Sport Echoes From Prince County

An account of a baseball game in Summerside in 1910 appeared in a Summerside paper recently and the standing of the league was below. It included wins, losses, ties and percentages.

The way the Summerside old timers figured it out was, perhaps, unique in the history of the game.

The bantam and pee-wee leagues of Prince County are still flourishing. In the bantam division two Summerside teams are fighting it out for first place.

Personally, we don't like the lopsided scores that are beginning to show in the Prince Edward Island Physical Fitness League.

It's funny about that. You'd think that the more of a pasting you handed the visiting team, the greater the joy of the home fans.

That's the kind of thing that sends the home fans into a frenzy of joy. Beating the tar out of the opposition leaves them cold.

Then the second game in Summerside. We won it by a score of 14 to 1. Well, like all other Summerside rooters we were glad to see the C & B lads win the Maritime crown for the second year in a row.

To slip the last delicious dregs of victory you've got to fear defeat. You've got to be snatched from the brink of disaster to get all the thrill there is in winning.

Our very biggest baseball thrill was in Woodside, N.S. Just when it began to look as if Woodside were going to prove too strong for us, we loaded the bases and Les Gaudet came through with that daddy of all home runs that won us the ball game.

Remember the game in Charlottetown last year when the series was two games to one against us, and all the Abbies needed was one game to win? A Charlottetown runner was on third in an early inning and a long fly went out to centre field.

Alan Stewart in centrefield knew that when he threw that ball home he was throwing home the bacon.

Brother, those were the days! Here's hoping we have more of them.

meter extending approximately 15 miles outside the city, is in reality the old P.E.I. Fish and Game Association. They have done a lot of practical conservation work during the past 25 or 30 years for which they have received very little credit.

To successfully carry out a contest like the one recently conducted requires planning, enthusiasm and hard work and the old campaigners proved conclusively that they have what it takes.

By 1900 sports had aroused general interest with the military and athletic "meets" joining hands. On July 2nd of that year the Maritime Championships were held in Halifax.

The military sports in which a valuable trophy was offered by the city to the company scoring the most points, had the largest list of competitors ever seen at an Island meet up to this time.

Sea trout, in some streams at least, are unpredictable in their behaviour this summer. Some schools will remain in a headwater pool for a day or night and then drift away with an out-going tide.

Numerous complaints are reaching game headquarters in respect to the nefarious practice of netting trout. Whether or not the "twine dippers" are more active this season or the general run of fishermen are beginning to wake up and report what they see on their rounds remains to be seen.

PART II

The Maritime Championships for the first time in their history were held in P. E. I. on the grounds of the city A. A. A., and again the Island boys made a fine showing; MacKinnon for the second successive season captured the "title", and C. J. MacMillan the "quarter".

In 1899 the Maritime Championships were held at Moncton and the Abegweit team entered the meet and won high honors, four championships coming to Charlottetown.
