This modern, scientific home-dye which has already superseded all others in Great Britain, on the continent and in Australia is now revolutionizing home-dyeing in Canada and the United States: Its popularity is due to the following points of superiority: It is a soap and dye combined and cannot fly or dust about. It cleanses and dyes at one operation. It dyes equally well all fabrics whether silk, satin, wool or cotton. Being a scientific preparation, its colors are true, even, absolutely fast and unfading. It imparts an appearance of freshness, of newness to the goods and never streaks or crocks them. It may be used with perfect success by anyone without previous experience. Failures are impossible if simple directions are followed.

Those who have used the old fashioned powder dyes will appreciate that the introduction of MAYPOLE SOAP, the modern home-dye, means to the housewife. Where formerly the result of dyeing was attended with grave uncertainty, and often with complete failure, uniform and unvarying success is now assured, if MAYPOLE SOAP be used. Many things about the house one would not wish to risk spoiling may now be treated to a dye bath without any misgivings, furthermore when dyed they will not present that common, dead, re-dyed appearance characteristic of the work of powder dyes. The complete doing away with the mess incident to the use of other forms of dyes is in itself sufficient to popularize MAYPOLE SOAP.

NOTRE DAME DE GRACE,

MESSRS A. P. TIPPET & Co.
During the last three weeks I have had several dresses as well as other things to dye. I have tried the BLACK of your Maypole Soap, and I must say that the result was beyond my expectation, it is simply beautiful. I have used a good many dyes of other makes, but with none have I attained the same results as with 'Maypole.' I am highly pleased and will recommend it.
Yours truly,
(Signed) MRS. J. S. HOULE.

MESSRS. A. P. TIPPET & Co.,
It may interest you to know that my first attempt with MAYPOLE SOAP was a complete success. I had looked for a "streaky" result such as had attended my use of powder dye and was agreeably surprised to find my work turn out a clear, uniform shade, I put in silks, ribbons and wool stuff and dyed all together.
(Signed) MRS. A. E. WHATHAM.

How "Titus" Was Written.
"Of 'Titus' it must be said that it was the result of the belief of my mother in me," said Mrs. Florence Morse Kingsley, telling in The Ladies' Home Journal how she came to write "Titus, a Comrade of the Cross." "A favorite uncle wrote to me that such a book was wanted and said: 'Write it. You can do it.' I did not believe that I could, but my mother insisted, 'You can. It is in you. Write the book. It will be a success.' That year I was a very busy woman, for I had a young son, and 'Titus' was written with many interruptions. I would go off to write a chapter, be interrupted by a baby voice, drop my pen, rush down stairs to see whether there had been an accident of any sort or whether my little folk were having some special good time in which they wished me to join.
"While writing 'Titus' I forgot all about the possibility of its being a success or failure; only I grew to love the story. And yet it came to me in an odd way. The hours were so filled up that I seemed to have no time to think, but I have always been in the habit of waking early, and when the sun was just rising those lovely summer mornings it seemed as though the story of 'Titus' came to me in a dream and as if I were compelled to write it."

Discreet Silence.
An excellent piece of advice was that once given to George Gray, a young Methodist preacher, who was a mere boy when he began his work. Within a few days of the time he was 15½ years old his name was on the records of an annual conference as a traveling preacher—the youngest candidate ever received in the Methodist Episcopal church. He was sent to the Barre circuit in Vermont.
As he mounted his horse to set out for his appointed field of labor, a jaunt of more than 200 miles, his uncle, a Methodist of much shrewdness and humor, gave him a parting address which he never forgot and to which he often referred in later years.
"Never pretend that you know much, George," said he, looking up at the youthful rider from under his shaggy eyebrows, "for if you do so pretend the people will soon find out that you are sadly mistaken, but neither," he added after a moment's pause, "need you tell them how little you know, for this they will find out soon enough."—Youth's Companion.

Looking After His Trunk.
A fidgety old gentleman at a railway station was terribly afraid that he would lose his trunk and constantly worried the busy porter about it, some-what as follows:
"Porter, be sure my trunk is safe."
A moment later, "Porter, don't forget my trunk." Shortly again, "Porter, now are you quite sure that my trunk is safe?"
The porter lost his temper. "Arrah," said he, "and be jabers it's a pity you wasn't an elephant instead of an ass, and then you would always have your trunk under your nose."—Nuggets.

The Most Important.
"Waal, ef dis ain't zasperatin! Heah I is all dressed fer de ball an can't find mah razzor."—New York Journal.

How to Take Moonlight Photographs.
Moonlight effects in photographs have long been admired by the uninitiated and fully appreciated by both amateur and professional photographers for their beauty, and many plates, too, have been spoiled by snap shooters who have accepted moonlight as the real illuminator of these views and accordingly focused directly on this beautiful orb of night. Moonlights with the moon herself in evidence are really sun photographs—that is, pictures taken with a rapid exposure, the camera pointed toward the sun generally in the late afternoon or early morning and with clouds between the lens and the direct rays.
Many charming so called night pictures are taken by making two exposures, a short one in the rapidly diminishing afternoon sunlight, to get an impression of buildings and other dark objects and another longer one after dark to print in the gas and electric lights that line the long street or mark out the roads and winding pathways of a city park.—James E. Carrington in Scribner's.

A Democratic King.
The king of Sweden arranges his time to the best advantage. After an early breakfast with the queen he gives audience to public officials and Swedish, Norwegian and also foreign ministers as well as reviewing and inspecting troops, and so forth. Friday is occupied by a council meeting, and Tuesday morning is given to the public. As "father of his people," he sees even the poorest peasant and most unknown being in his kingdom who wishes to speak with him and gives audience alone, no third person being present. The evenings and indeed the best part of the night King Oscar gives up to his literary pursuits. His poems and romances are now well known for their artistic excellence.

Meteors.
Some time ago people on the Ramsgate cliffs, England, saw what was thought to be two rockets fired by a ship in distress on the Goodwins. The lifeboat went to the rescue and ascertained from the lights that the lights observed from the shore were not rockets, but falling meteors.
