

Lasting Benefit Seen From Mock Air Battles

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Mock air battles that ranged at supersonic speeds over the North American continent will be of lasting benefit to defenders of the United States and Canada, says Gen. John K. Cochran, commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command.

More than 1,600 aircraft carried out the grim make-believe warfare Sunday in operation Skyshield III while virtually all civilian planes were cleared from the air from 3 p.m. EDT until 5:30 p.m.

It was the first time in as many years that NORAD has matched its intricate defenses against a simulated aggressor employing fleet bombers and mythical intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Officials say each of the Skyshield operations has led to development of new techniques and electronic devices that improve the defence posture of the free world.

PRIVATE PLANE CRASHES

In an accident not related to the defence exercise, a civilian aircraft crashed at Everglades, Fla., killing its two occupants.

The crash occurred during the time when non-military aircraft were supposed to be grounded.

It was the only report of mis- single plane flights — were down. More than 800 NORAD units were active, including electronic detection stations on the Miami Base, Warming, Fla., and the Canadian-operated radar and the Pine-tree base along the north of the continent.

Macmillan Paints Benefits Of Having Britain In ECM

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan said here today that the prospects for the Commonwealth would benefit if Britain were "more and more at centre" of world affairs as a member of the European Common Market.

Macmillan was answering questions in a radio interview about the prospects for the Commonwealth prime ministers conference opening here Monday.

He said "Britain, by entering Europe . . . will give the thing that most of all affects the Commonwealth: The power to take some part—and I hope a leading part—in the great problems of the world which still centre in the sensitive areas of Europe, Russia and so forth."

"Some people still preach isolationism here," Macmillan said. "We were isolated in 1914 and what was the result? Four years of the most terrible war in my youth."

COUNTRY LAWN BARBECUE HELD

Over 500 persons took advantage of the fine weather last Sunday afternoon to enjoy an outing and a country lawn dinner served at Cromwell, formerly the Golf estate, near Cardigan. Many commitments were extended to the host, R. J. Dorgan for the excellence of the meal which combined with picturesque surroundings made an enjoyable event for the closing of the summer season. Mr. Dorgan has also begun restoration of the estate and it is expected "Cromwell" will soon become a well known tourist attraction. Mr. Dorgan also stated that through the experience gained from this first venture he hopes to be able to hold several such events during the summer months. He was assisted by ladies of the community, Major Ramsay and son Wayne as well as several of the students from classes at Georgetown High School.

"This came out in a Regina newspaper in 1947. I thought it was the smartest thing I ever read on the subject. It said, in effect, if we're not smart enough to have an open border with a market of 180,000,000 people, and if we can't make a living out of those 180,000,000 people, then we don't deserve to survive as a nation."

Williams maintained that the natural lines of communication in North America run north and south "and the politicians have made them run east and west."

Neither Williams nor Ambridge favored following economic union by political union.

STAYED OUT AGAIN

"Well, then we rather kept out a second time. And what happened? Six years of terrible war. Twice Europe has torn herself apart, and who's been brought in? The Commonwealth. From all over the distant parts of the world, they have come to help. But they've had no say. And we've not had sufficient say in the questions which brought about those great events. So I think it's to the benefit of the Commonwealth that we should be more and more at the centre of these decisions."

Macmillan said Commonwealth life depends on British power. This would be strengthened by joining the European Market.

He said that if he thought the market were going to be selfish and inward-looking, then Britain would not want to join.

Tariff Elimination Urged Between Canada And U.S.

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two of Canada's leading industrialists have called for elimination of tariffs between Canada and the United States to offset the impact of Europe's Common Market and help speed Canada's economic growth.

If two "blood enemies" like West Germany and France can get together, "then heaven knows the people of the friendliest two nations in the world should be able to work out some plan to get together," said William E. Williams, president of Procter and Gamble of Canada.

Douglas W. Ambridge, president of Alkali Power and Paper Company Limited, added that fears the Canadian manufacturers would suffer from any Canadian-U.S. economic union "are largely ghost fears—ephemeral. They don't amount to anything."

"For instance, take our own industry," Ambridge added in the two copyright interviews, recorded at Toronto and carried in the current issue of U.S. News and World Report an American weekly magazine.

INDUSTRY SHELTERED

"If we tore up the tariffs on paper, all kinds of paper, between Canada and the U.S., it is quite true that the American paper industry would be able to get together," then heaven knows the people of the friendliest two nations in the world should be able to work out some plan to get together," said William E. Williams, president of Procter and Gamble of Canada.

"For instance, take our own industry," Ambridge added in Market, instead of following Cuba into exile, for instance. Canada would benefit because "we would have access to a tremendous market," Ambridge added. "We are quite capable of competing in almost anything there is in the U.S., but the existence of a tariff keeps us down."

Williams said Canada would have an advantage in a customs union with the U.S. because of lower Canadian wage rates combined with higher labor efficiency.

CITES DETERRENCE

"The only thing that deters Canadian industry from doing better than it does is the age-old problem of small population, limited markets and small sales."

"There is no reason why, given a market of 180,000,000 people, Canadian industry couldn't do well," Williams said.

Execution Held In Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Lawrence Garner was executed Tuesday in the California gas chamber for a double killing that ended a wedding party of criminals.

During his last days of life, Garner tried vainly to be granted a one-hour meeting with his wife in prison, then settled for a 15-minute goodbye over the telephone.

Garner was condemned for shooting down in the San Bernardino desert Richard Lee Nowlin, 30, an escaped convict who was on his way to be married in Las Vegas, Nev., and the bride-to-be, Mrs. Hurley Skew, 25, divorced Los Angeles narcotics parolee.
