Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." MRS. C. CROMPTON, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

FROM CAB TO CHAIR.

Rise of a Railroad Engineer to a Cornell Professorship.

Chauncey M. Depew lately visited the mechanical department of Cornell University. He found at the head of it Professor Morris. The latter claimed him as an old acquaintance.

"How is that?" said Mr. Depew.

"I used to work for the New York Central railroad," was the professor's answer.

"Indeed! In what department?"

"Oh, just in the ranks."

"How did you get here?" asked Mr. Depew.

"I was first a fireman on an engine. That was a tough job, but it led up to the position of engineer. When I became an engineer, I made up my mind to get an education. I studied at night and fitted myself for Union College, running all the time with my locomotive. I procured books and attended as far as possible the lectures and recitations. I kept up with my class and on the day of graduation I left my locomotive, washed up, put on the gown and cap, delivered my thesis, and received my diploma, put the gown and cap in the closet, put on my working shirt, got on my engine and made my usual run that day."

"Then," said Depew. "I knew how he became Professor Morris."

That spirit will cause a man to rise in any calling. It is ambition, but it is ambition wisely directed, seeking to make one's self fitted for higher work. When this is accomplished the opportunity for higher work is sure to come."—Buffalo News.

The Importance of Firmness.

We are doubtless familiar with a conversation similar to the one claimed to have been overheard between two boys: Said one to the other, "Are you going fishing to-day?" "No," replied the second boy, "mother won't let me."

"Fudge," said the first boy, contemptuously, "tease her and tease her, and if she won't let you go lie down on the floor and kick. That's the way I do, then she will let you go."

The first thought is one of indignation against the little rascal; the second, no, the child is not to blame. If he knows he can get what he wants by teasing, why should he not tease? Or, if kicking upon the floor will change his mother's no into yes, he would be a very foolish boy if he did not kick. If he was not confident of getting what he wants by teasing and kicking he would not do it. The mother has only herself to blame for her son's naughtiness. I believe that right here lies three-fourths of the trouble and anxiety and wear upon the nerves in the bringing up of children. Let your no mean no, always, and it will be accepted as final; but if sometimes it may be possible for it to mean yes, you may rest assured that you will not be the one to get the benefit of the doubt; but think before you say no.

Remember that what seems to you a foolish trifle may mean a great deal to your little one, and to be deprived of a certain pleasure may cause a bitter disappointment.

When your little daughter comes to you brimming over with some anticipated scheme that promises such lots of fun, enter into the plans with interest and be glad with her. If it seems to you not a feasible thing, do not say no, but tell her that you will think it over. Then think it over carefully and the difficulties may disappear. If not, and you find that it will be unwise to grant her request, tell her so lovingly, giving her the reasons, if this is wise, why it is not best, and let her know that you are sorry to disappoint her. If you have taught her by your daily actions that her mother is her truest friend; if she knows that you love her, and that you will grant her every happiness that is in your power if it is best that she should have it, she will accept the decision because "mamma knows best," and, when a request must be refused, there will be no "scene," no outbreak of temper, such as all mothers dread.

A child brought up close to the mother's heart, with perfect confidence in the strong mother love, will give her unquestioned obedience when that obedience is necessary, because it will not enter her mind to doubt her love in the demand. Share your children's joys as well as their sorrows; be one with them when you can, and the battle will be half won.

In dealing with children, a little strategy may sometimes be used with marvelously good results, and before the self-willed little puss realizes what she is doing, the point at issue has been so skilfully turned that she has done exactly what you wished her to do and forgotten to rebel over it.

Blessedness of Marriage.

Marriage when it is the sacrament of pure love is the purest and holiest relation of life. It opens all the avenues of the heart and fills them with the perpetual melody of humanity. Man often gathers his best culture and discipline—woman a succession of new joys and winning graces in a home pervaded by an atmosphere of love and duty. To make a truly happy and well-chosen marriage there should be equality of years, of birth, and of fortune. Domestic rule must be founded on domestic affection. If home is to be made a sanctuary for refreshment and rest there must be harmony of mind and sentiment, mutual dependence and social sympathy. Husband and wife must keep equal pace in economy suitable to income—each find in the other a staff to lean upon in all the offices of life. Neither passion, nor opinion, nor obligation must knit the bond, but the finer impulses of the heart supported by those outward marks and signs of affection which shall keep our nature fresh and green when our temples are white over with the snows of age.—Dr. J. W. Johnson.

A TERRIBLE VERDICT.

A Man Plainly Told That He Would Never Walk Out Again.

SO THE DOCTORS SAID.

He Is Saved and Cured by Paine's Celery Compound.

The Only Reliable Cure for Kidney Diseases.

When Mr. H. Ball, the well known auctioneer, of Chatham, Ont., was told by his physicians that he would never walk again, it simply amounted to telling him that his days on earth were short. Kidney disease was doing its deadly work; physicians and medicines had failed, and the last ray of hope had almost fled forever. Mr. Ball, having heard wondrous reports about the medicinal virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, wisely decided to give the great medicine a trial. He was not disappointed; health and strength returned, weight increased, and to-day he is a new man. He tells of his wonderful escape from death as follows:—

"I was so seriously ill I was obliged to take to my bed, where I laid for four months. The doctors here and in Toronto said my trouble was Addison's disease of the kidneys, and told me I would never walk again. I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound. After having used a number of bottles I was enabled to attend to business, and felt like a new man. Before using the Compound I was very much reduced in flesh; to-day I weigh over 200 pounds. I can affirm with confidence and honesty that Paine's Celery Compound saved my life."

