Magazines for May.

SCRIBNER'S.

The first series attempt to represent girls college life in magazine articles is begun in the May Scribner's with "Undergraduate Life at Wellesley," by Abbe Carter Goodloe. This article has nothing to do with scholastic ideas or the problems of higher education, it pictures the life as one who has lived it sees it. Miss Goodloe's skill as a writer was amply attested by the success of her "College Girls" stories. She exhibits here humor and a keen appreciation of the social side of the life of Wellesley—particularly as it is lived by "the large majority who take college easily, and work when they work and play when it is time to play." Her picturesque account of "Float Day," "Tree Day," the "Barn Swallows," etc., is supplemented with a series of brilliant illustrations by the Misses Cowles; Peixoto, Gilbert, and Rosenmever. The love story of Prince Kalonay and the American heir comes well to the fore in Richard Harding Davis's serial "The King's Jackal." The bankrupt king is proving a most amusing character.

In this instalment of "The Workers—The West," Mr. Wyckoff pays a high compliment to the average policeman as an efficient aid to the poor man in time of trouble. He is a shrewd judge of human nature and is seldom deceived. Moreover, he is sympathetic and helpful, but never sentimental. This chapter also contains a glimpse of Socialists, which will correct the false impressions of many people. Respectable seriousness was their chief characteristic as Mr. Wyckoff found them. Leigh's pictures continue to be remarkable specimens of realism. "The Burgoyne Campaign and its Results" are the subject of this chapter of Senator Lodge's "Story of the Revolution." The Battles of Oriskany and Bennington are described with great vigor, and pictured by Christy and John Howard Pyle's picture of the burial of of General Fraser is the frontispiece of the number. Journalism has found in Jesse Lynch Williams a writer who can put its characters into fiction with serious purpose. Generally a "newspaper story" is simply the frame work for something melodramatic, treated flippantly or cynically, "The New Reporter," by Mr. Williams describes a series of vivid incidents, which make a reporter with a "nose for news" out of the young college graduate. How the young man feels about it, is the burden of the story. This is one of a group of newspaper stories of which "The Stolen Story," in the last Fiction Number, was the first. How the negroes were paralyzed with terror by the first outbreak of the Ku-Klux is described in the May instalment of "Red Rock," by Mr. Page.

THE NATIONAL.

The National Magazine for May has been received by THE EXAMINER. Between its covers are to be found several illustrated articles dealing with topics of the day besides the usual complement of stories and poetry. "In London with Charles Dana Gibson" is the first article Mr. Gibson, during his recent visit to London, had his eyes very much open to the things that are characteristic of the Londoners, and these things he has given us in his drawings of the article. A most timely sketch is one under the title of "At the Sign of the Flag," giving a good idea of the gauntlet through which a recruit must run in order to be a soldier or a sailor in Uncle Sam's employ. Another article of intense current interest is "With Gomez in the Cuban Skirmishes," being an illustrated digest of a field correspondent's four month's campaign with the leader of the Cuban Insurgent forces. Frederick de L. Booth-Tucker, the head of the American branch of the Salvation Army, has an illustrated article on "Back to the Land" or the Farm Colony Plan of the Salvation Army. Music and opera lovers will find an article of rare interest under the title of "Some

Scrofula is Snake-Like

in its subtlety. It lies hidden for years in the ambush of the blood, and when it strikes it voids its venom alike on strength and beauty, disfiguring the one and undermining the other.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

is a specific for scrofula in its worst and most malignant forms. Scrofula is a blood disease. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifying medicine. Mineral medicines only drive scrofula below the surface. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a vegetable remedy and it eradicates the disease. There is no remedy for scrofula equal to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"I was cured of a long-standing case of scrofula by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The disease first manifested itself when I was a child, by breaking out in red blotches all over my body. I was not free from the trouble until I took several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. That effected a permanent cure."—Mrs. E. H. SNYDER, Lehigh-ton, Pa.

