AMATEUR TARS ATTEMPT TO TRACE COOK'S VOYAGE

LONDON (AP) — A three-masted schooner with a crew of 21 amateurs and a lone professional sailed toward Australia Monday, hoping to retrace Capt. James Cook's voyage of 1770.

Among the amateur sailors were three women: Mrs. Jean Dixon, 46, an Englishwoman; Mrs. Lenore Tardiff, 25, and Sybill Burns 27, both Australians.

Capt. Gordon Keeble, 41, a former Royal Navy officer, was the one experienced sailor.

The sailing ship is called New Endeavor, after Capt. Cook's original Endeavor.

Members of the crew paid about £400 ($1,200) each to make the journey, which the captain estimated will take five to six months.

Owned by an Australian company, the New Endeavor is expected to be used for tourist trips to the Great Barrier Reef after following Cook's route to Sydney.

WILL USE CANAL

There are, of course, big differences between the journey of the New Endeavor and the old schooner — will take a huge short-cut by going through the Panama Canal instead of around Cape Horn. The New Endeavor also has an engine.

After covering five of the 20,000 miles to Botany Bay Monday, the engine overheated. Driven by the tide, the New Endeavor drifted dangerously toward the Goodwin Sands, graveyard of many a ship.

Up went a signal—a flag with a red cross. English coast guards at Deal were mystified, for the flag in the international sea code means "we have a doctor on board."

By this time most of the amateur crew was seasick.

The adventurers hauled down the first flag and sent up another. The new signal meant: "Keep clear, out of control."

With that, the coast guards put out a rescue boat.

At last the trouble was corrected and the ship headed down the Channel.

It was on May 25, 1768, that Capt. Cook set out in the Endeavor. On April 13, 1769, he reached Tahiti, then the Society Islands and New Zealand. Botany Bay was sighted April 28, 1770.

Past Seven Months Dryest Since 1910

The first seven months of 1965 have been the driest since before World War One. Only in 1910 was the weather as dry, though the temperatures have been about normal according to Warren Burns, meteorologist at the Experimental Farm.

In the month of July, 1965, the Charlottetown area had only 1.47 inches of rain. The driest July on record was in 1933 when only .63 inches fell and the wettest one was in 1912 when 6.83 inches.

This past seven months there have been only 12.38 inches which is just about half of the normal 25 inches during this period.

One of many things affected by this dry spell has been the woodlots here on the Island. The forest fire factor is listed as extreme in Prince County and high in both King's and Queen's counties.

SOMETHING

To Think About . . .

If your furnace is over 10 years old, you may be money ahead to give it a good, close look!

HERE'S WHY:

The usual "life expectancy" of ordinary furnaces is about 10 years.

BUT EVEN MORE IMPORTANT

There have been so many wonderful improvements in the last 10 years you have a right to be discontented if you don't have a modern LENNOX heating system! If you do not have a LENNOX heating system call us TODAY.

REPAIRING THE DAMAGE

A group of German teenagers in Ramberg, Germany, tidy up an area around graves in a Jewish cemetery which had been desecrated by swastikas and hate slogans. The youngsters turned out over the weekend after a Ramberg youth organization issued a call for volunteers to clean up the desecrated area. Ramberg police said a 20-year-old unemployed dental technician had been arrested on charges of smearing anti-Semitic slogans on monuments and on Ramberg buildings. Nat. Safety Winners Sponsor Blood Clinic

Many areas in Prince Edward Island are blessed with leaders who bring honor to their community, as well as the more practical and personal benefits which cannot help but make such a community a better and more pleasant place in which to live.

One of these areas is Hunter River, where the local Women's Institute has been working on a progressive program for community improvement for a number of years. This far-sighted leadership culminated in the winning of the "Carol Lane" Safety Award, in other words — the Canadian Championship.

The project that won top rank in the Carol Lane Safety Awards for Hunter River Women's Institute covered an extensive program. It included first aid, the danger of thin river ice, participation in a Red Cross accident analysis project and Red Cross swimming and water safety program, high school essay contest, procuring improvement in highway signs, guard rails and pavement repairs, participation in a bicycle road-co-operation in organizing the P.E.I. Safety Council, Hal-lowe'en safety, safety promotion in elementary schools, arranging for testing and improvement in the municipal water supply, promotion of house-to-house checks for home safety, safety in holiday seasons, and tire-changing demonstrations for women.

