Pope Declares World Facing Dizzying Gamble With Fate

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pleading anew for peace in Viet Nam, Pope Paul said Tuesday the world faces a "dizzying gamble with the fate of mankind."

He spoke at an outdoor mass before tens of thousands in St. Peter's Square, leading a worldwide Roman Catholic prayer day for peace.

"We will pray for peace, especially in the Far East . . . a peace that will not be imposed by treachery or by force but by negotiation conducted with honor and humanity," the pontiff said.

The pope referred also to racial and other disorders, saying: "Nor will we forget in our prayer those other places in the world where hatred and strife trouble civil harmony."

"We are still concerned with the question of peace . . . Never should we grow weary of considering and taking up this theme, since it concerns the dizzying gamble with the fate of mankind."

The pope recalled his speech before the UN General Assembly one year ago today, when he urged an end to war.

"Our cry for peace," he said, "must ring out again from a sorrowful heart; for during the past year the conditions which make peace possible have not improved."

WHILE VISITING Charlottetown on a fund-raising trip, Miss Yamake (left) and Miss Sachike met Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. MacDonald at Government House yesterday morning.

Walter Rogers Gives Address

Walter Rogers, National President of the Credit Grantors' Association, was guest speaker at the first regular meeting of the Charlottetown Credit Grantors Association held last night at the Basilica Recreation Center.

Mr. Rogers spoke on the benefits to the credit grantors of belonging to such a local organization. He mentioned that not only would the individual benefit by associating with other men and women in this field, but that he would also benefit by the material and courses available to him through the organization.

One such course leads to the designation "Certified Consumer Credit Executive" and is widely recognized throughout the credit fraternity as a high degree of competency.

Also touched on by Mr. Rogers was the topic of credit counselling.

The meeting was adjourned following a question and answer period.

France Fires Fifth A-Test

PARIS (AP)—France set off the fifth atomic blast in its series of South Pacific tests Tuesday over Mururoa Lagoon near Tahiti, the defence ministry announced.

The ministry said the blast was the last in the series.

The experimental device was similar to the last one Sept. 24 in its content of plutonium, the statement said, but the plutonium was contained in a different configuration.

Addition of plutonium gives more power to an atomic explosion, but France still is about two years away from a thermonuclear or H-bomb because of lack of sufficient quantities of enriched uranium.

Wilson Freeze Is Compulsory

BRIGHTON, England (CP)—The Labor government Tuesday night put teeth into its wage-and-price freeze by making it compulsory. It is the strongest power ever assumed by a British government in peacetime.

The cabinet decision to make compulsory the freeze it introduced as a voluntary measure 10 weeks ago was taken a few hours after the Labor party had endorsed the policies of Prime Minister Wilson.

The Wilson endorsement, by show of hands, came at the annual party conference. Although couched in vague terms so that even Wilson's critics could approve, it enabled the prime minister to claim he had the support of his party for his aims, if not for some of his methods.

U.S. Uses Biggest Guns In Viet Nam

HILL NUI KIEN, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — The United States Army Tuesday put its biggest guns to work for the first time in Viet Nam.

U.S. officers said the target was a North Vietnamese military radio transmitter near the Laotian border, about 1 1/2 miles inside the three-mile-wide demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

Four giant, self-propelled 175-millimetre guns pounded the target with high-explosive shells from a range of about 12 miles.

The guns, in size, range and destructive power the biggest artillery pieces ever manufactured in the U.S., were brought to this plateau two days ago to support U.S. marines and South Vietnamese troops fighting Communist forces just south of the zone.

tion that the market trend is strong.

Both men agree pretty well on the reason for the poor crop. Mr. McCordie said he planted his potatoes between May 25 and June 10. His Sebagoes, for example, had tremendous tops, but there wasn't enough moisture late in the season to grow the tubers.

In his Kennebecs Mr. McCordie found that the areas where the tops are better. But the Kennebec yield is also down, he observed.

The Middleton man grows 175 acres.

Mr. Willis suggests potatoes planted up to the 25th or the 27th of May — this is particularly true of Sebagoes — went dormant in the dry spell in August. And the tubers just didn't grow when the rainfall occurred late in August, or early September, whenever the good rains came. The potatoes really went dormant when the dry spell struck, Mr. Willis said.

This is true of central and western P.E.I., he observed, though he's not so sure of the Eastern area.

(The Guardian learned indirectly yesterday afternoon, though, that a large grower, Emmett Power in the Greenfield area, not far from Montague, is also finding his crop below expectations.)

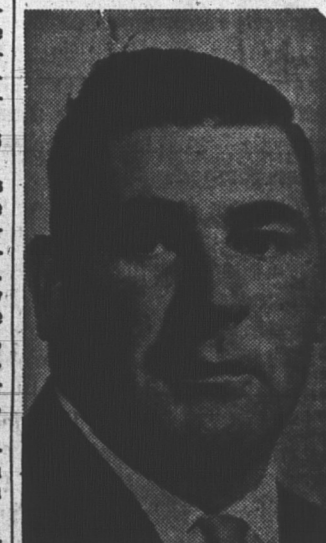

Sebago potatoes planted after May 27, and to June 10, are a reasonably good crop, Mr. Willis believes, though in that respect he is at variance with Mr. McCordie.

"The late crop is far superior to the early plantings." Mr. Willis added with conviction.

He is now digging a 45-acre field for Earl Phillips, in the O'Leary area, and the yield is under 300 bushels to the acre, though Mr. Phillips is a really good potato producer, Mr. Willis said.
