THE THRESHER GUESTS.

It was almost nine o'clock on a cool October morning when Miss Sophronia had opened the neat little gate in front of Albert Stanley's new house. There was a board walk leading to a porch where a few great purple clematis blossoms upon a trellis vine above the door, the delicate staircase was a caving out flower which did not belong to its time.
"Miss Sophronia heard the slow creak of a rocking chair as she crossed the saw, and saw through the screen of a pretty young woman sitting with a book in her lap reading. Her face in a wrapper was unbuttoned at the throat, her feet were untidily dressed, and her pretty, fair hair was gathered into a frowsy knot. She rose in a confusion when she saw Miss Sophronia, tossed her book aside and pushed toward her guest another chair.
While the visitor removed her prim hat and buttoned up her cape, she noted the wall inlaid of the room, where the breakfast dishes were piled in an unbecomingly high on the table, and the hostess's hair as she crossed it "I came to look you, Missy," she said.
"I noticed as I passed Gorman's that the men were pitching from the last of the season, but before no-n.
Have you got your dinner under way?"
The young woman colored, and her eyes, which were a blue, but a yellow glow to tell her she was acting in this way.
"They are not coming here—or at least they are going to board at Father Stanley's."
"It is true?"
"What, pray?"
"The old maid roared tranquilly and produced her knitting."
"I heard that the girls at the society saying that you would not dare attempt to get dinner for the thresher; that your little town was might fool Albert, but you were too smart to try them on with the thresher. You know I do not pry into your affairs from a notion of his curiosity, Missy, and I want you to tell me why you are acting in this way."
"Why, Albert thinks I can't cook."
"Was said with an exalted affectation of exasperation, but it did not deceive Miss Sophronia.
"And yet I have often heard him boast of your good house-keeping—your cooking especially."
"O, yes—at that. But for you we ar-all wrong. I hate that sort of men that go about with the steam thresher. I shudder to think of Jim Finn, for instance, coming into my house. I know that they will be over everything and eat like wild beasts. And when I said to the boys that I would send him out to his mother's, where they would get something fit to eat."
"Quite naturally," murmured she.
"Aunt Sophy! You were mother's friend, and I owe a lot to you, but I am not going to bear that. Quite naturally, indeed, I have heard that you said he would tell them to his mother's, where they would get something fit to eat."
"Quite naturally," murmured she.

"I would have done poor, tired Clasy good to hear the remarks of the men as they smoked their pipes under the oaks in the back yard."
"That settles it," said one. "I hear the women poking my more jokes at me. I have heard of nothing that will settle 'em. I ain't met with such a dinner since my mammy's day."
"Three kins of pie and a puddin' that keeps it from getting cold, and it. Al know what he's about when he married that town gal, now I tell you."
"Did you hear the Gorman gal talk about the dinner we'd go to-day?
I just wish she could see it."
"Them goodly apple dumplin' at we had that yesterday lays heavy on my stomach yet. I have heard the Lewis I drapped one on my foot an' it hurted so I sort a-kicked it into the dooryard, an' them pore chickens is fightin' over it till this mornin' yet."
"No, no. Who ever heard of setting one's guardian angel to wash the dishes?"
"Nay," said Miss Sophronia, softly;
"I don't aspire to the office of guardian angel—I only want to be grandmother."

Miles of Solid Ice Stretch Clear Across the Inlet.
The front of the glacier is about three miles wide, but the sheer mid-berg-producing portion that stretches across the inlet from side to side, like a huge green and blue barrier, is only two miles wide, and its height above the water is from 250 to 300 feet. But soundings made by Captain Carroll show that 750 feet of the wall is below the surface, while a third unmeasured portion is buried beneath the moraine debris that is constantly deposited at the foot of it. Therefore, were the water and rocky detritus cleared away, a sheer precipice of ice would be present nearly two miles long and more than a thousand feet high. Seen from a distance, as you come up the ford, it seems comparatively regular in form, but it is far otherwise: bold, jagged capes jut forward into the sea, alternating with deep re-entrant angles and sharp, jagged ledges with pinnacles, while the top is roughened with innumerable ice and pyramids and sharp, backed blades leaning and toppling or cutting straight into the sky.—From the Century.

The Largest Forest on Earth.
At the recent congress for the advancement of science in this country it was said that the largest forest in existence was nearly 700 miles north from the St. Lawrence, in the province of Quebec and Ontario, and 1,800 miles from east to west.
A recent French writer, commenting on this, asserts that the Canadian forest is only entitled to the fourth place, if even that. In South America, he states, in the valley of the Amazon, is a stretch of woodland 2,000 miles long and 1,300 miles wide, while in the centre of Africa explorers have reported a forest at least 3,200 miles long from north to south and of a width as yet unanswered and untraversed, but certainly vast in extent. This African forest, known as the "Great Forest," is in all probability the largest area of wooded country in the world.
The Difference.
"We are certainly advancing in civilization," said the statesman's wife.
"Formerly a man could not become great excepting through the chances of war."
"Yes," was the reply, "now he simply has to risk his life on the political banquet."—Washington Star.

TWO TO MAKE A QUARREL; ONE TO END IT.
There's a knowing little proverb From the Sunny land of Spain, But in Northland, and in Southland, It is meaning clear and plain.
Lock it up within your heart, Neither lose nor lend it—
Two it takes to make a quarrel, One can always end it.
Try it well in every way.
Still you'll find it true.
In a fight without a foe Pray what would you do?
If the wrath is yours alone Soon you will expend it;
Two it takes to make a quarrel,
One can always mend it.

COMMENDABLE PROMPTITUDE.
A Resident of St. John, N. B., Makes a Successful Trial of Dodd's Kidney Pills.
St. John, N. B., July 8.—Mr. Robert Moore residing in Indianatown, a suburb of this city, has recently made what is allowed by all who are acquainted with the facts to be a most remarkable recovery. He has been suffering from a serious complaint of the kidneys for over seven years, and during that time has suffered excruciating pains. He has also suffered considerably in pocket, having paid large sums for medical advice. Quite recently he happened to read of the many cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and with commendable promptitude made a trial of them, with the result that after taking three boxes of the remedy he was entirely restored to health.

Final Result of Delay.
Sickness generally follows in the path of neglect. Don't be reckless! But prud-ently take a few doses of Scott's Emulsion immediately following exposure to cold.
It will save you many painful days and sleepless nights.
Flogging is still practiced in the British Navy. Two sailors who attempted to desert the other day at Halifax received 25-ten lashes each on the bare back.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Peppor, Batesman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrup, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?
Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?
Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?
Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?
Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?
Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel P. Fitcher.
That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?
Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?
Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless!
Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?
Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?
Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.
The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.
