The Social Credit stand on trade has been that restrictive tariff and customs practices should be abolished and that there should be an international commodity house to distribute national surpluses. Also, party spokesmen have suggested that the creation of "debt-free" money, a basic Social Credit treaty, would help dollar-short countries to buy Canadian goods.

The Communists complain, on trade, that Canada is putting her natural resources into the hands of "American capitalists". The Labor-Progressives have been urging that Canada should engage in more trade with countries behind the Iron Curtain.

Conservative Promises
In other fields, the Progressive Conservatives have promised a better tax deal for municipalities; repeal of the wide Emergency Powers Act; Senate reform; outlawing communism; "floor prices for farm products; better labor legislation; a health insurance program; easier home-building terms; freight-rate reform and increased development of natural resources.

OCF leader M. J. Coldwell has laid more emphasis on health insurance than on any other point.

Organist Arrives For United Church

Mr. George A. Thompson, F.R.C.O. (O.H.M.), A.R.C.M. the newly appointed organist at Trinity United Church, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson and their young son and daughter, arrived in the city yesterday to assume his new position next week.

Mr. Thompson studied at Nicholas College, the Royal College of Church Music and for some time was organist and Choir Master at West Wickham parish church. This was followed by an appointment to the parish church at Bridgewater, Somerset in 1937 where he remained until his appointment to Trinity here, except for five and a half years of active service with the R.A.F. in the Middle East and Iceland.

The family arrived in Quebec on the Greek Liner "Columbia" from Southampton and came direct to Charlottetown. They will reside at the Harland Apartments on Water St.

Other issues he has emphasized have been the nationalization of such industries as steel, meat packing and manufacture of farm implements; government-subsidized low-rental home construction and lighter terms for private home-builders; floor prices for livestock; increase in old age and blind pensions, and legislation prescribing minimum wages and maximum hours of work.

Social Credit Points
Solon Low, Social Credit leader, has proposed a program designed to reduce Canadian living costs by about 15 per cent. It includes abolishing "hidden" taxes except the two per cent sales tax that supports old age pensions and reducing personal income taxes.

It also embraces the establishment of a "national monetary authority" that could issue money "at the rate necessary to ensure constant expansion of production and consumption." This is in line with Social Credit theory that money can be printed at a rate commensurate with the production potential of the country.

thought-provoking sermon based "Turn Thus us into Thee O Lord, and we shall be turned, renew our days as of old."

Mr. Fraser spoke of the faith that the early settler had in God which was strengthened in a great measure by their deep sense of the need of religion in their daily lives. He mentioned that family worship and individual prayer gave them the strength that they badly needed in those difficult times.

"The challenge of our faith in God and the challenge of our faith in our young people should be a renewal of a and continuation of the religion handed down to us by our forefathers," said the minister.

Mr. K. M. Martin acted as chairman and introduced the other two speakers at the 150th anniversary service which was the fourth night of celebrations began last Sunday.

Dr. Lloy W. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Education led his audience into two trends of thought regarding the building of a nation. The first was the one in popular effect in the United States where members of all nationalities are blended together to make so called "Good Americans". This, thought Dr. Shaw, was less preferable to the one in which all nationalities work together, but still maintain their individuality through their traits, customs and traditions. He compared the Canadian nation to a mosaic in which the various nationalities have a part in making up the whole pattern.

Dr. Shaw continuing his illustration, noted that cement was necessary to hold the mosaic together and went on to point out what the Scottish people had contributed in this direction. He placed religion at the head of the

LOUIS W. MULLEN
The many friends of the late Louis W. Mullen regret to learn of his passing in Montreal on July 18. The late Mr. Mullen was born in Charlottetown, the son of James L. and Mary Mullen. After returning from overseas where he saw service with the Forty-third Howitzer Battery he entered McGill University, graduating in 1923. Mr. Mullen was in business in Europe and New York. The latter years he spent in Montreal.

The late Mr. Mullen leaves to mourn his passing his sisters, Mrs. F. P. Hennessey, Mrs. R. A. MacDonald of this city, Miss Ethel Blanche Mullen of New York and Miss Viola Mullen of Massachusetts. Another sister, Mrs. Harry G. Jenkins, predeceased him two years ago.

His funeral was held Thursday morning from the Charlottetown Funeral Home to St. Dunstan's Basilica where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Charles MacDonald. Interment was in Covehead cemetery where services were conducted by Rev. Parnell Wood. The Legion graveside service was conducted by A. Walthen Gaudet. Last Post was sounded by Bugler William Chaisson. Pall bearers were: Dr. T. E. E. Robins, A. Walthen Gaudet, E. L. Smith, Norman J. MacLeod, P. R. MacCormac and Ernest McCarey.

Organist Arrives For United Church

Chief Justice Campbell said that it was a great pleasure to be with the people of Belfast on this memorable occasion and indeed an honour to address them. He pointed out that the more one studies the colonization of the early settlers, the more we realize what an important part they played in the history of this country. "For that reason this important event which you celebrate today, must be measured, not only as it effects the life of the country as a whole," said the speaker.

Mr. Campbell recalled that the colonization program was difficult and had not been for the fore and a part of Lord Selkirk it never would have been carried out. There had been considerable emigration to parts of the United States and Selkirk in following up the progress of his people in this area was displeased at the fact that the Highlander, with his natural tendency to readily adapt himself to new surroundings had quickly become Americanized. He therefore dreamed of new surroundings for his settlers where from other peoples and thus preserve their individuality.

When he was able to acquire the land at Belfast, he immediately began to make plans for the colonization of this area with Highlanders.

Chief Justice Campbell noted that the enforced emigration saw many of the Highlanders move to Southern Scotland, but to the man who had always enjoyed a feeling of independence, it was a difficult thing for him to work for some one else in the industrial areas. It was logical then for him to seek a place for himself in another part of the world.

The Chief Justice advised his audience that in addition to the proposed memorial at Belfast, the Board of Historic Sites and Monuments has recommended and the Government has approved the erection of a Memorial to the memory of the late Sir Andrew MacPhail, to be placed in the vicinity of Orwell.

In closing Mr. Campbell offered the suggestion that in many homes there were many articles and documents which had either been brought over from the time of the founding of the Colony or had been in the possession of the settlers later on. He suggested that they cherish and preserve them until at an early date they may repose in the protective custody of the Provincial Museum.

The music for the evening was under the direction of the Young People's choir. Heard in special numbers were Mr. Scott MacPherson, Misses Shirley Gilles and Carol MacDonald. Members of the Valleyfield choir sang and did the presenting of one of the Psalms.