Memories of Leopold Damrosch by Caroline A. Powell. Ibsen enthusiasts also will find a short sketch to their liking in Vance Thompson's "Ibsen's John Gabriel Borkman," a sketch which deals incidentally also with New York's tastes in the drama. Biblical readers will be attracted towards "A Daughter of Moab" by Dr Charles A. Dickinson, an illustrated article on one of the most beautiful stories of woman's friendships that the world has known. Altogether bright, clean and vigorous The National Magazine has established a standard of excellence second to none other.

HARPER'S.

The leading feature of Harper's Magazine for May is "Awakened Russia," the first of a series of articles treating Russia as a military power in the forefront of modern political and territorial movements, by Julian Ralph; illustrated from drawings by T. de Thustrup and Carlton T. Chapman and from engravings by E. Schladitz. "The Trans-Isthmian Canal Problem" (with map) is by Colonel William Laudlow U. S. A., chairman of the first Nicaraguan Commission. "East Side Considerations," is a cheerful and sympathetic account of a less-familiar side of New York life, by E. S. Martin, illustrated by W. A. Rogers. "Varallo and the Val Sesia" is an account of a comparatively unknown Italian artist considered by high authorities to be Raphael's superior, to which is added a graphic sketch of life in an unexplored corner of Italy. It is by Edwin Lord Weeks, and is illustrated from drawings by E. L. Weeks and from photographs. "Some Byways of the Brain," second paper, by Andrew Wilson, M. D., is a scientific explanation of characteristic brain processes as disclosed by the latest investigations. "University Life in the Middle Ages," is by Professor W. T. Hewett, and is illustrated by F. V. du Mond and A. B. Davies after old prints.

CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL.

The Canadian Home Journal for May is another step ahead for its proprietors. Perhaps its most prominent feature is an article from the pen of Rev. Elliott S. Rowe refuting Bok's slander upon the Sunday-school. Dr. Bryce and Dr. Smuck contribute capital health articles. Kate Westlake Yeigh writes of the Kootenay. The Women's Canadian Historical Society occupy a page, which is theirs permanently, inasmuch they have made the Journal their official organ. The life of Sir James LeMoine, with a portrait of himself and his home, Spencer Grange, Que. A handsome illustration of Longfellow's poem, "It is not always May," drawn for the Journal by Paul Caron. "The Nine Sisters," by Rose Clark, and "The Pantry Ghost" by Madeleine Geale are all well worthy of perusal, and the regular departments are complete in every detail. Every family should read the Journal which has a practical proposition to make to all. Canadian Home Journal, McKinnon Building, Toronto.

Georgina.

The little lady shakes her head,
And vows that she will never wed;
But even while the tale she tells,
There comes a sound of wedding-bells
Oh, you may trust the fickle vane
That only points to veer again,
But not the dainty little head
That shakes to say she will not wed.
—Charles Henry Webb, in the May Scribner's.

DIED.

At Summerside on Saturday, April 30th at 6 a. m., Hon. William G. Strong aged 79.

At Marie, on the 17th ult., Lizzie, eldest daughter of the late Theophilus Webster, J. P. Though very ill for several months, and at times suffering severely, her patience and resignation to the Divine will were unflinching. Her amiable and unselfish disposition rendered her a favorite with all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, and her early removal by death is an affliction felt not only by her relations, but by the entire community, and it will be difficult to fill her place in the church, of which she was a consistent member. She has passed from the sufferings of earth to the endless rest and glory of Heaven.

Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest;
Lay down thy head upon thy Saviour's breast;
We love thee well but Jesus loves thee best,—
Good night!
Only "Good night," beloved, not "Farewell!"
A little while and all His saints shall dwell
In hallowed union invisible,—
Good night!

Moncton Times: It must have required a great amount of pluck on the part of the United States fleet to fire on Matanzas. There are no modern fortifications at Matanzas; any defences at all at this point are of a temporary nature and would not be a serious menace to a modern war vessel of the third-class.
