AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

FARM AND BUSINESS From time to time the state ment appears that the farmer has become a businessman and if he is to be successful must apply business principles to his farming.

Finally a demand for marketing legislation to give the producer control through marketing boards. The evolution of farming from a means of subsistence to an economic enterprise has increased the farmers interest in marketing various boards and has, in turn, made him more vulnerable to the farmer's status than we disagree.

NOVA SCOTIA ABATTOIR The erection in the near future of a livestock abattoir in Nova Scotia is now a certainty and is the result of promotion by the Nova Scotia Federation of Agriculture with the financial backing of Nova Scotian farmers, the provincial government and the Federal government.

MARKET AND PRICES The farmer's stoicism in the face of natural hazards—too much or not enough rain—fall, hail, wind, frost, and disease—should not extend to his attitude towards markets and prices.