Not content to rest on their laurels, the busy women of the Hunter River Institute, have now decided to supplement their safety activities by sponsoring the Hunter River-New Glasgow-Fredericton area Red Cross blood donor clinic which is to be held Monday, August 9 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the regional high school in Hunter River.

In assuming the responsibility of directing a blood donor clinic, the institute is acting for the people of the area and on their behalf accepts the challenge to supply 120 bottles of blood, which is the minimum amount needed to provide this essential liquid that only people may supply. In doing this they are taking over the clinic from the New Glasgow Junior Farmers who have carried it on for several years and who are now committed to other projects. The Junior Farmers have volunteered their enthusiastic support.

"Providing the necessary quota of blood is a serious community responsibility" said F.A. S. Jones, provincial Red Cross blood donor chairman, "and this institute's greatest task will be to convince the residents in the area of their individual responsibility."

Mr. Jones went on to say,

"With their fine leadership experience, the ladies of the Hunter River Women's Institute may be expected to organize a highly successful clinic, and be in contention for 'The Manning Trophy', the top Red Cross blood donor clinic award for P.E.I."

Young Girl Molested, Man Charged

SUMMERSIDE — A Lennox Island man will appear today in Prince County Magistrate's Court on a charge of sexually molesting a three-year-old Lennox Island girl.

The man was arrested Sunday by Summerside RCMP detachment and held in custody without bail.

The child, who was taken to Stewart Memorial Health Centre in Tyne Valley for observation, was reportedly found in her bedroom by her older sister.

It is believed the incident occurred during the St. Anne's Day celebrations.

FEDERAL BRAKE

The prime minister's announcement said the government will ask Parliament to amend three laws to extend the period under which provinces and municipalities could benefit from them.

EXTEND PERIOD

It would ask that the Technical and Vocational Training Act be amended to allow for federal contributions of 75 per cent for building costs until March, 1970, rather than March 31, 1967, "to remove the special incentive to undertake this work during this year and next."

"This change is being proposed after consultation with provincial governments at the recent federal-provincial conference."

The conference was held here July 19-22.

The federal amendment would require changes in provincial legislation as well.

"It is expected the result will be to permit provinces to defer for a year or two the construction of some vocational schools without loss of the extra federal grants applicable to them."

The government planned to have Trans-Canada Highway grants extended until December, 1970, rather than the December, 1967, cut-off date.

AID ROAD PLANNING

It had been suggested at the federal-provincial conference that this would allow more orderly scheduling of work, particularly in the Montreal area.

The National Housing Act authorizes loans to provinces or municipalities for construction of sewage treatment projects, with "forgiveness" or wiping out of 25 per cent of the loan for projects completed by the end of March, 1967.

To remove this inducement for construction in 1966 and 1967, the government would ask that the date be extended to March, 1970.

The government intended to consult with provincial authorities about any loans made in the next 15 months for sewage treatment to ensure they rated high priority.

Mink Breed Displays Dominant Black Gene

NEW TUSKET, N.S. (CP) — Mink breeders Wallace and Edsel Mullen have discovered what leading authorities in their profession think is a major breakthrough in fur breeding.

From two jet black male kittens discovered in their barn in July, 1960 have come more than 2,000 progeny.

Genetic and fur experts alike who have corresponded with the Mullen brothers or who have visited their Digby County ranch, agree the Mullens have been dealing with a rarity—a dominant black gene.

Cross-breeding of the original blacks with lighter colored mink produced litters that usually resulted in a 50 per cent black ratio. Breeding blacks to blacks has resulted in litters that are 75 per cent blacks.

Since news of their discovery and experiments broke in a fur breeding publication, the Mullens have been besieged by telephone calls, personal visits and mail from breeders seeking to buy stock.

The brothers made their first sales this summer following a visit to the ranch of four leading breeders from the U.S. The Mullens sold five trios (one male and two females in each trio) at $2,000 a trio.

Wallace Mullen estimates that since then the ranch has received orders valued at an estimated $150,000.

The Mullens suffered one serious setback in their breeding program. An April, 1964 fire destroyed 300 black females and 500 black males amounted to close to $500,000.

One U.S. authority who visited the Mullen ranch, described the breeding program as a "major transfusion" for the industry.

He said he was convinced that the New Tuskett ranch had something "that could have revolutionary effects on the mink industry."