NO COURTSHIP IN JERUSALEM.

Match-Making in Palestine is Robbed of Its Sentimental Features.

Of courtship as it is known in America or England there is none whatever in Jerusalem, writes Edwin S. Wallace in November Ladies' Home Journal. A young Mohammedan never sees the face of the girl who is to become his wife until after marriage. His mother and sisters may see her and report their impressions, but if it is a case where the union is by them considered a desirable one they are likely to accredit her with charms she does not possess. Among Jews and Christians there is a greater latitude in this respect, though the young people are never permitted to see each other without the presence of a third party. In every case the services of an intermediary are necessary. Brides at fourteen are not uncommon, and at twelve occasion little remark. I have known of one bride ten years of age. She was a Moslem.

Eating Before Sleeping.

The old tradition that to eat anything just before going to bed was sure to produce indigestion and render sleep impossible is now happily exploded. It is not good, as a matter of fact, to go to bed with the stomach so loaded that the undigested food will render one restless, but something of a light, palatable nature in the stomach is one of the best aids to quietude and rest in bed. The process of digestion goes on in sleep with as much regularity as when one is taking violent exercise to aid it, and so something in the stomach is a very desirable condition for the night's rest. Some physicians have declared, indeed, that a good deal of the prevalent insomnia is the result of an unconscious craving of the stomach for food in persons who have been unduly frightened by the opinion that they must not eat before going to bed, or who have, like many nervous women, been keeping themselves in a state of semi-starvation. Nothing is more agreeable on retiring for the night than to take a bowl of hot broth, like oatmeal gruel or clam soup. It is a positive aid to nervous people, and induces peaceful slumbers. This is especially the case on cold winter nights, when the stomach craves warmth as much as any other part of the body. Even a glass of hot milk is grateful to the palate on such occasions, but a light well-cooked gruel is better, and in our climate, during the cold months of winter should be the retiring food of every woman who feels, as many do, the need of food at night.

Growing Old.

"It isn't being old that's hard to bear," said a passe person to me lately. "It's the growing old, the fading, the misery of fleshing up, or shrinking down, into elderliness that's so stinging. I shouldn't mind being 60, but I hate to be 45."

It is odd, too, how we women try to deceive ourselves! "Oh, gray hair is no sign of age," says one. "I'm sure I've had gray hairs since I was 16," Another wails when, in spite of herself, she has to take to wearing glasses:

"Oh, I've been so foolish! I simply ruined my eyes reading in bed."

But when a person's hair turns, the eyes fall and the teeth get faulty and unreliable, its age.

Of course if there are no grown children to betray one the pretence of youth can be kept up a little longer; but even the ladies who were married at 16 and had three children before they were 20 have to abandon the struggle in the presence of marriageable sons and daughters. I have known would-be youthful women to break down and weep the first time they were called grandma.

Yes, indeed! it is hard to be graceful while growing old.

The Words of Jesus.

The Gospel as Jesus of Nazareth spoke it on the shores of Gennesaret, in the streets of Nain, by the wayside in Samaria, has been at last unearthed, according to an article in the New York World. It is by all odds the most remarkable manuscript find of the centuries. In point of interest to the scientific and religious world it surpasses the finding of the Rosetta Stone. Two women with a kodak were the instruments by which this wonderful product of the early Christian years has seen the light of the nineteenth century. For the first time the Christian world has presented to it the story of the Nazarene as He spoke it, in His very words, written in the language of Palestine, when the Saviour walked and talked in the land of His birth. This manuscript copy of the Four Gospels in the original Syriac, the oldest record of the doings and sayings of Jesus Christ, was found in the monastry of St. Catharine, on Mount Sinai, by Mrs. Catharine Lewis and Mrs. James Y. Gibson, of Cambridge, England.—Philadelphia Press.

A Poser.

Prof. Zanker, the famous Orientalist, one day received the copy of an inscription which a friend and admirer of his declared he had found in a mediæval tome. The sender asked him to decipher the mysterious extract, promising to forward the valuable old MS. as soon as he got it from its owner, a relative of his. The inscription ran as follows: Uoy era woh rosseforp gninrom doog.

For three days the professor puzzled his brains without making any sense of it. Then his little son, a fourth-form boy, came into his father's study and spied the strange writing on the desk. After looking at it for a while he asked his father since when he had taken to writing backwards.

"What do you mean?" said the astonished professor.

"Why," replied the lad, "if you read this from right to left it runs thus, "Good morning, professor, how are you?"

POOR DIGESTION leads to nervousness, chronic dyspepsia and great misery. The best remedy is HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Nervous Prostration.

Cured effectually by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

His heart was affected.

"Overwork as a student at college brought on an attack of nervous prostration," says Mr. Gilbert, a railway missionary. "I was exceedingly nervous and if I exerted myself my heart commenced to flutter violently, and I was warned that even ordinary exercise endangered my life. But thanks to Scott's Sarsaparilla I feel better than I ever expected to feel, for I can now address a meeting without effort, can walk a brisk pace for two hours or more without exhaustion and am free from that distressing palpitation. In my work I have oftentime recommended Scott's Sarsaparilla, and have seen many cases where its effects have been most marked."

Scott's Sarsaparilla acts like magic in restoring shattered nerves because it rebuilds the nerve centres. Nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia and all nerve derangements wear on the system. Scott's Sarsaparilla makes new blood and muscles and strong nerves. Of all druggists, $1 per bottle. Dose from half to one teaspoonful.
