

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

APRIL 16, 1895.

MEANS OF COMMUNICATION.

The Stanley was, today, a welcome sight to the citizens of Charlottetown. We cannot say that the winter of our discontent is yet made glorious summer. But the summer is at hand.

At this juncture, in view of winters that are yet to be, it may be well to refer briefly to the experiences of the past. By doing this we shall easily see that, notwithstanding all that has been suffered and done, the people of Prince Edward Island are still hampered in their communications with the outside world to an extent of which the inhabitants of the mainland can form no conception.

It is pleasing to learn that the P. E. I. and Steam Navigation Co. will continue to maintain summer communication and that there will, in the coming season of open navigation, be better and closer connections between this Province and the mainland than ever in the past.

DOUBLE STANDARD FREE TRADERS.

The glaring inconsistencies of free traders and the discrepancies of the two standards, the American and the Canadian, were never better or more truthfully stated than in the following article, taken from the New York Press:

"Sir Richard Cartwright has been studying William M. Springer's and Grover Cleveland's speeches, and evidently thinks the revenue reform game can be made to turn as it did here. He therefore tells the Canadians in his speech at North Perth that under the protective policy which Canada has pursued for sixteen years, the Canadians have been taxed $100,000,000 a year and more, not counting in the sums which are partly paid into the public treasury and partly into the pockets of private manufacturers."

As there is no hint by Sir Richard that even a penny of this vast taxation goes out of the country, it follows that there must be an income to some portion of the people of Canada from protective tariffs equal to $100 a year for the whole population of the country. Who gets this increased income?

Why not call for an international conference between Canadian tariff reformers and United States tariff shirkers so as to prevent the two standards? If our American buyers of Canadian-made goods are to be let loose, Cartwright must be chained up. If Cartwright is to go at large, free traders from the United States must spread.

YOURS FOR BARGAINS,

JENKINS & SON.

R. Jenkins & Son of late have begun to drive a brisk trade in our town. They know what to keep, and sell very cheap.

And cash for supplies they pay down.

They know what we need, our families to feed.

Their flour is real number one;

Their butter and fish we call a rare dish.

Excel their best tea—can't be done.

Their sugar, we know, in parcels doth go

All over the country and town;

A great rare they make, and eggs like to take.

And there they may always be found.

So far, we believe, good call they receive

By being obliging and kind.

We all like to go where prices are low;

With Jenkins best bargains we find.

They sell very low, which many now know.

And profits, they think, are but small.

Quick sales they know best, and these, take a rest,

Is better than not sell at all.

Now Jenkins & Son cannot be outrun.

In business they've been many years;

They know what to do, and make money too—

Great riches before them appears.

Success to such men, we all must help them.

More than them we want in our town;

Since Jenkins & Son in town have begun

The prices on goods have come down.

A SATISFIED CUSTOMER.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Preparations For The Session.

OTTAWA, April 16.

Preparations for the session are in a forward state. The speech from the throne has been drafted and will be submitted for His Excellency's approval to-morrow.

It is arranged that Hon. Mr. Arsenault, the new Senator, will move the address in the Upper House, but nothing definite has been settled yet regarding the moving and seconding in the Commons as this will be contingent upon the result of the by-elections on Wednesday.

With the complete approval of all his colleagues, it is settled that Hon. G. E. Foster will be Leader of the Ministerial forces in the House of Commons.

The Newfoundland delegates did not conclude their business here to-day and another session of the conference is to be held to-morrow. The visitors are exceedingly anxious to have something tangible to lay before the Newfoundland House of Assembly on the 25th, and rather than out the present deliberations short without a final conclusion being reached, they have decided to prolong their stay.

PROSPECT OF BY-ELECTIONS

MONTEAL, April 16.

The excitement in this place in respect to Wednesday's elections is intense. It is conceded all round that Hon. Thomas McGreevy will carry Quebec West. Consequently the interest centres in Vercheres.

Archbishop Fabre's circular to the priests, referred to in the correspondence a few days ago, says: "It was not my intention for you to refer to the question in the pulpit, but you are at liberty to express outside the entire satisfaction of the Canadian Episcopacy regarding the firm and courageous attitude lately taken by the Federal Government."

In the County of Vercheres the great animation prevails, and while the Liberals claim the seat by fifty majority the Conservatives say that they will certainly win.

Your correspondent was told by a native of the county last evening that whichever side won it would not have more than thirty votes to spare.

Changes have been made at McGill University which enables students to put in the arts course as well as full medical studies in six years, instead of eight as heretofore.
