Campus Construction

Ever wonder what the construction going on around us is for? Ever wonder what's going to happen to those empty buildings? Well now you get to know! Now wipe away those tears of joy and let me explain something first. Nothing in this article is written in stone, so don't expect everything here to happen. These plans get changed, delayed and junked all the time.

One thing that is definite is that the roads around the Field House are being changed. The path that once ran from between the Field House and the Equipment Depot to the parking lot is now a road. A new walkway has also been added parallel to this road. The road between the Field House and the rink has now been converted into twenty new parking spaces. Six other new spots have also been added behind the old cafeteria. The road leading to the front entrance of the Field House is being changed into a circular driveway to make coming and going easier.

The Learned Society is staying at the planetarium until their convention next year. After that, the Health Centre will move there from Marian Hall. Moving to the planetarium will get the Health Centre closer to the Field House where most injuries probably occur. The old cafeteria may become the new home for the Nursing Centre. In the future, the bookstore could move to the basement of Alumni Gym. Upstairs, meanwhile, would be used for classrooms, offices, board rooms, and so on.

There are tentative new plans for a directory at the entrance of the university to aid visitors and newcomers. More parking may also be expected in the future.
