Apart from the services and conveniences of an up-to-date shopping area, it is obvious that businessmen in this district do their share and more in paying municipal upkeep. Trade licenses are an important item in municipal budgets. Most businessmen own their own premises and pay stiff annual taxes. They are asked to contribute to welfare funds and to various community projects that need merchant support, and this they do cheerfully.

It is true that merchants and professional people, as a class bear much of the load of obtaining local and district improvements to bring better living conditions to the community.

Whether the demand be for service or merchandise, it can usually be obtained quickly and economically right here in this district from your own local business concerns.
