LEECHES.

Something About the Voracious Reptiles Bred at Bordeaux.

In view of the great strides made by simple, everyday surgery during the past half century, it would seem that the use of the leech, for blood-letting, should be a relic of barbarism; but, as a matter of fact, while teeth are painlessly extracted, and drastic doses of medicine have given way to equally effective sugar-coated pills, neither cup nor scalpel has wrested the leech's supremacy.

Nothing else can draw from the human system a superfluity of blood as gently and thoroughly as this loathsome black worm, and many thousands of people devote themselves cultivating his appetite for blood, and improving his breed—i.e., enlarging his stomach and reducing his external bulk.

The reservoirs from which flow the supplies of the choicest and hungriest leeches for the whole world are situated near Bordeaux, in France, and consist of acres of dark brown mud, of an average depth of about four feet. The ooze is very light, and seems to be in an unending state of fermentation.

This is due partly to the movements of the leeches themselves, for the water is alive with them, but chiefly perhaps to a number of living springs at the bottom of the quagmires, which keep the unsavory mass always in a semi-liquid condition.

The fasting leech is a very different looking creature from the same worm after he has dined. Before eating, he is a small, slim and very active reptile. A satisfactory meal fully trebles his size and renders him quite torpid.

"Fate cannot harm me; I have dined to-day," seems to be his motto, for a needle might be passed through him, or he might be thrown on a hot frying pan, while he is in this comatose condition, and he would show no indication of suffering.

As his appetite, rightly applied, is his only marketable quality, it may be gathered that he is not often fed—perhaps once every three or four weeks.

It takes a healthy, vigorous leech a long time to starve to death, and when such a calamity is imminent, he makes no secret of his distress. The slimy mud heaves over the writhings of the famishing blood suckers, and millions of them show their shining attenuated forms above the surface.

Then a shocking scene may be witnessed by those who are sufficiently morbid to be interested in it. A lot of old or decrepit mules and horses that have outlived their usefulness are driven into the ooze until their legs and the lower part of their bodies are covered.

Millions of the voracious leeches fasten upon them, and when the tortured brutes attempt to rush out out of the death pit they are remorselessly forced back. The leeches must be fed, and there is no escape possible for their victims.

As soon as one swarm of reptiles, surfeited with blood, drops off, another fresh an ravenous, takes its place. The old horse soon drops into the mud and is smothered to death, but the leeche continue to suck at the carcass as long as any blood will flow.

They never consume any of the flesh and though countless microscopic holes are punctured on the body, they are only skin deep.

The leeches are only removed from the beds when large orders call for them—which happens at least once a week, for there is an enormous foreign demand for them.

They are caught by a curious and gruesome process. If they are wanted for a nearby market, a day or two before the regular feeding-time a party of men—whose poverty, not their will, consent—and who must be nearly as hungry as the leeches themselves—strip the lower limbs and wade into the slime.

In an instant the exposed parts of their bodies are covered with the black worms. But the creatures are by no means allowed to enjoy their meal in peace.

Their teeth, though sharper than needles, are very small, and it takes two or three minutes to enable them to get the gluelike hold that nothing but death or repletion can break.

Long before their skins are fairly pierced, the men have hastily waded out, carrying their loads with them, and attendants are in readiness to sweep the parasites, with camel's hair brushes, into soft bags.

A man must be, literally and figuratively, thick-skinned who earns his living in this way; but the "leechers," as they are called, are not sensitively moulded.

The worms are packed in boxes of wet moss, and sent to the uttermost parts of the earth. Those going very long distances are caught as soon as they have sufficiently digested their last meal to enable them to make room for another; those for nearer markets should be sent away with nearly empty stomachs. The great object of the French dealers is to have them hungry and ready for work when they arrive at their destination.

Armies and Education.

