

WORK ON the second of five giant concrete cribs which will form the base of the new Borden ferry terminal is progressing rapidly. Workmen are shown packing in the soft concrete before another bucket arrives. The crib is expected to be ready for launching in about eight days.

New Addition to Borden Terminal Is 'On Schedule'

By CARMAN SMITH
Construction of the new addition to the Borden ferry by McNamara Construction of Nova Scotia is right on schedule for the June 5, 1964 completion date, according to Wilfred Clausen, resident engineer for Whitman Benn and Associates, a consulting and engineering firm from Halifax, with a branch office in Charlottetown.

Mr. Clausen said earlier this week that the original completion date had been set for December of this year but a shortage of steel had forced the company to push the date ahead to next June.

Blood Donor Clinic Set For Hunter River Mon.

Central Queen's Regional High School at Hunter River will be the locale of the first of a series of eight Red Cross blood donor clinics to be held in the province next week. This clinic is being sponsored by the New Glasgow Junior Farmers with Mark Gallant as the chairman, and has for the past few years been held at the Junior Farmers' Recreation Centre in New Glasgow.

In explaining why the change was made this year, Mr. Gallant stated that his committee felt the move should help to improve the attendance which had fallen considerably below the objective of 150 in the past few years. He said he felt having the clinic in Hunter River would be more convenient for residents in the 30 districts which make up the Central Queen's area, who would welcome the opportunity to play their part in maintaining a good supply in the Red Cross blood bank.

"We want to use all Canadian products on this project," said Mr. Clausen, "but when we went to order the steel mills were booked up. As it stands now everything but the steelwork will be completed by December."

Work on the second of five cribs, which looks like a huge concrete bathtub when ready for launching, is well underway and it is expected that this crib will be ready to slip into the water approximately eight days from today. Mr. Clausen said a tentative two-week period had been set for each crib from the time the work starts until it is ready for launching.

Work had gone one day over the two weeks on the first crib, he said. As the men gain experience "we might build one in one week if we do real good," said Mr. Clausen.

FORM BASE
The new cribs form the base of the new terminal. The fifth and final one to be erected will be different than the others and will be fitted with a liftable bridge.

When launched each crib weighs approximately 200 tons, is 14 feet in height and slightly more than 86 feet long. The first crib was launched last Thursday and towed alongside the existing terminal where it will stay anchored until it is built up an additional 15 feet. When completed a crib weighs approximately 1,200 tons.

Workmen are in the process of raising it the additional 15 feet and when completed, the crib will be towed into position and filled with concrete, dumping it down to the harbor bottom.

HOLD BREATH
There is always a possibility of a crib sinking should any trouble arise. However, it is expected that the cribs will be launched safely.
