

The Farmer's Wife.

The farmer came in from the field one day, His languid step and his weary way, His bended brow, and winnow hand, All showing his work for the good of the land;

By the kitchen fire stood his patient wife, Light of his home and joy of his life, With face all aglow and busy hand, Preparing the meal for her husband's band

Sun shines bright when the farmer goes out, Birds sing sweet songs, lambs frisk about, The brook bubbles softly in the glen, While he works bravely for the good of men;

How briskly the wife steps about within— The dishes to wash, and the milk to skim, The fires go out, and the flies buzz about— For dear ones at home her heart is kept stout;

When the day is o'er and the evening has come, The creatures are fed and the milking is done, He takes his rest 'neath the old shade tree, From the labor of the land his thoughts are free:

But the faithful wife, from sun to sun, Takes the burden up that's never done; There is no rest there is no pay, For the household good she must work away;

When autumn is here, with chilling blast, The farmer gathers his crop at last, His barns are full, his fields are bare, For the good of the land he'll have his care,

But the willing wife, till life's closing day, Is the children's, the husband's stay, From day to day she has done her best, Until death alone can give her rest;
