, shady location, during these warm days, or they will soon become scorched; brown spots will appear, and the leaves will begin to drop off. Never allow the sun to shine on them when the foliage is wet or it will soon be ruined. This care is especially necessary with the tuberous begonias and the rex varieties.

Spray Your House Plants.

It is foolish to think that a plant can live when its foliage is encased in dirt. It cannot breathe, so to speak, and the result is a slow death. Those who have plants in the house, such as azalias, aspedistras, palms and other comparatively hard-leaved foliage should sponge the leaves frequently with tepid water to remove dust or other impurities from their surface. Ferns and those plants that cannot well be sponged should be syringed when necessary, to keep the foliage fresh and healthy.
