

CHURCHES SUNDAY JULY 7

Pronce Rats and Cobbers Starting to Visit

This week nature has been adding new touches of color to the green of the landscape with the purple of the clover fields, the white of the daisies and along the roadside the vibrant purple of the lupine. Those of us that live here perhaps become used to such a riot of color but it is easy to understand that upon the visitor the impact is startling. For ourselves it is not until July produce a miracle of beauty which almost completely dispels the misery that was March and April.

ACROSS THE ISLAND

Stormy Fore Trains B's and C's Engineers

I HAD an interesting chat a few days ago with Joe Robertson of Pinetoe who told me some interesting stories of days that are gone. He wasn't bushed in the early days and a number of men from their way from Charlottetown got caught in a terrific snowstorm and stopped just off Tweed's Point—in the Earm-ersville area. An immense flock of sheep was being driven, rugged the animals as warmly as possible, and started tramping around inside the circle to keep from getting too cold. Sometime later George Buchmann, a well known farmer, came up with his horse "Pony". The group of men asked him if they would make room for his horse in the ring, but he replied "No, my pony home."

Old Diary Would Be Fascinating

MR. ROBERTSON voiced a thought that has often been in my mind when he said "If someone had kept a diary in my first few years of the early settlers here. It would have made wonderful reading." Those early settlers came from parts of Scotland that had settled hundreds of years. Most of them would have no experience with an axe, or as workmen. Yet they had to start clearing land, and later farms out of the woods. I recall that a friend of mine in Rose Valley told me last year he had heard his grandfather tell the first settler in their family who chopped down one tree, then sat on top of the stump and cried in helpless frustration. Second and third generation men were accustomed to the work of the early days. I would think—but some of the pioneers must have had a terrible time.

Freight Was Done By Horses

MERCHANTS, and other goods, had to be freighted by hand in winter, one the summer boats had stopped in late fall, and the Pinetoe men who used to haul in Elton had some tales of those early days. When MacInnes lived where Robertson West resides now drawing a second shell. The freighting fee was 20 to 25 cents per 100 pounds. MacInnes would probably make up to $100.00 with his two sleighs on one trip. He would haul up one ton each sleigh when the ice was good, it was observed. Hauling by horses was a "lightning" in those days in winter, prior to the building of the Murray Harbour way line about 1905 or 1906, the Pinetoe man said. Schooners carried produce and merchandise along the coast, and a number of OWEN MARTIN had a contract to drive the mail from Charlottetown to Murray Harbour. He would take it as far as Elton and a brother would drive it the rest of the way to Murray Harbour. Mr. Robertson said.

"Living Is Part Of Horse Trading"

I LIKED this story about the circuit court judge at Elton, who was trying to buy a mare. "There has been considerable living in this case" observed the judge. "You honour" replied one of the horse traders. "Living is part of the horse-trading business." "I'd like to do a couple of horse trading years, if I can find someone who will talk on the reasonable terms when he gets the worst of a deal. For one thing his neighbour would only laugh at him. And he had to make the horse he got look good. Because he wanted to trade him to someone else."
