roduced in substance again last session with the same ill-success. We are going to fight this out to the bitter end. It was announced in the session of 1873 by Mr. Tilley on behalf of the late Ministry that in the session of 1874 the tariff was to be re-adjusted so as to give some encouragement to our manufacturers. That gave confidence; but the moment we went out that confidence ceased, and an immediate shock was given to our industries.

The Chairman, briefly expressed his sense of pleasure that a report which had been circulated by the Reform press to the effect that Sir John Macdonald would leave Kingston on was untrue. He called upon the audience to give three cheers for their right hon. member.

A GARDEN FOR THE POPE.

Le Nouveau Monde contains an account of the solemn dedication of a garden to Pius IX. at Riviere du Loup last Sunday. A rustic monument, surmounted by a bust of the Pope, was erected in the centre of the garden. Around the monument places of honor were reserved to receive, when the means would permit it, the busts of the Canadian Bishops who patronized the movement of the Pontifical Zouaves in 1867-68, as well as those of all the great names who have rendered the regiment famous.

PROVINCE OF NOVA SCOTIA.

A correspondent informs a Halifax paper that there was quite a lively time at the lower mill-dam, on the Shelburne River a few weeks ago. Mr. Rogers, the Fishery Officer, was about to construct a wooden fish-way over the dam, which is fifteen feet high, but sundry good people of the place having no faith in such arrangements for passing fish up, concluded to have one third of the dam taken out; but the officer would not yield reminding them that a similar operation by one of the fishery officers in New Brunswick cost the Government some $6,000 in damages and costs.

AN ATTEMPT TO LECTURE IN ST. JOHN.

A "committee" of several young men secured the services of Rev. Mr. Haynes to lecture in the Dramatic Lyceum, last night. There was quite a crowd present. The committee had conspicuous places on the platform. Education, slavery, and other topics were to be spoken upon: "other topics" prevailed, to the exclusion of education and slavery. The lecturer had not proceeded far before these present began to sing a chorus.

This caused him to stop, and in a few minutes he said he felt somewhat embarrassed, and no wonder. Several sand crackers were exploded, in the midst of which he endeavored to obtain a hearing. When this was granted the lecturer said he did not think it necessary to prolong his remarks, and requested all to join in singing "God save the Queen." After much solicitation, he was again induced to take the platform. Only a short space elapsed before he was again interrupted by unpleasant noises in the audience. That unerved him, and he said that he felt, as a missionary, he must, to retain his respectability, discontinue. A vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer, as well as the chairman, and the meeting broke up amid much noise.—Tel.

A LUCKY TEN-YEAR OLD.

There is a little ten-year-old now in the City Prison, who hails from Chicago. His name is Charley Levine, and all alone, friendless and motherless, he traveled to this city overland. As he sat on the bench near the wall this afternoon, his clothing in tatters, his feet incased in consumptive shoes and no stockings, and his head surmounted by a tremendous hat, it was easy to believe from his resolute tone that he had done what was said.

Seventeen days. Got here last Saturday night came up here. I'm going to stay here a couple of days. I like it. I used to live with my aunt in Chicago. My mother is out here at a place called Belmont, two stations down, I believe. She came out here a year ago. I've got a sister, too, at Council Bluffs, across the river from Omaha.

"How did you get here without any money?" "O I jest jumped on the car's'n' stuck. They put me off at Omaha'n North Platte, but I jumped on again. They couldn't keep me off. What did I eat? O the emigrants gave me all I wanted. They me gave this hat. I only had five cents when I started, and I spent that for dinner. I didn't like Chicago, 'n I didn't like my aunt, 'n I wanted to see my mother; that's why I came."

"When are you going to see your mother?" "Oh in a couple of days. I've got a good bed 'n plenty to eat, 'n I think I'll stay her 'n git rested. Funny ain't it? I came in 'n he jest to see what it was, 'n they wouldn't let me go out, but I don't care. I'll go down down on the train to Belmont. It is on two stations, and I only take two trains at most. What's them fellers—China men."

Nodding acquiescence, the reporter left him, and wondered what the faith of the plucky little youngster would be when, so weak, small and young, he had already traveled thousands of miles unaided in search of his mother.—San Francisco Post.

FRANCE.

PARIS, June 10.—A Berlin despatch says a very serious impression has been caused here by articles yesterday and to day in the National Zeitung, discussing the crisis in France, declaring that an Ultramontane regime which alone could succeed the Republic, is irreconcilable with European peace.
