Heavy Losses Through Unreturned Milk Bottles

Charlottetown milk processors find they can no longer afford to keep on losing milk bottles which careless customers fail to place at the door for delivery. Up to now, no one was refused delivery because bottles were not out but milkmen have been instructed that when there is no receptacle to receive the milk, a charge of ten cents for each missing bottle will be made.

The seriousness of this loss to processors was brought forcibly to light when one company estimated that in a five-month period their loss through the above source amounted to $1,800 and to another firm $1,400 for the same period of time.

During the past month or so, the manager of one company was called to the City dump where 425 bottles were offered for sale. In another instance a garbage collector produced 125 bottles for sale. An official of the milk processors pointed out that the ten cent cost on bottles is not intended as a penalty to thoughtless housewives but as a recompense to the companies for the actual loss which is ten cents on a quart bottle.

It has been pointed out that people in general are reasonably co-operative in this practice but there are those who would as soon toss their bottles into the garbage as they would prepare them each day for a new supply of milk. Nine companies supplying milk to the city have issued instructions to their customers and the drivers have been given specific instructions to see that the order is carried out.

SCOTSMEN HONOR ST. ANDREW

where the water was measured in the pool to ascertain how much was used in taking a bath. While the Bishop was ready to concede that a Scotsman is thrifty, he said that his thriftiness was often overcome by his generosity and frequently he could be seen saving in trivial matters only to be found later, giving things away on a much larger scale.

Bishop MacEachern made brief reference to the courage and bravery of the Scots but said that prudence was one of the greatest qualities possessed by the race. Recalling his teaching days, he said that on a certain occasion he attempted to follow the illustration of a person who while driving a car becomes anxious to pass another vehicle and will pull out without taking into consideration the consequences involved. "The Scotsman is perhaps just as anxious to get ahead but he will wait his chance and in the long run will get to his destination just as quickly," he said.

NATIONAL EMBLEM
The reason why Scotsmen adopted the thistle as their emblem was explained by Bishop MacEachern who said that on a certain occasion in Scottish history the country was in danger of being wiped out by the English, a field of thistles remained between them and the enemy. The Scots having tougher feet than their opponents were able to cross the field without experiencing any pain but when the English attempted to follow them they kept from crying out and thus gave away their position. In gratitude to the lowly plant, the Scots from henceforth adopted it as their national emblem.

"The Scots are big in the sense of co-operation" said Bishop MacEachern. "In the face of common dangers in a new land they united their efforts to build this country, often under great hardships." He recalled an instance in Pictou County where the Presbyterian people joined with the Roman Catholics in the building of a church with reciprocal action on the part of both denominations.

Special week-night services with Mr. Walter E. Stram, as Evangelistic speaker, continue to be held each night at the Central Christian Church, and are being attended by large congregations. The singing last night was led by Mr. William Weale, and the Central Christian senior choir. Special music was provided by the choir, and an organ rendered a number of trumpet solos.

Mr. Stram, speaking up for the subject, "What the crucifixion of Christ means to me," testified that the crucifixion meant the fulfillment of the Old Testament prophecy and promise. Christ's death, he said, "represented the cruel and merciless slaying of the innocent and faultless, Son of God. He died that I might live, and therefore I am under great obligation."

M.C.A. Seeking Overseas Air Service Licence

OTTAWA, (CP)—The Air Transportation Board is considering an application by Maritime Central Airways Ltd. of Charlottetown for a license to establish an overseas air service.

The application, placed before the board two months ago, proposes a non-scheduled charter flights from Montreal and Toronto to European ports. The company would use four-motored DC-4 aircraft carrying both passengers and cargo.

The company now operates scheduled services in the Maritime provinces and in Labrador.

Capt. Carl F. Burke, Managing Director of Maritime Central Airways said last evening that the Air Transport Board had reviewed the application and had reserved judgment.

"In view of the probable completion of the Northern 'DEW' line operation in which we are engaged, in the course of a year or so, it was deemed advisable to make the application referable to," Capt. Burke said, "we think there is a future in overseas traffic for the giant Douglas DC-4 Skymaster type of carrier which we are now using in the 'DEW' service."

While cargo prospects from Toronto and Montreal for overseas would appear to be bright, Capt. Burke said, "overseas traffic for the giant Douglas DC-4 Skymaster type of carrier which we are now using in the 'DEW' service."
