

MR. AND MRS. C. FRIZZELL AND ATTENDANTS

Lovely Wedding Held In Church At Port Hill

St. James Anglican Church, Port Hill, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 3.30 p. m., when Rev. M. J. Findlay united in marriage Bertha Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Birch, Port Hill and Charles Golding, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Frizzell of Marshfield.

The church was beautifully decorated with pink and white gladioli and mixed flowers. The guest pews were marked with pink and white sweet peas and white satin ribbon bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and looked every radiant in a bridal gown of imported French Chantilly lace over satin and nylon tulle. The gown was fashioned with a low Sabrina neckline and short scalloped sleeves and matching lace mitts. From a wide-midriffed lace trimmed bodice the nylon tulle bouffant skirt fell to a ballerina length hemline.

A fingertip illusion veil was held in place by a crown of finely pleated nylon tulle scalloped with simulated pearls and translucent sequins. She carried a white lace covered Bl-ble adorned with a corsage of red roses and white satin streamers with tiny red rose buds.

The bride was attended by Miss Iris Frizzell, only sister of the groom. She wore a heavenly blue ballerina length gown of nylon over nylon tulle and taffeta, with matching headdress and mitts. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

The bride's little niece, Miss Marilyn MacKendrick, was flower girl. Her dress was of embossed nylon in pale pink and heavenly blue. She carried a crocheted basket of flower petals.

The bride's mother wore a black sheath dress of master sheer crepe with a white bolero and bolero of imported French lace. She wore black and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a rosewood dress of imported French lace over taffeta with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Herman Dymont was in charge of the music and effectively rendered Longherim and Mendelssohn's wedding Marches. Mr. Harley Ings was guest soloist, and sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Mr. David Birch, only brother of the bride, was groomsmen. The ushers were M. R. Garth Herring and Mr. Wyman Millar, both of Charlottetown.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 70 guests at the home of the bride. The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Rev. Mr. Findlay asked the blessing after which the newly weds and their respective families and friends enjoyed a bountiful repast, served by relatives of the bride.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Ingham W. Palmer, uncle of the bride, to which the groom very capably gave a fitting response. Miss Roberta Todd, friend of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The charming young couple spent their honeymoon on a motor trip to Boston and New York City. For travelling the bride wore a sheath dress of brown and beige with matching duster and accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Frizzell will reside in Southport where the bride is on the teaching staff at Southport School and the groom is on the staff of Canada Packers Ltd. —Photo by Heckbert Studios.

MORNING SMILE

The man just back from the West was telling his harrowing experience.

"There were Indians to the right of me, Indians to the left, Indians in front, and Indians behind."

"Whew!" said a listener, "What did you do?"

"What could I do?..I bought a blanket."

ELLEN'S DIARY

Mack And Gage Have A Lot To Talk About

And now was come to us, borne in on the wings of a morning a perfect autumn day, sun-spread mellowly, and fanned by a light, sweet, wind of the west. Balmly, though in the shade one was aware of the cool of the season. But beautiful. Odd leaves drifting down to rustle under-foot colors, the scarlet and gold, the crimson and orange, ranging in unbelievably lovely shades in tiered woodlands climbing our valley.

And "What shall we do today?" was the question posed to the farmers when they in work-boots first-footed into the untrod paths of another October week of work. "Perhaps" one suggested "we had better haul in from that field the last of those straw-bales. They'll not likely be in a better condition than now."

Presently there was a spirited gathering of the men of the name and machines, and lads still free of school, smiling and interested; the two younger, Gage and Mack managed to combine their work and play most pleasurably to give them what they know enchanting memories of these choice youthful days.

"It's been a long time since I saw you" Mack offered.

"Yes" Gage nodded, "though it's only since Saturday!" but what news to catch up on, what exciting tales to unfold of happenings in the interval — of dogs and rabbits, of squirrels and coons and all that interesting collection of creatures which contribute to the enchantment of living on an island farm. It was good to listen in.

"Her dem!" a sparrow chucked. "Ain't dey de funnies' busles' likenes' chaps — dem two. An' 'His Sigh' matched ours 'so soon to be done growed up!"

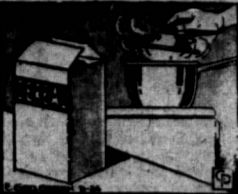

Loads of tables brought in and stored this morning, the afternoon presented the potato-digging, the children, Granddaughter included, all smiles at the prospect. But ah, the fancied creaking bones and aching muscles the new chore left in its wake though all the crop was drawn to the yard in one homing of the truck! In nice increase of seed planted, there is an ample supply and sound, to take care of the needs of our tables through the months ahead.

"With this help, Ellen" James said at supper, quite pleased with the display of young industry he had seen in the field "we should be growing more potatoes."

"Of it's nice work" Mack agreed soberly. "But you must remember, it's not too light for anyone past his prime!"

Time for the digging... and