Italy expends every year $96,000,000 for her soldiers, and less than $4,000,000 for schools. In Spain it costs $100,000,000 to maintain the army, and only $1,500,000 to educate the children; but then, it is the exception to find a Spanish farmer who is able to read or write. Germany boasts of being in the foremost rank among the nations in the Kulturkampf of the world; yet she expends $185,000,000 on her army, while $10,000,000 is deemed sufficient for the education of her children. France maintains an army at the expense of $151,000,000 and supports her schools with $21,000,000.

An Electric Gatling Gun.

An electric motor attachment has been applied to the Gatling gun which promises not only to more than double the destructive capabilities of that particular machine, but to effect a great advance in the efficiency of all machine guns. The motor is detachable, is of one horse power, is very small, weighing but a trifle over fifty pounds, and is placed in the breech of the gun, amply protected. The motor increases the presen rate of firing, 1,200 shots a minute to more than 3,000 shots a minute.

ALL THREE CURED.

Neil McKechnie, with his wife and mother-in-law cured of Constipation by Dodd's Kidney Pills—These Pills better Than Ordinary Cathartics.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Neil McKechnie, a popular barber of this city, has been a sufferer from chronic constipation for years. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and not only obtained immediate relief, but a permanent cure. His wife and mother-in-law were similarly afflicted, and used these pills with the same good result. Ordinary cathartics give only temporary relief and leave the patient worse than before using them. While Dodd's Kidney Pills are not cathartics, their peculiar action on the liver and kidneys is such that the causes of constipation are permanently removed. These pills are manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold by all dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price; fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

STARVING TO DEATH.

Saved by Paine's Celery Compound.

"It Was Worth More to Me Than One Hundred Dollars Worth of Medicines from Doctors."

Disease and death are again completely defeated and banished by the miraculous power of Paine's Celery Compound. All the combined forces of disease and suffering could not prevail against the curing virtues of nature's strength and life restorer.

Mr. John Irvine, of Heckston, Ont., sends us the following graphic account of his rescue from death:—

"Three years ago I had a severe attack of "la grippe," which left me in a very weak a debilited condition. The next autumn I had another attack which left me in a very bad state. My health was nearly wrecked, I had no strength, and felt tired all the time. I was so weak that my legs would not support my body, and I have often fallen to the ground when trying to attend to my work both in the field and in my barn, and would be compelled to lie whenever I had fallen, until I could muster sufficient strength to rise.

My appetite was all gone, and when I would try to eat, in order to gain strength, I would suffer untold misery for hours. It seemed to me that I was sloly starving to death.

I tried different doctors, but did not derive any benefit from their treatment. My friends thought I was going to die, and I verily believed I would have died had I not tried your Paine's Celery Compound. I bought six bottles, and can conscientiously say I received more benefit from it than I ever dreamed of; it was worth more to me than one hundred dollars worth of medicines from the doctors. I began to improve in health before I had finished the first bottle; and to-day I am completely restored to health. I can do as good a day's work as I ever could, and now can eat any kind of food without experiencing trouble afterward, and can sleep as well as when I was a boy.

"I have not had to use any of the Compound for months, which convinces me that the cure is permanent. I feel it my duty to let every sufferer know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me, and it seems impossible for me to say all I should in its favor. My wife, who has been a sufferer for years with chronic rheumatism, was greatly benefited by the the use of your medicine. I send you the testimony unsolicted."

A Musical Voice.

The nasal twang produced by Catarrh gives a disagreeble sound to the voice. But Catarrh is also accompanied by even more unpleasant results such as offensive breath, headache, nausea, deafness, etc. Sufferers from Catarrh will find in Hawker's Catarrh Cure a perfect and positive cure, restoring the organs to their natural healthy condition and removing all disagreeble symptoms. Sold everywhere. Only 25 cents.

King Khama, the firm ally of the British in their South African war, is a Christian, a monogamist and a teetotaler. Khama, when a youth, accompanied his father to an old Boer's to sell tusks. The Boer produced a brandy bottle and plied Khama's father with the contents until he induced him to give up a valuable quantity of ivory for a paltry horn of powder and a bar of lead. From that day Khama resisted the temptation to patronize the black bottle.
