Friars Are Acquitted On Extortion Charges

MESSINA, Italy (Reuters)—Four bearded Capuchin friars have been acquitted on charges of taking part in an extortion racket in the hills of central Sicily.

Many persons in court here broke out in applause on the announcement of the acquittal.

Three Sicilian peasants on trial with the friars were sentenced to prison — two for 30 years, the other for 14 years.

The trial, Italy's most sensational case to involve members of religious orders, lasted more than three months.

The court deliberated seven hours and 25 minutes before announcing the verdict.

The monks were charged with threats, extortion and unintentional homicide in the shooting by masked men of a wealthy Sicilian land-owner, Angelo Canada, in 1958.

The trial opened March 12.

Witnesses told the court of a "reign of terror" four years ago at Mazzarino, in the bleak hills of central Sicily, where the Capuchins have a monastery. They are a branch of the Franciscans and are one of the biggest Roman Catholic orders.

The friars admitted in court they passed on extortion demands and collected money for unknown malefactors. But they said they did so under duress—choosing a "lesser evil" to save their own lives and those of the intended victims.

The acquitted monks are Father Carmelo, 83, Father Agrippino, 39, Father Venanzio, 65, and Father Vittorio, 42.

Laymen Giuseppe Salemi, 35, and Girolamo Azzolina, 27, were sentenced to 30 years, and Filippo Nicoletti, 29, described in court as "the boy bandit" got a 14-year term.

Self Help Needed Librarians Told

By RUSSEL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian librarians have been advised by a local government expert to do some "soul-searching" before seeking federal aid as the answer to their libraries' financial ills.

Eric Hardy of Toronto, specialist consultant on municipal organization, finance and administration, warned the Canadian Library Association that "federal aid may be a temporary palliative but not a curve."

He suggested libraries should first consider a better selling job to the local taxpayer and take a hard look at their role in relation to other local government services.

The former director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, Toronto, spoke at a workshop at the opening of the association's week-long annual meeting here.

"You shouldn't come here with a false sense of hope about getting federal aid for libraries," he told delegates. "It will be very difficult to achieve."

Libraries needed to examine closely not only their place as a public service but also their objectives and requirements. They had to ask themselves whether they wanted federal aid just to be fashionable by getting on the bandwagon of federal handouts.

Apart from political and constitutional difficulties, he questioned the wisdom of federal conditional grants on several other grounds.

"What guarantees have we that public libraries, with funds channelled down from the top, will produce anything worthwhile in the reading habits of the people?" Mr. Hardy asked.

Conditional grants also implied that the doctor assumed a degree of control over handling of the recipient's affairs. However, he added that funds might be allocated on a formula basis, possibly according to population or age groups.

Libraries also had to determine whether federal aid might be allocated primarily to urban or rural areas.

Librarians Fear Banned Books

OTTAWA (CP)—Fear was expressed in a report to the Ontario Library Association Tuesday that increasing liberalization of publishing standards abroad may lead to seizure of prohibited books in Canadian public libraries.

The report, prepared by the association's intellectual freedom committee, urged that the national revenue department and the provincial attorney-general keep library directors informed of all banned books and any contemplated prohibitions.

"Librarians should at least receive the same measure of assistance as the distributors of news-stand materials," it says.

It adds that seizures by the RCMP last fall of Toronto area library copies of Henry Miller's Tropic of Cancer were "the reasonalest soft tondeiseneg" result of the national revenue department's delayed action on this matter and might have been avoided if directors of libraries were kept informed of the department's prohibitions."

A Canadian ban, probably imposed around 1934 when the book was originally published in Paris, was never lifted and Canadian customs officials were not immediately aware that the Americans had lifted their ban, the report says.

TROOPS 'EDUCATED'

SAIGON (Reuters) — The clandestine radio station of the Communist Viet Cong guerrilla movement says American troops captured in South Viet Nam need not fear injury or execution. The only purpose in taking prisoners was to "educate" them against the United States policy of assisting the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem in his fight against the Communists, the radio said in a broadcast monitored in Saigon.

Price Boost Given To One Car Model

TORONTO (CP) — Chrysler Corporation of Canada Tuesday announced an immediate 10 per cent increase in the price of its imperial model as a result of the new tariff imposed on imported cars.

President Ronald Todgham said the imperial is the only Chrysler car affected.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass

Opening lead — ten of clubs.

It is sometimes possible to make a contract that seems destined to sure defeat. Bridge is a kindly game in this respect —you can occasionally pull rabbits out of the air. But, of course, you have to know something about magic.

South was in four spades. It didn't look difficult to make when dummy came down. The probable losers were a spade, a diamond and a club, assuming normal breaks.

He ducked the club lead, to establish better communication with his hand, and took East's return of a trump at trick two with the ace. After cashing the A-K of hearts, he played another trump to the king, discovering in the process that West had two trump tricks coming.

This put a different light upon matters. South couldn't make the contract now unless he found a way of avoiding a diamond loser, since he had already lost a club and was bound to lose two spade tricks. This was the task he set out to accomplish.

He ruffed a heart in dummy and then cashed the ace of clubs and trumped a club in his hand. That brought about this position:

North
♠ 10
♥ K 10 7 3

West
♠ Q J
♦ Q 8 5

East
♥ Q
♦ J 6 4
♣ K

South
♠ 8
♥ J
♦ A 9 3

The jack of hearts lead forced West to ruff to prevent declarer from winning his eighth trick. West continued with a trump, but was then forced to return a diamond. A low diamond lead would have permitted South to first trap the jack and next the queen.

West did as well as he could when he led the queen instead. But declarer, playing for the honors to be split, went up with the king, finessed the nine on the return, and thus avoided the diamond loser.

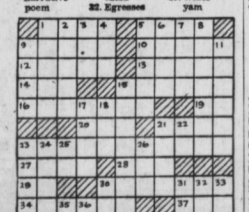
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X I D L B A A X R E is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation
