The Scott Act.

AN ENGLISH TEMPERANCE WORKER'S REPORT UPON IT.

The official organ of the United Kingdom Alliance recently published an interesting article upon the Scott Act, written by Mr. J. M. Skinner, who had spent several weeks in Canada looking into the practical workings of the Act. In the course of the report, Mr. Skinner says:—"I am happy to report that it is, on the whole, successful and satisfactory. That the Act is well enforced in many places may be gathered from the fact that in Middle County, recently, during three months, out of 124 informations laid of violations of the Act, there were 110 convictions and fines imposed, amounting to $5,505. The first town we stayed at where the Scott Act is in force was Prescott, in Grenville County, on the St. Lawrence. The counties of Leeds and Grenville united in voting on the Act, and out of 9,442 votes there was a majority of 674 in its favor. In the town of Prescott (where we stayed a night waiting for the steamer to take us up the St. Lawrence, by the Thousand Islands to Lake Ontario), there are two breweries and one distillery, employing at least one hundred families. The vote in Prescott was hostile to the Act, but not being a city the county vote prevailed. Thus we reached, in an accidental way, one of the very worst places—a Canadian Burton-on-Trent on a small scale—under the Scott Act since last May. But even there we saw no open bar, and the hotels all looked exceedingly dull and uninviting. There were a few loungers hanging about, one or two of them smoking and spitting, but we saw no drinking. The landlord of the leading hotel, who was our host for the night, confessed in answer to our inquiries that he sold liquor, but had to be very careful in doing so. Some of his neighbors had been fined, and he did not know when he might also be "pulled." Here we found, under the most adverse circumstances, that the Scott Act, although not rigidly enforced, largely removed the ordinary temptation to drinking and drunkenness. We saw the Presbyterian minister and some of the leading citizens, who, while regretting that the Act was not better enforced, testified that there was a marked improvement in the town since its adoption. Haion was the first county in Ontario that adopted the Act, the votes polled being 2,885, giving a majority of 81 in its favor. It came into operation in May, 1881. An effort was made to repeal in 1884, but the result was an increased majority of 180 out of 3,714 electors polled. The Act is exceedingly well enforced throughout the whole of this county. There have been 174 convictions for violations, and fines imposed amounting to $9,550. The Police Magistrate told us that during his experience of over six years, he had examined 2,200 witnesses, only one out of that number testified that drink was sold openly. In confirmation of this, Mr. McCraney, ex-M. P. for the county, offered us $100 if we could as strangers buy a glass of liquor anywhere in the county. We accepted the offer, promising if we got the money to divide it between the Canadian Alliance and the United Kingdom Alliance. We visited several places in the county and soon found that Mr. McCraney was quite safe in making the offer. We found comfortable quarters, and good food wherever we went, but no liquor. In the town of Oakville the leading hotel is now kept by a keen temperance man. In other towns we saw one or two suspicious looking characters calling at some of the hotels, but we could never see any drink. In one case we stayed at a house where we were informed that we were looked upon as whiskey detectives. This was at a house the landlord of which had been convicted for illegal sale. We spent two pleasant days in Guelph, where the first tree was cut in 1827. Guelph has since developed into a city of nearly 12,000 inhabitants, famed for Bell's organs and Raymond's sewing machines. It has many beautiful churches, fine schools and city buildings, and a free library and reading room. The Government Agricultural College is also close to the city. Here the Act came into force last May, and is fairly well enforced, although not to the satisfaction of its supporters. One liquor seller has been sold up since its adoption. Several others have been convicted and fines imposed amounting to 1,000 dollars. There are upwards of a dozen hotels, but no open bar or public sale of drink at any of them, only those who are duly initiated in the secrets of law-breaking can obtain liquor in the city.

A recent story of Gladstone is that he was reading one of Beaconsfield's speeches one day, and put it down with a sigh, remarking:—"With all his tinsel, he will be remembered when I am forgotten." This calls to mind Tenniel's cartoon in Punch, which represented the two statesmen with their backs turned to one another. Disraeli looking over Gladstone's "Juventus Mundi," and Gladstone examining Disraeli's "Lothair." The Conservative Leader remarks, "H'm, prosy!" and the Liberal leader's comment is, "Ha, flippant!"

Lord Tennyson doesn't remember faces well. He was entertained at dinner one day by Oscar Browning, a rich Society man at London, and no relation to the poet. A few days later Mr. Browning greeted Tennyson at a reception and met only a blank stare. "Do you not remember me, Lord Tennyson?" "I am Browning," said his former host. "Oh, no, you are not," calmly answered Tennyson, "I know Robert Browning intimately, and you cannot persuade me that you are he."

JOHN R. FITZPATRICK, of Tracadie, will be able to accommodate about thirty horses and carriages from Charlottetown, within five chains of the Teal grounds, in which there will be a dinner saloon in connection, in good order.

British and European Affairs.

General Wolsely holds the post of Adjutant-General of the British Army on an annual salary of $13,500. To Field Marshal Von Moltke, who performs the same duties in the German army, only $8,000 is paid, and the Adjutant-General of the French army only gets $4,000.

The Berlin Zeitung which has, up to this time, tried to allay the suspicion which has arisen against Russian credit, says:—"It would have been better if the Journal de St. Petersburg in its article on the crusade of the German press against Russian securities had been able to state that all rumors regarding the negotiations of Russia for a loan were incorrect, but this declaration was cautiously avoided like the well grounded complaints of Russia's hostile attitude towards Germany." The Frankfurt Zeitung has advices from St. Petersburg which reaffirm the reports of the endeavor on the part of Russia to negotiate a loan in Paris. Other Russian advices refer to a proposal to promote the production of gold and arrest the depreciation of Russian paper. They also allude to a scheme to prevent commercial travellers doing business in Russia, and assert that this measure is directed principally against the Germans, who are the chief competitors of the Russians.

At Harrogate, they roasted an ox whole, in honor of the Jubilee, by an ingeniously constructed furnace, and, after it was "done brown" it was cut into bits and distributed among the needy portion of the community. At Liss, Hampshire, the ox was subjected to a boiling process, by being lowered into a tank in the ground, under which burned a fierce fire. After boiling seven hours in water, wherein were a vast quantity of turnips, carrots and potatoes, which made splendid soup, the carcass was drawn up by a pulley, and solemnly "processed" on a species of bier by twelve men, who carried it shoulder high along the street. Thereafter, to the strains of "God Save the Queen" and "Rule Britannia," amid the shouts of the multitude, the ox was cut up and distributed to the poor. The immense knife and fork used in dissecting the boiled animal were manufactured in the village, and will be handed down as mementoes of the glorious year of the Jubilee.

American News and Notes.

New York claims to be growing at the rate of 60,000 a year.
James Preston, 92 years old, is still working in a mine in Schuylkill Co., Penn. He has his third wife, and is the father of an even three dozen children.
The New York Graphic thinks that Dr. McClynn will flourish for a brief season as a result of a very cheap article at notoriety, and then will pass out of sight to return no more.

The Savannah News says:—"During the last three years the strikes of American workmen have resulted in bringing 1,000,000 foreign workmen to this country to fill places and earn wages. 'It is an ill wind that blows nobody good.'"
Rev. M. Hanselman, assistant pastor of the Catholic Church of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, preached Sunday morning on death. In the afternoon, while conducting vespers, he was seized with hemorrhage and died while being assisted in the vestry.

A new theory of the final destruction of the earth is that the polar ice is penetrating the interior of the globe like a wedge, and that as soon as it reaches the furnace there will be an explosion that will split the world into pieces too small for truck patches.
In 1832 a girl who worked in a London cotton mill put $40 in a savings bank. By the year 1852 she had increased the amount to $153. By 1875 that principal, with dividends, amounted to $1406. She has since drawn out $700, and her credit now is $1027. She is 80 years old. A small sum in youth may be an important help in old age.

A Detroit despatch says:—"At Higgins Lake, Roscommon county, yesterday, Mrs. Charles H. Petit and her little daughter, aged three years, were boating, when the child fell into the water. The mother, in her anxiety and fright, upset the boat, and as they were alone, the chances were they would both be drowned. Such would have been the case had not their horse, an intelligent French pony, which had been turned loose to graze on the shore of the lake, come to their rescue. It swam out to them, and when they had taken secure hold of its mane, struggled back to shore, a tired, but heroic pony. The animal is inclined to be balky, and he never would pull anything but a light load; but he is a prime favorite now.

Ohio is the first of the states to declare its presidential preference for 1888, and each party has put itself on record, the Democrats for Cleveland and the Republicans for John Sherman. The action of the Democratic convention is probably the most significant. Cleveland has not been a first favorite with the Ohio wing of his party, and his endorsement may be taken as an admission that his administration has been so markedly successful in the country as to put him easily ahead of any probable rivals. Mr. Sherman's success was won after a fight with the Blaine forces, in which he is admitted to have beaten his rival at his own game, and that is a sharp one. But his victory is only the beginning of a long fight, in which the magnetic man from Maine will not be scrupulous or idle, and the first blood drawn may count for very little when the final round is called in the national convention. Cleveland and Blaine, it still would seem, will go to the polls in 1888 as they did in 1884.

F. E. BARNES, 344 Fourth Avenue, New York, writes: "I have used Adamson's Balm, as have also some of my personal friends. We found it the best remedy to be had for coughs and colds." Trial bottles 10 cents.
