Right Hon. W. E. Forster.

The cable announces the death of Right Hon. William Edward Forster, in the 68th year of his age. The son of a minister of the Society of Friends, Mr. Forster shared with John Bright the position of a prominent adherent of that body with great prominence in the Liberal party. After completing his education, he became a worsted manufacturer at Bradford. His first political venture was as a Liberal candidate for Leeds in 1859 when he was defeated by only twenty-one, while receiving 2,280 votes. Two years later at a bye-election he was returned by acclamation for Bradford, and held that constituency continuously afterward. When not elected by acclamation he was usually in subsequent elections at the head of the poll. He was under-secretary for the colonies in Lord Russell's administration in 1865-6, and vice-president of the committee of council on education from 1868 to 1874; was sworn a member of the privy council 1868, and admitted a member of the cabinet in 1870. He had charge of the Education Bill of 1870, displaying great tact and ability while conducting that measure through the Commons. When Mr. Gladstone retired from the leadership of the Opposition in 1875, he was much spoken of as the successor to that position; but he declined the honor, and the choice fell upon the Marquis of Hartington.

Mr. Forster enjoyed a number of scholastic distinctions. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1875, and in that year was elected Lord Rector of the University of Aberdeen, which institution conferred on him the honorary degree of LL. D. in 1876. He was the author of a number of pamphlets and lectures, among the former being a defence of William Penn against the strictures of Macaulay. In 1880 he was made Chief Secretary for Ireland, and having advised the passage of coercive measures, he was for a time very unpopular, and was stigmatized as "Buckshot Forster." He resigned his post when a milder policy was adopted. He remained a steadfast supporter of Mr. Gladstone, though differing from him in his Irish policy.

That Elopement.

A Kentville, N. S., "Bachelor" sends the following particulars of the Aylesford elopement to the Halifax Herald:—For some time a pretty young girl from St. John, named Fanny Fisher, lived with her uncle W. J. Balcorn, of Aylesford, as companion to her aunt, his wife. The girl was the pet of the family. Everything went along lovely; but some time ago A. E. Brennan, a young widower, crossed the girl's path. From that moment she was smitten and a captive. One of the love letters fell into the hands of the uncle and aunt. They didn't approve of the match, and did all they could to prevent it. They placed every obstacle in the way, but love overcame all barriers. Clandestine meetings were held, and all arrangements made for an elopement—of the most audacious kind. The sleighing was splendid ten days ago and Fanny induced her aunt to go for a drive; they would enjoy a drive so much. They went. When a mile or so from the house, the girl suddenly noticed something wrong with the bride and got out to fix it. Just at that moment another sleigh dashed up from behind. Instead of getting into the sleigh with her aunt, Fanny jumped into the strange sleigh. The aunt was thunderstruck; and before she had time to demand an explanation, or even to recover from her surprise, Fanny and her widower-lover were dashing along toward Berwick, where Henry Elmore Brennan added Fanny Sophia Fisher were duly made man and wife by Rev. T. D. Hart, Methodist Minister. The affair has created unprecedented excitement in this quiet and matter-of-fact old-fashioned community; and Mr. and Mrs. Balcorn are receiving the sympathies and the wilfully wicked young couple the congratulations of their respective friends.

A Murderous Assault.

The Truro correspondent of the Halifax Herald says that on Saturday evening last a murderous assault was committed by three colored men. George McCallum, a young man of twenty-seven, while going home across the railroad grounds, was set upon by a colored man named Hen. Paris, one of the many denizens of Foundry hill, Gardiner Clish and his partner, Councillor Macdonald, were also going home. They heard the cries and ran to the spot. Two negroes were upon McCallum, who was down and in great danger. Mr. Clish pulled one of them away, who immediately resented it by striking at him with a stick, breaking his hat, and grazing his forehead slightly. A third man had in the meantime secured a piece of board about three feet long and two inches wide, jagged upon the edges.

With this weapon he struck at Macdonald, hitting him on one side of the head, at the corner of his right eye, just escaping the temple. The blood spurted and covered the board in clots, so violent was the blow, Macdonald was stunned, but rallied in a few moments, and ran toward Inglis street, giving an alarm. Dr. McKay was called and dressed the wound. A large crowd threatening violence against the whole colored population, searched the railway grounds with lanterns, finding the stick and board. Afterwards, accompanied by policeman Green they went to the house of Mr. Alex Paris, on the hill where one of the men was arrested. On Sunday the other two were captured after a hard chase. Councillor Macdonald's condition is critical, and he is unable to leave his house. He still acts dazed-like. His head is swollen and benumbed.

News from Newfoundland.

Recent advices from Newfoundland report terrible destitution still prevailing there. One hundred families in St. John's are actually on the verge of starvation, and 600 people are being supplied with the necessities of life either by the Government or public subscriptions. Harrowing stories of destitution come from all along the coasts.
Seven persons were recently drowned under peculiarly sad circumstances. Three little girls, all under twelve years, playing on the ice, fell through a hole. A brother and sister driving a dog train over the ice were all submerged. The boy was drowned, but the girl clung to the dogs and was rescued after being four hours in the water. The dogs were drowned. Three brothers named Eason went gunning in a small boat and have never been heard of since.
The seal fishery so far has been very successful. In Notre Dame Bay the largest catch ever known was secured.
The brigantine Arctic with a cargo of salt was abandoned in the ice off St. Shotts a few days ago, but was afterwards boarded by people from the shore and taken as a prize into St. John's.

Cable advices report an enormous increase in the catch of codfish over last year. One million quintals have already been taken. This will supply the whole European market and make still more gloomy the outlook for Nova Scotia and Newfoundland fishermen.

Lime Kiln Club Notes.

A motion that a barrel of lemonade be placed in the hall at every meeting hereafter was voted down, and Elder Toots, who made it was fined $11.
Judge Arbitration Smith attempted to get a resolution through the meeting, declaring the accordion to be the national musical instrument of America, but received no support.
Uncle Ben Thompson wanted the meeting to express itself on the subject, but was ordered to sit down.
The janitor reported twenty-two new leaks in the roof and fifteen in the stove, and was instructed to draw on the treasurer for twelve cents to buy cement.—Detroit Free Press.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little aches awake as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. [Feb 4 cod wky]

Mrs. Whitney, mother of Anne Whitney, the sculptor, is living at Watertown, Mass., at the age of 101 years. A few days ago she surprised the family by walking into the breakfast room at an unusually early hour. "Why mother," exclaimed her daughter, did you come down stairs alone?" "Why, yes," replied the energetic centenarian; "I should think I was old enough to come alone!"

The hangman of Vienna, Heinrich Willenbacher, who died the other day in his 51st year, held his office for 24 years, and during that time executed 36 criminals. This is not a large number for a city with a million of inhabitants; but murders, and, indeed all crimes of violence are of rare occurrence in Vienna, the manners of the inhabitant being proverbially gentle.

An Italian professor wishing to find out whether the miasm of the malaria existed in the dew and soil, experimented on himself by having infusions of dew and soil collected from unhealthy places injected under his skin. He experienced no evil results. He and his friend made fifty-two similar experiments without harm.

They have been arresting more Aldermen in New York. If the detectives continue landing the men whom the people of New York delight to honor in the cells at the present rate, a seat in the Civic Council will in time become looked upon as a sort of preliminary training for Sing Sing.

Destruction of industrial property by those who want employment or more wages is akin to the act of mutinous sailors who set fire to their own ship. It is a sign of absolute desperation, which is not much consoled by the thought that the ship-owners will lose, too.
