

Wilson Produces Centerpiece Of Appeal To British Voters

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP)—Harold Wilson produced the centerpiece of the Labor Party's appeal to the British electorate Tuesday—a master plan for state mobilization of the resources of science which he said would make Britain a great humming hive of industry and power.

Almost to a man, 2,000 delegates at the opposition party's annual conference rose to their feet.

They gave him a standing ovation lasting more than a minute. The excitement and cheers encouraged Wilson and his advisers in their belief they have come up with a major electoral vote-winner. It was the 47-year-old socialist's most important personal triumph since he took over from the late Hugh Gaitskell early this year.

SUMS UP TASKS
Wilson summed up the nation's tasks as Labor sees them:

"Our future lies not in military strength alone but in the efforts, the sacrifices, and above all the energies which a free people can mobilize for the future greatness of our country."

"We must use all the resources of democratic planning, all the latent and undeveloped energies and skills of our people, to insure Britain's standing in the world."

He outlined a four-point program envisaging a vast increase in the number of scientists and university graduates; massive application of science to industry, under state direction if necessary; diversion of British scientists and researchers from defence "prestige projects" to productive industrial fields organized by the state; and a partnership between the state and private enterprise to pioneer new techniques and industries.

Wilson claimed that Britain stands in peril of becoming "a stagnant backwater" because, he said, the nation so far has failed to face the challenge of the scientific revolution.

Writer Urges Brotherhood

QUEBEC (CP)—Robert Choquette, well-known French-speaking writer, appealed Wednesday to English- and French-speaking Canadians "to bring to reality the spirit of brotherhood among men which was preached by Pope John XXIII."

"Who can say that it was not part of a providential plan that French and English were placed side by side that they might bring about a miracle of good relations or of tolerance and mutual respect?"

Mr. Choquette, a member of the National Centennial Administration, was speaking to the Quebec Richelieu Club.

He said that French Canada is turning to the future.

"But where is the future? In isolation? No, it is in a fraternal co-operation with those whom history has placed beside us and for whom Canada is also a homeland."

Yanks Seeking Wheat Sale Okay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic congressional leaders urged President Kennedy Tuesday to permit sale of U.S. wheat to Russia and its satellite nations. But the chief executive gave them no indication where they will join Mr. Kennedy of his own view.

This was reported to reporters by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, after the leaders' weekly White House gathering.

"The consensus of leadership" at the meeting was in support of the sale, reported Humphrey, who said he was among those who urged that Kennedy give his approval. The Minnesota comes from the heart of the wheat country.

Humphrey said the president may decide by Friday whether to lift the restrictions against N.S., where he will undergo surgery.
