"The Guardian of the Gulf"

By a Grand-Nephew of Larrie Gorman

In the Gulf of great St. Lawrence lies a group of little isles And separated from the main a distance of nine miles There is a Garden Province, of this all do perceive, It's called Prince Edward Island — an Eden without an Eve. Its soil is very fertile, its people staunch and healthy; Like the rest of the Dominion, it has its poor and wealthy. It's inhabited by English, Irish, Scotch and Frenchmen too, And many other races though their numbers are quite few. All like to hear what happens from the news that's in the papers, Of how the world's behave, or is cutting up new capers. The Pioneer and Journal are sent both far and wide To keep the people posted on the news from Summerside; The Patriot comes from farther down and sure is worth the money. To have its items spread around, the sad ones and the funny. But the favourite of the dailies is the one of high renown, The Guardian of the Gulf it's called, and comes from Charlottetown. It covers far-off countries, and the Island like the dew, And many subjects in between, as I'll relate to you.

Ellen's diary's oft-times t'rey, but does describe the home; The page of Sport sure holds the fort no matter where we roam; Joe Louis scraps with all the chaps, you'd think he uses cleaners; The Islanders win—it is a sin, the way they trounce the Beavers. But the sport of all, as I recall, is "Coming Down the Stretch." Since Colonel Dan this work began; oh, what a man to sketch! Of any race he can trace from here right to the Rhine, And drivers all, the big and small — a Miller, Kelly or O'Brien.

To advertise, it sure is wise to get them in these pages. And sell your wares of spuds and pears, and save on weekly wages. The editor gloats upon his Notes, for this man is no dunce; While reading this try not to miss the cartoons of Vic Runtz. Another birth—it's loads of mirth and keep 'up God's creation; Another dies, gets married or flies off to another nation. How "racy" do glisten and Rotaries 'listen to a speech by Hyndman (Wallie). Of changing life; and M.P.'s strife, — a busy man, by golly! A page of views gives finance news, and how to get war-bonds; From east to west it's stood the test — that cure of Father John's!

The front page tells about the Reds and how their guns discharge; My neighbour reads it without specs, because the print is large; The freight-rates up, the blizzard down, while Jones goes to the Senate; Town lights go out, new butter in, we'll have to now make rem-nets; Four children burn, their parents yearn, while one leaps from a train; A trawler amiss; how sad this is, four frozen in a plane!

Another page it is the rage to count among the gentry; The Army plans and then demands you join and be a sentry. This paper's read, the news is spread as far as Egypt's Nile, With family doctors, needle-craft and also Morning Smile. Dorothy Dix can always fix the breach twixt man and wife; The page inside does show the bride has something new in life.

His mother, Mrs. Joshua Millar, Ellerslie, is staying with her daughter-in-law during her son's convalescence.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hutchinson accompanied by Mrs. Harold Gillis and Mr. Willard Hutchinson motored to Summerside on Sunday and visited with relatives and friends while there.

The first hockey match of the season and the first to be played in the Hangar Rink at the former Mount Pleasant airport was played on Friday evening between the Ellerslie and the Ellettsville Rockets with the Rockets being the winners by a 9-0 score. There was a large number of hockey fans in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Burreigh, accompanied by Mrs. Joshua Millar motored to Mount Royal on Friday and visited with Mr. Sanford Phillips, brother of Mrs. Burreigh and Mrs. Millar. Mr. Phillips has been ill. His many friends here will join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

I'm sure it pleases bachelors and also many a Mormon To read the Poet's Corner and the ballads of Larry Gorman. I've heard a lady recite them, till hoarseness had her cease; She knew them by the dozen, because she was his niece. She thought he was a wonder, in fact there was no other To take the place of Lawrence,— that woman was my mother.

The world is full of trouble; how strange, but oh, how true, You'll find it in The Guardian, that piece that's meant for you; For every kind of reading, I'm sure it will suffice; It has no other equals, including the new price. You have to read the Bible to know what is in store; And you have to read The Guardian when the postman leaves the door! —G.W.M. Elmsdale, P.E.I.
